Barrett in Legislature Driver's Seat Today

By RAY DYKES
Colonist Reporter

An NDP government with a clear-cut majority begins its first skirmish with its opponents today as the 30th B.C. Legislature opens in a special session.

For Premier Dave Barrett it will be the chance he's dreamed of to rid himself of the ingrown frustration of being top dog in an opposition that had bark but no power to bite.

The ground rules are expected to be basically the same in the session once billed as an emergency but more recently just termed "special."

Rules of debate and procedure that served to thwart the NDP in opposition will now swing to favor the new government.

Major changes in the running of the house promised by the NDP will have to wait for a spring session, according to Speaker designate Gordon Dowding.

Today he will be able to do little more than follow the precedents set by earlier speakers, he added. But the house may vote to amend some minor procedures.

Such things as the customary budget speech of a new government will also have to wait till the next session.

Standings in the Legislature for the session are NDP, 38; Social Credit, 10; Liberal, 5, and Conservative, 2.

The agenda has been well aired and includes:

- Legislation providing a $200 guaranteed monthly income for about 110,000 B.C. persons 65 years and older;
- Repeal of the current ban on tobacco and alcohol advertising;
- Changes in the Public Schools Act;
- A minimum wage of $2.50 an hour and;
- Minor changes in labor law.

According to sources among civil servants, Barrett has demanded that all legislation should be ready to be introduced within the first two days of the session, which could last up to two weeks.

C'mon to Our House Applies Only to First 80

It will be first-come-first-served for the 80 seats in the Legislature's public gallery when the session opens today.

For the rest of the session, speaker-designate Gordon Dowding has drawn up new rules for the gallery which he hopes will prove fair to both the general public and to junior and senior high school students.

Students will be limted to groups of no more than 35 including their escorts and their visits will be restricted: 2 p.m. to 3 p.m. and 3:30 p.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Arrangements for student visits must be made through their MLA but the members will be restricted to sponsoring no more than two groups in each calendar year, starting Wednesday this year.

Dowding indicated that the allocation of two visits a year may be amended once a firm decision on a two-sittings-a-year policy has been made by the cabinet.

In elaborating on the rules Dowding said, "The public cannot be denied the opportunity of attending sessions of the Legislature by pre-empting all the gallery seats for students, yet we must consider a fair way of allowing students the opportunity to see their Legislature in action."

Members of the public will line up, as they have in the past, for remaining seats in the public gallery.

Mafia HQ 'Bugs' Bite 677

NEW YORK (UPI) — The year-long surveillance of a "summit headquarters" of organized crime hidden in a junkyard has resulted in subpoenas against 677 persons in a massive probe of mob dealings in narcotics, prostitution and extortion, District Attorney Eugene Gold said Monday.

Each of the subpoenas, served by a small army of 1,200 policemen in all of New York City's five boroughs and three surrounding counties, were related in "a meaningful way" to the underworld, Gold said.

Gold flatly refused to release the names of the subpoenas, but termed the action "Bigger than Apalachin" — the arrests of top Mafia figures at the Apalachin, N.Y., estate of reputed mobster Joseph Barbera in 1957.

Gold did say the "headquarters," located in a 40-by-15 foot trailer parked in the junkyard, was the scene of the "comings and goings of prominent members of the five organized crime families of New York City and other people."

"This proves that each one of these 'families' are interlocked and this headquarters is where they met," Gold said.

At a news conference at the junkyard, Gold, standing in the trailer, ripped a plywood ceiling plank out to show where his agents had installed a "bug," a microphone and transmitter.

In addition, he said, police agents, with court approval, tapped three telephones in the trailer.

During the investigation, the Brooklyn district attorney said, 36,000 feet of motion pictures were shot, 54,000 still photographs taken, and 21,600 feet of tape recorded from the wiretaps and bug.

The junkyard, in a quiet residential area of the Canarsie section of the city, was filled with wrecked cars which were "stacked so neatly men in business suits could walk freely without soiling their clothes."

Hottest Mayor in U.S.

Cleveland Mayor Ralph Perk got more than he bargained for Monday when he agreed to open a metals society convention in his city. Perk's hair caught fire from sparks of torch he used to cut the ribbon and metal bar, and sparks later burned through mayor's pants as well. He was uninjured.

Barrett Lashed Over Tel Talk

The Social Credit caucus Monday attacked Premier Dave Barrett for "irresponsible statements" about the takeover of B.C. Tel and two natural gas companies.

Terming Barrett's remarks made last week as "repitition of ideological nonsense," the Socreds claimed "tens of millions of dollars" had been wiped off the stock market thanks to the takeover speculation.

Barrett, who doubles as finance minister, said last Thursday that government takeover of B.C. Tel was definite but no timetable had been set.

B.C. Tel shares were trading at $65 when the NDP government took office and by Monday had slipped to $55.

In a statement circulated by Social Credit caucus chairman Newell Morrison of Victoria, the Socreds said:

"The facts are that ministers of finance under the British Parliamentary system have been sacked for far less than the fiscal disclosures which were made by the minister of finance Thursday last."

"The savings of many small investors are being drained away by his repetition of ideological nonsense," the Socred caucus said,

Buenos Aires Blast Kills B.C. Woman

Reuter, AP, UPI

A woman believed to have been from West Vancouver was the sole fatality Monday night when a bomb blast ripped a jagged hole in the 24-storey Sheraton Hotel in Buenos Aires.

Police said the woman, Lois Crozier, was a U.S. citizen. But a spokesman at the hospital where she died shortly after the blast said she was from West Vancouver.

The bomb apparently was one of a series planted by terrorist followers of Juan Peron in commemoration of the 27th anniversary today of the former president's rise to power in Argentina.

Mrs. Crozier's husband, Gerard, and Robert Hall of the U.S. were treated for minor injuries. Another woman identified by police as an American, Patricia Traka, was reported in a coma.

Meanwhile, in Santiago shopkeepers, striking in sympathy with truckers, kept their shutters closed Monday in defiance of Chile's leftist government.

Riot police were out in large numbers in Santiago's commericial district and used teargas to break up crowds of hundreds of persons shouting.

The capital province of Santiago and 16 other provinces out of a total of 25, have been under a state of emergency, a from of martial law, since Thursday.

Congress Leader Missing

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — The U.S. Air Force launched a search Monday for an overdue small plane carrying U.S. House Majority Leader Hale Boggs of Louisiana and Representative Nick Begich, Alaska's sole member of the U.S. lower house.

"We assume that the airplane is down," a Federal Aviation Administration spokesman said.

There was no radio contact with the twin-engine plane after the pilot filed a flight plan 12 minutes after take-off from Anchorage, he added. There were four persons aboard the plane on the flight to Juneau.

"There could be many circumstances, like a malfunctioning radio or being out of radio range, that could cause us to lose contact, but the plane has passed its fuel exhaustion time and we assume that the airplane is down," the FAA spokesman said.

Lewis Cites Report: Pipeline 'Disaster'

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask. (CP) — David Lewis said during the weekend that unpublished research papers, prepared by a federally-financed "think tank," warn that construction of a Mackenzie Valley pipeline might spell disaster for the Canadian economy.

The NDP leader said the papers were compiled for the "so-called think tank" that was set up by Energy Min-

Tsui Wen-chien happily displays switched foot

HONG KONG (Reuter) — Peking surgeons, in a successful 10-hour operation, transplanted the right foot to the left leg of a woman critically injured in a train accident early this year, says a Chinese news report.

The Chinese-language Ta Kung Pao, carrying a New China agency story, said Tsui Wen-chien, a 29-year-old member of a commune in suburban Peking, was knocked down by a train Jan. 10.

The operation was so successful that the transplanted foot is sensitive to heat and cold, the agency said.

An artificial leg was later fitted to Miss Tsui's right thigh and she can walk without crutches, the report said.

Premier Barrett was asked for an apology Monday because his stand-in MLA Emery Barnes snubbed an international tennis tournament in which two South Africans were playing.

Pat Jordan, Social Credit MLA for North Okanagan, demanded the apology in a press release and accused the NDP government of allowing politics to interfere with sports.

"I don't believe the majority of people of B.C. want their politics, culture and sports all mixed up," she said.

Barnes was to have officially-opened the Rothman's International Tennis Tournament in Vancouver for Bar-

Stone Kills Four

CALCUTTA (AP) — Four bandits were killed and six injured when a stone thrown by an Indian villager struck and detonated explosives they carried, police reported Monday. They said the bandits, firing guns, attacked a house Saturday night in a rural area of the eastern state of Bihar. They were surprised by villagers throwing stones, one of which hit a bag containing explosives.

ister Donald Macdonald last April and given $15 million to study Arctic development.

He said the government is more than vaguely committed to building the pipeline, but Canada must not rush into the estimated $5-billion venture if the country is to remain free, strong and economically independent.

Minister of Energy Donald Macdonald has reiterated that the federal government has no commitment "at this stage" to a northern natural gas pipeline.

Macdonald also said that the government's objective is to have majority Canadian equity ownership in any pipeline.

Northern Development Minister Jean Chretien said Monday the federal government has made no conclusion on a Mackenzie River Valley pipeline so far and no applications have been received as yet.

Commenting on statements by Lewis, the minister said "it was premature for Mr. Lewis to conclude we have decided on a pipeline."

He made the remarks at a news conference following a welcoming address to 100 top scientists gathered for a 'think tank' session on northern research sponsored by his department.

In Chicoutimi, Que., Conservative leader Robert Stanfield said Canada should aim at majority control of any gas pipeline built along the Mackenzie Valley.

A gas line is the most likely one to be built and the "aim should certainly be Canadian control."

A gas pipeline poses fewer dangers to the environment than an oil pipeline, but it should not disturb the native society in the North, the Conservative leader said.

Lewis also said Monday in Oshawa that a secret cabinet memo dated Nov. 9, 1971, offers clear evidence that the Trudeau government is prepared to bargain away safeguards in the Canada-United States auto pact.

He said the memo, which he had seen personally, outlines discussions on "just how to give the safeguards away and what they might get in return" in trade negotiations with the U.S.

But Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin Monday answered that negotiations have been going on since the auto pact first was signed, "looking at possible means of improving benefits to both countries."

rett but he returned his tickets 30 minutes before the ceremony when he discovered two South Africans were to play.

"I didn't wish to embarrass anyone. I'm sure everything was done in good faith but it became a question of principle," said Barnes, one of the two black MLAs in the NDP government.

He added that his actions were "as an individual" opposing the "legislated racial discrimination of a nation."

Mrs. Jordan said neither of the two South Africans had expressed a view as to whether or not they approved or disapproved of their country's politics and as such could not be held accountable.

"If the premier of our province allows his representative to foster racism through exploiting innocent individuals then he must either apologize or accept the public knowledge that he himself is willing to destroy athletic exchanges with politics," she said.

Barrett in Driver's Seat

depending on the throne speech debate.

It appears the premier is not going to allow "late entries" into the field and wants all proposals on the books in time to give MLAs a chance to study them.

And those doing the perusing are mainly newcomers.

Of the 55 MLAs in the Legislature, 28 are there for the first time and 27 have tried the house's seats for comfort at one time or another.

According to at least one newcomer, Saanich-and-the Islands Conservative MLA Hugh Curtis, most of the members will have a lot more to hear than to say.

Former premier W. A. C. Bennett was still moving round in the shadows Monday and had not been seen at the legislative buildings by most of the Press Gallery members.

The word was that he would arrive in Victoria Monday night in preparation for today's opening.

A week earlier it was thought Bennett was a non-starter, particularly when he sent word from his Italian holiday that former mines minister Frank Richter was to be house leader for the Socreds.

But Bennett will be in the Opposition leader's seat today and this should ensure a lively session even though he promises the Socreds will not be "carping critics" or "obstructionists."

Those who delight in watching the veteran performer might be disappointed to learn that political pundits, including 20-year man Highways Minister Robert Strachan, predict it will be the Liberal Party that provides "the real opposition."

"In my opinion in all probability the major role in opposition will be played by the Liberals," said Strachan — an opposition leader himself for several years.

The Liberals have five men experienced in parliament who were capable and knowledgeable, he added.

Liberal leader David Anderson will be baptized into provincial politics after a one-term skirmish at the federal level and months of fighting the oil tanker route down the west coast in United States court rooms.

While most of those involved today will be making their debut, it will be the last throne speech for Lieutenant-Governor John Nicholson, who has indicated he will retire.

Top priority in the special session is the increased pension payment — something B.C. will push through despite an unclear picture on just how much Ottawa will pay in the $42 million scheme.

Rehabilitation and Social Improvement Minister Norman Levi will introduce the pension legislation, which some people feel could set a precedent in cost sharing between Ottawa and the provinces.

The NDP government maintains that under the Canada Assistance Plan, the federal government is obligated to enter into a 50-50 cost-sharing agreement on the pension increases.

The NDP promised in election campaigning that it would repeal Social Credit's liquor and tobacco advertising bans — the first of their kind in Canada.

Barrett has said he is repealing the law not because of its intent but because it has proved ineffective.

The Public Schools Act will be amended to wipe out the 6.5 per cent ceiling the former government put on teachers' salaries.

And the 108 per cent limit put on the amount school boards can budget for operating expenses will be lifted to up to 100 per cent of the past year's budget.

The minimum wage boost has already whipped up opposition from B.C. restaurateurs who fear the $1 an hour increase will wipe out many of the smaller dining operations.

Tory house leader, sharp-tongued former Socred, Dr. Scott Wallace says he will fight the increase with a suggestion that it be introduced in three stages rather than all at once.

The labor law changes are expected to be minor in nature and according to Labor Minister Bill King "nothing as significant as the repeal of Bill 33" — the law that provides for binding settlements and government back-to-work orders in certain labor disputes.

Trying to pin the Social Credit caucus down to its stand on the planned NDP legislation this week was like trying to crush elephants with a feather.

The official opposition members said they had been ignored by the government and knew only what they had read in the newspapers and seen on TV.

Today, then will hold surprises for them too, just as it will for the bevy of new faces in the Legislature seats.

Strange Sarcoidosis

YOUR GOOD HEALTH

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have a disease called Boeck's Sarcoid. Is there a cure for this and what is the fatality rate? I am under cortisone medication. —Mrs. M. W.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Could you please tell me about a disease called sarcoidosis? Does it have a lot to do with tumors of the skin? Can it affect the eyes? Does a person get cured of this disease?

I am going on 30 years old. Does it have anything to do with the liver? I was told not to drink any kind of liquor, that it would hurt me.—Mrs. J. K. L.

Two letters, two names, same disease.

Boeck's, also called sarcoidosis, is a condition causing small tubercles (lumps) in body tissue. Its cause is unknown, but it is more common among young adults, although it can and does occur in other age groups.

Because not much is known about it and less written about it, a patient is naturally confused and bewildered when he learns he has it.

The disease is strange for several reasons For example, it can appear in almost any tissue, eyes, skin, glands, lung. Yet few symptoms are produced, although it may be accompanied b a subtle fever.

It has a tendency to appear and disappear spontaneously and move from one site to another. It is usually characterized by tumors (benign) resembling flesh.

Sarcoidosis has a tendency also to mimic other ailments.

When it attacks the lungs, it can be mistaken for tuberculosis.

Incidentally, while the cause is unknown, some patients who have had sarcoidosis have later been found to have tuberculosis.

Diagnosis is made by tissue biopsy of the lumps or of the affected lymph glands. There is a special blood test which also reveals its presence.

It is not life-threatening, although when it affects the lungs, it can become more serious.

Use of steroids (cortisone-type medication), as in the case of Mrs. M. W., helps speed up the disappearance of lesions.

And Mrs. T. can do without her alcohol for the time being, particularly if the liver is involved.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Will you kindly explain what makes a heterosexual?— E. A. B.

It means that girls like boys and boys like girls. As contrasted to a homosexual who is attracted to someone of his own (or her own) sex. From the Greek "hetero" meaning different and "homo" meaning the same.

Clash Over Jo

Both I

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau and Progressive Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield have been clashing on how many jobs have been added in the labor force since Trudeau took office in April, 1968.

The short answer is that each total being used—Trudeau says more than one million and Stanfield says it is only 841,000—is valid.

Each is using Statistics Canada data, pointing up the old truism that statistics can be used to draw different conclusions without being erroneous.

The monthly reports compiled by Statistics Canada show that in April, 1968, there were an estimated 7,276,008 people at work and that this figure rose to 8,381,000 last month.

That's the basis for the Trudeau claim of more than one million jobs having been added. The precise figure is 1,105,000.

Opposition Leader Stanfield is saying only 841,000 new jobs have been created in the four years and five months since Mr. Trudeau took office. Stanfield says Trudeau hasn't allowed for seasonal factors in his figures.

The statistics show that employment normally rises between April and September each year, and falls in the winter months. The April-to-September increase each year in the last five years has ranged between 218,000 and 451,000.

If the April, 1968, and April, 1972, figures are compared,

In a policy statement apparently aimed at young voters, the Conservatives said they "would establish a Canadian youth employment directorate" that would look into the reasons why young people are out of work.

"The directorate would act as a type of careers commission," the policy statement from the Conservative party said.

The Conservatives also promised to "employ 15,000 young Canadians" each summer in a special environmental corps clean up squad attached to the department of the environment.

"Such a program would offer concerned Canadians an open and direct way of fulfill-

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau and Progressive Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield have been clashing on how many jobs have been added in the labor force since Trudeau took office in April, 1968.

If the April, 1968, and April, 1972, figures are compared, the increase in employment would be only 809,000. If September figures for the two years are compared, the increase would be 672,008.

These figures are the estimated actual levels of employment in the months concerned, based on Statistics Canada's survey of 30,000 households scattered across Canada except in the northern territories and on Indian reserves.

They refer only to civilian employment, not membership in the armed forces which declined to about 84,000 in mid-1972 from 100,000 in 1968.

The economy is subject to wide swings in employment and unemployment between the high-activity summer months and the slack period caused by the harshness of the winter.

Caouette Sticks To French

BUCTOUCHE, N.B. (CP)—Social Credit Leader Real Caouette spoke entirely in French at a rally in Buctouche, N.B., Saturday night, when some members of his audience told him not to speak English.

Caouette offered to speak English before the audience of 250 in the eastern Kent County community since, he said, the French-speaking people on hand' understood English, but the reverse was not true.

"No, in French. We are not English but Acadians," a group of young people shouted in French.

"I do not speak Acadian, but French-Canadian," Caouette replied, "but I will not deliver two speeches."

Perrault Enjoys Underdog's Role

By DENNIS BELL

VANCOUVER (CP) — Ray Perrault, the Liberal giant-killer who chopped down former NDP national leader T. C. Douglas in the biggest upset of the 1968 campaign, finds himself once again in British Columbia's hottest political race heading into the Oct. 30 federal election.

A big, sweaty politician's politician with rolled-up sleeves and rumpled suit, the 46-year-old member of the last House from Burnaby-Seymour is the New Democratic Party's No. 1 Liberal target in the province's 23 federal ridings.

The New Democrats, running teacher Ed Nelson against Perrault, are out to avenge the former B.C. Liberal leader's 138-vote upset of Douglas in the riding four years ago.

The NDP has gang-tackled Perrault's storefront style of lunch-bucket Liberalism with an army of organizers and canvassers pounding the pavement in the big working-and-middle-class riding east of Vancouver.

"They said I was in trouble in '68, that running against Tommy Douglas was hopeless, helpless and impossible," said Perrault. "Here I am, doing the same thing today. I've been the underdog in five of the six provincial and federal election campaigns I've been in, and I've won 'em all."

Nelson admits that he's not Tommy Douglas.

"This is a symbolic riding for myself and the NDP," said Nelson, a 55-year-old teacher making his first try at federal politics.

"Tommy Douglas lost this riding at the height of Trudeaumania, we're going to win it back with an unknown candidate at the height of Trudeauphobia."

Four years ago, Mr. Perrault shot from "an unbelievably bad position to victory" with 17,891 votes, compared with 7,753 for Douglas, 3,026 for the Progressive Conservative and 702 for a Social Crediter.

Church Seeks Political Answers

'Questions Unfaced'

OTTAWA (CP) — Arguing that "deeper questions remain unfaced" in the current federal election campaign, a group of 15 Canadian churchmen has written a letter to all daily newspapers in Canada asking political parties to make their views known on a wide variety of issues.

"We don't want to quarrel with any particular party," said Rev. Patrick Kerans, of the Canadian Catholic Conference's social action office. "We are simply trying to raise questions not being answered."

The letter, from representatives of the Catholic, United, Anglican and Lutheran churches, as well as the Canadian Council of Churches, asks, for instance: "Who will offer us an effective program assuring every Canadian, as a matter of right, an adequate income and a place in Canada's mainstream?"

Some other questions in the letter:

"Which party will lead each of our two main cultural communities to foster the ability of the other to forge its own destiny?"

"Which party will undertake to work seriously with the native peoples of Canada towards programs which assure them human dignity on their terms?"

Tories Adopt Fitness Goal

Youth Pledged Jobs

OTTAWA (UPI) — The Conservative party said Monday that if elected to office it would establish a youth employment section of the manpower and immigration department and "adopt physical fitness and athletic excellance" as a major national goal.

In a policy statement apparently aimed at young voters, the Conservatives said they "would establish a Canadian youth employment directorate" that would look into the reasons why young people are out of work.

"The directorate would act as a type of careers commission," the policy statement from the Conservative party said.

The Conservatives also promised to "employ 15,000 young Canadians" each summer in a special environmental corps clean up squad attached to the department of the environment.

"Such a program would offer concerned Canadians an open and direct way of fulfilling their concern for the environment," the statement said.

With regards to sports and physical fitness, the Conservative policy statement said physical fitness should be declared a national goal "for the health and general well being of Canadians and for the contribution which successful sports programs can make to Canadain unity"

"The athletic strategy we envisage would involve working with the provinces and the existing sports government bodies to establish regional training centres," the statement said.

The regional training centres "would be the vehicle for the creation across Canada of centres of athletic excellence specializing in particular fields of sports," the party said.

The Tory sports policy would provide money for expanded programs of assistance, increase greatly grants to promising athletes, establish a national program to train coaches and sports officials and sponsor national seminars across the country for specialized instruction and discussion.

The Conservative policy paper said, "Our party is committed to a sports policy for Canada which will create among Canadians renewed confidence in their own abilities."

A Chance to Improve

THE SPECIAL SESSION of the B.C. legislature opening today should be a businesslike affair. It will lack the ceremony of the full-fledged session early in the new year. Its purpose will be to put through quickly the legislation given the highest priority by the New Democratic government. But — because a federal election campaign is in progress — there no doubt will be some striving for partisan one-upmanship; if it is too early for the Opposition normally to try to tear down the government recently elected to a strong majority position by the voters of the province, it is not untimely to seek to reflect credit or discredit on the federal parties.

Nevertheless it is hoped the brief fall session will set a new style of conduct for the assembly. For years schoolchildren and other visitors to the public galleries have seen and heard shocking rudeness on the floor of the house; parliamentary decorum has often seemed a myth. The official Opposition — now the government — has complained session after session about the government's driving ways, about long night and early-morning sittings, "legislation by exhaustion." Now, in power, it has the chance to remedy some of the abuses of power it has discerned in the past.

Problem of Succession

IT IS EXPECTED that when the time comes for Mao Tse-tung to step down from his political eminence he will be succeeded in Peking by some sort of executive committee, a sort of council of elders.

Decision on this policy has been disclosed by Prime Minister Chou En-lai, removing any speculation that he himself might be the successor. For besides being an old comrade of the Long March, Mr. Chou has always appeared to the western world head and shoulders above any of his colleagues — not excepting Mr. Mao himself.

No one outside the Peking hierarchy can have any idea who will be nominated for the executive, which might take the triumvirate form, or whether Mr. Mao has made up his mind about them. About the only thing that is certain is that their selection will be his decision.

One reason for the departure from the absolutism that has been the practice in China since the days of the Kuomintang was the sad treachery of another comrade of the Long March, Marshal Lin Piao. Mr. Mao designated the younger man as his successor, and smilingly recommended acceptance of his heir to the people of China. The temptation was too much for Marshal Lin. He tried to hurry the exit of his leader and himself died in his flight from the consequences of his betrayal.

The avowed reason for the change in the form of administration, given by Mr. Chou, is that China is too vast a land for any one man to govern. It has an unconvincing sound. Because no totalitarian system can operate effectively unless one man has the right of final decision. It is necessary to have a Stalin or a Castro, a Hitler, a Mussolini or a Mao Tse-tung to hold together that sort of political structure.

Whatever comes after Mr. Mao, collective leadership or triumvirate, there will be one dominant figure. China's is a system that invites rivalries, and rivalries in such a country are likely to lead to fractures.

This has been the history of the land.

Even the most potent dynasties were plagued by rebellions and the central government repeatedly found itself defied and denied by some upstart warlord at the other end of the country.

In fact, to some extent this danger remains. Regional leaders have a tendency to fortify their positions and as their power grows so does their independence.

This is not to say, of course, that the nation is about to fall apart and return to the chaotic conditions of Kuomintang rule — or attempted rule — when Chiang Kai-shek was harassed by such powerful warlords as Chang Tso-lin, his son Dhang Hsueh-liang and the formidable Wu Pei-fu.

Eventually a satisfactory central authority will evolve. In the meantime it will be interesting to watch — if anyone abroad is allowed — the manoeuvring. And some day the world will possibly learn of the strategies and intrigues that are an inevitable part of it, when some enlightened head of state in Peking will decree, "Now it can be told."

Why Not 'Welfare'?

WHEN SOCIAL WELFARE Minister P. A. Gaglardi decided to become, instead, the minister of rehabilitiation and social improvement, we wondered what was wrong with the simple word welfare. "Welfare," it seemed, had acquired a slightly sour taste, like "relief" before it, or in Britain, "the dole." But it was still a good, perfectly descriptive term.

Now the new minister of rehabilitation and social improvement, Norman Levi, is thinking of finding a less cumbersome title. It's too much of a mouthful and he has trouble remembering it himself, he says.

We think he should consider going back to the simplest title, welfare minister. That is what most people are going to call him anyway: he can no more compel them to use something more roundabout or awkward than W. A. C. Bennett could oblige people to call him prime minister or to refer to B.C. unfailingly as British Columbia.

Ottawa Offbeat

Goodbye to Parliament Hill

By RICHARD JACKSON, Colonist Ottawa Bureau

Lee Grills was packing.

In Eastern Ontario's Hastings County polities since 1946 when he entered public life as a township councillor, and for 13 years Conservative MP, he was busy stuffing his memories and mementoes of Parliament into 17 cardboard cartons.

He'd need more than 17, for there were pictures, plaques and even plants to be boxed.

But for now, all the small office would hold, with cartons covering the floor, the old red cloth sofa and stuffed chair, was 17.

There have been some other 50 parliamentarians, Conservatives and Liberals, doing the same thing, cleaning out their desks and offices and saying goodbye to old friends. They weren't running in this election, and with each one of them it is a personal and often emotional thing.

With Lee Grills it involved his wife Beatrice, or Barney as friends in Belleville and Ottawa alike know her.

All his political years she had "kind of run with me in double harness, campaigning every day of her life," and now with a serious heart ailment she was in the intensive care unit of Belleville General Hospital.

Lee Grills had been intending to fight this one more election, his eighth, but now he couldn't.

Jack Ellis, a former mayor of Belleville, instead was running for the Conservatives, and Lee Grills was busy packing in confident expectation that Ellis would be moving into Room 558D after the election.

Into the 17 cartons were going the stacked correspondence of the years, files, books, old copies of Hansard in which he had been recorded as saying something — usually about transport or agriculture — in the Commons.

"Must have given away maybe some 150,000 of them altogether," he says as he dumps a few hundred into a carton; "Always had the message printed up near the eraser so when the pencil sharpened down to a stub, it was still there."

Down off the walls were coming the photographs — of the queen, the royal family, the home at 550 East Bridge street in Belleville, the farm in Sidney township, the 1952 county council of which he was warden, the old dairy.

He bought the dairy back in the early 1940s, he recalled, for something around $8,000, and a friend asked him if he had a slogan.

"All I've got," he told him, "is two horses, two wagons, a beat-up truck, a small metal-covered building, and a route that sells 200 quarts."

When he sold the dairy five years ago, by then known across the country as "The Friendly Milkman," sales were running 8,000 quarts.

"Gosh," he exploded, casting a lingering glance over the wildly disordered office, "the plant. Got to take that, although how do you pack a thing that size?"

He'll find a way, for he's had the big cut-leaf philodrendon these many years, ever since the PC ladies of Belleville presented it to him back in 1960.

All the while he was stripping the wall, rough wood 14-shelf bookcase, and packing old Commons committee reports into cartons, his secretary Janet Salery was busy on the phone.

She was working on pension and unemployment insurance troubles of Lee Grills' constituents, and never stopped talking.

"The one thing I feel pretty good about in leaving," he confided, "is that I looked after my people. You've got to do that.

"I never was much on the big speeches in the Commons. Made mighty few of them. Always figured the votes were back home in the county, not up here on The Hill.

"Folks used to drop their passports around to our home and I'd pick them up on the next weekend, take them to Ottawa and bring them back the next weekend, as many as 24 at a time.

"Never asked anyone who they voted; they wanted me to do something for them in Ottawa, I'd try to oblige.

"I always figured if a man answers his mail, his phone, and calls for help from his people, that's what counts; and he could let somebody else do the talking in the Commons."

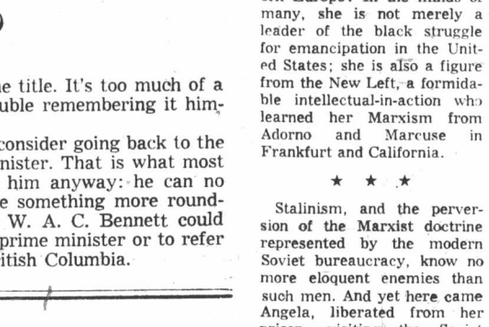

But it wasn't always strictly home-town service that Lee Grills gave his people. He squeezed out time to take an active part in the work of Defence, Transport Agriculture and Public Accounts committees.

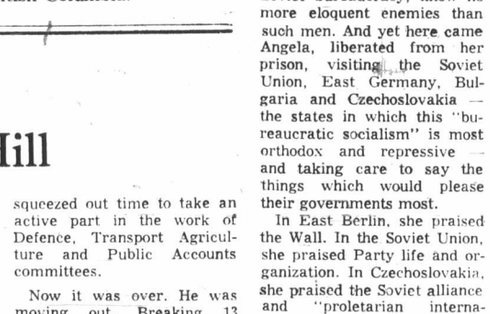

Now it was over. He was moving out. Breaking 13 years of routine driving up to Ottawa Sunday nights, living the week divided between Parliament and a hotel room, and driving back to Belleville Friday nights to spend a busy Saturday with "all my people."

What'll he do now?

Well, at 68 there's the farm, the home in Belleville, friends of a lifetime, and if Barney's health is up to it, maybe some travel. But today it's goodbye on Parliament Hill.

Wot! No Spitball?

Riding the Communist Tiger

By NEAL ASCHERSON

Angela Davis in Prague came soaring up to her peroration. She grinned, happy and exalted; she flung up her clenched fist and ended with the triumphant cry: "Long live proletarian internationalism!"

The applause came. But in the back rows of the Lucerna, that gorgeous subterranean cavern of a public hall, the assembled schoolkids were slightly taken aback. Some clearly did not know what "proletarian internationalism" was, and why Angela Davisova thought it so exciting. Others knew it as the principle used to justify the Warsaw Pact intervention in Czechoslovakia four years ago; they too wondered why she used those words.

What did Angela Davis think she was doing in Eastern Europe? In the minds of many, she is not merely a leader of the black struggle for emancipation in the United States; she is also a figure from the New Left, a formidable intellectual-in-action who learned her Marxism from Adorno and Marcuse in Frankfurt and California.

Stalinism, and the perversion of the Marxist doctrine represented by the modern Soviet bureaucracy, know no more eloquent enemies than such men. And yet here came Angela, liberated from her prison, visiting the Soviet Union, East Germany, Bulgaria and Czechoslovakia — the states in which this "bureaucratic socialism" is most orthodox and repressive — and taking care to say the things which would please their governments most.

In East Berlin, she praised the Wall. In the Soviet Union, she praised Party life and organization. In Czechoslovakia, she praised the Soviet alliance and "proletarian internationalism," and firmly refused to answer the appeals of Communists and socialists imprisoned this summer for trying to express their views by leaflet. It was predictable that intellectuals who are critical but not necessarily disloyal to their regimes should ask: "Is she naive? Or is she cynical?"

The alternatives are too sharp. Miss Davis is not naive in the sense that she simply does not know what goes on in the socialist societies of the Warsaw Pact. She has studied too well, and been around too long in Europe, not to know.

Nor is she simply putting on a cynical act in voicing her support for the Soviet brand of Marxism-Leninism. She is, after all, now a Communist, a member of the Central Committee of the United States Communist Party, which compensates for its minute numbers by its devotion to the Soviet political line.

Watching her in action in Prague, some of the answers to these mysteries began to emerge. At a press conference, a Western journalist managed — under barracking from embarrassed Czechoslovak reporters — to ask her directly why she had not responded to the appeals for the imprisoned Czech socialists. She began her reply: "This tour has been primarily to thank the peoples of the Socialist countries where intensive campaigns were waged about my fate . . ."

Her choice of words — "peoples" rather than governments — seemed to be deliberate. She refused to answer the question, merely referring the journalist to her party headquarters and remarking that she was involved in the struggle for political prisoners in her own country "who were fighting for socialism and against imperialism and in the direction of the progressive processes of history." But a certain signal had been made. Nobody should think that Angela Davis is uncritical about the regimes of the Warsaw Pact states.

So, if she may privately be critical, is this graceful warrior for black rights and women's liberation being merely cynical in keeping her thoughts to herself? Not entirely. Her own constituency is the black slums of the American cities, where the struggle is against hunger, unemployment and rats rather than for the more sophisticated values of free speech.

From this point of view, she obviously found much to admire. She said, with sincerity, that she could now tell the blacks, the Mexican-Americans and the Puerto Ricans that "socialism has the answer to their problems . . . I was impressed by low rents and the degree to which women had been emancipated under socialism, and particularly in a place like Uzbekistan where only four or five decades ago women wore long robes and veils and were considered creatures less than human beings."

In the Lucerna, sitting on the platform among elderly Communist Party women and youth leaders with carefully short back-and-sides haircuts, the tall figure of Angela Davis with her huge black dandelion of hair and her copper skin was exotic. And yet there were moments when one felt that she was the only genuine Communist in the hall. The young cheered her because she was brave and had been on trial for her life and was now free. The Czechs on the platform praised her as an example of "engagement," thundered obscurely about the crimes of imperialism, and spoke earnestly of the virtures of loyalty, enthusiasm, work. In nothing that they said was there any specifically socialist or revolutionary message. Youth should be mobilized, and against imperialism, but for what?

Angela was different. She said that "my answer is the seizure of state power by the working class." She used the clenched-fist salute, which means not only Black Power but the pre-war Communist greeting of the Red Front. She talked, indeed, like those old Communists of blazing conviction who are now so rare in Europe. She left her audience a long way behind.

And this, perhaps, is the key. Like so many veterans of the New Left and the student movements of the sixties, Angela Davis has come in from the cold of fighting on two fronts, and fighting without an organized base. She now believes that without a party, nothing can be achieved, and that in the world struggle between socialism and imperialism, that party can only be the party of Lenin.

To buy the support of the Soviet bloc for what she is doing in America, Angela Davis is prepared to say many doubtful things and be silent about many others. It is a road travelled by so many, a road travelled by so many. In Prague, men now expelled from the party shake their heads, not without affection and recollections of their own youth, and wonder how long she will be able to ride the tiger of the party before it devours her.

New Satellites Will Lead Communications Revolution

From the National Geographical Society

Of all the spacecraft put into orbit, none have had more impact than communications satellites.

Television coverage of the Olympic games or a moon walk has become commonplace. Phone calls flow easily among a growing number of nations which once found communication difficult.

By 1971 the global satellite communication system's 10,000 circuits could handle more than 10,000,000 transoceanic calls annually, and the cost of a three-minute New York-to-London conversation had dropped from $9 to $5 in just six years.

Any one of the four present INTELSAT satellites, the latest in a new generation of spacecraft, can carry 6,000 telephone calls simultaneously — more than all transAtlantic cables combined. The last INTELSAT put into orbit in June added 12 television channels to the 48 now available between the United States and other nations.

At last count, 83 countries belonged to the International Telecommunications Satellite Consortium (INTELSAT) managed by the Communications Satellite Corporation (COMSAT), a United States firm.

Late this year Canada will launch the first of a series of spacecraft that will transmit national radio and television programs to its isolated northlands.

Circling the globe in 1973 or 1974, the advanced ATS-F satellite will at first beam educational and medical assistance programs to isolated communities in the northwest.

If all goes well, the following year India will use the spacecraft to send educational programs directly to widely scattered villages where millions of people will be taught to read, write, improve their farming methods, and combat disease.

"That's only the beginning," noted an enthusiastic COMSAT spokesman. "In the future these incredible ears and eyes in the sky may control commercial air traffic, link computers into a worldwide network, provide diagnostic services for doctors, and transmit copies of books or newspapers from one nation to another in minutes."

The armed forces, in putting up their initial set of 26 communications satellites, used several new techniques to save money: assembly line production of identical 100-pound models shaped like tops; the launch of many at a time with one rocket; repair by remote control.

The first seven went up in June 1966. The final eight were dropped above the Equator like beads on a string in June 1968. Each satellite reports to earth how its working parts are behaving and each has a section of "spare parts."

Recording images of the earth from space has become a highly developed specialty. Satellites employing a technique known as "folded optics" — bouncing light between mirrors inside a camera before it reaches the film — can distinguish objects as small as a compact car.

"About this time in the campaigning they get pretty punchy."

All Major Rivers To Be Linked for Irrigation, Inland Transport

India Plans World's Biggest Canal Project

By DAVID WINDER,
from United Nations

India, where much of the land lies parched and cracked under the heat of the blazing sun, will grow greener as a result of the world's biggest water project.

The project is so massive that it will dwarf even the Soviet attempt to divert water from the Siberian rivers to the basin of the Aral Sea.

A UN survey just released stresses the feasibility of a 3,000-kilometre canal network that links all the major rivers in India and will irrigate vast drought-prone regions in south, central, and western India.

The canals also will revolutionize inland transport with a navigation network equalling the combined lengths of the Rhine, the Danube, and Vistula waterways in Europe.

The value to India's 580 million people can be measured thus:

● With 70 per cent of its population dependent on agriculture, one major objective under the new plan is to more than double irrigated areas, from the present eight million hectares to 19 million hectares in the basins of the Sone, Narmuda, Godavari, Krishna, Penner, and Cauvery River basins. The canal also will provide much-needed reserve water for water-scarce areas.

The canal network is expected to become a major navigation route for ferrying bulk cargoes from the south to the industrial north, as well as to the major seaports of the country. It also will be a major means of transporting coal.

The $4-billion-plus plan envisages lifting 25 billion cubic metres of water annually from the Ganges river up 490 metres into a reservoir.

From here, the water will travel along 3,300 kilometres through aqueducts, gravity canals, tunnels, natural water courses and reservoirs before flowing into the southern and western rivers. Secondary feeder canals will get the water to needed regions.

The project, which is expected to take 25 years to complete, emanated from a study made at the request of the Indian government. It was financed by a $24,000 technical-assistance grant given by the United Nations development program, the UN central coordinating body responsible for financing international development programs.

The plan links the Ganges, Brahmaputra, Narmada, Tapti, Godavari, Krishna, Penner, and Cauvery rivers — the entire Indian peninsula in fact.

Canada Brings Joy To Northern India

By K. K. DUGGAL, from New Delhi

Atomic power has arrived in northern Indian states with the coming into operation of the first unit of the Rajasthan Atomic Power Plant (RAPP) at Ranapratap Sagar, Rajasthan state, about 400 miles south of New Delhi.

RAPP, built with Canadian technical and financial assistance, is now pumping 20 megowatts of power into the Rajasthan grid linked with Punjab, Haryana, Himachal and Jammu and Kashmir states. Soon output will be stepped up to 140 megowatts, and by May next year it will have reached 200 megowatts.

The second unit of RAPP, with a rated capacity of 200 megowatts, is scheduled to go into operation in June 1975.

The flow of atomic power into northern India has brought joy to the states of Punjab and Haryana, because lack of rain has caused a severe power crisis. The fall in the water level of the Bakra dam reservoir, where power is generated, forced Punjab and Haryana to impose a 40 per cent cut in supplies, which seriously hit industry.

India's first atomic power station at Tarapur, near Bombay, which went on the line in 1969, feeds western India. The third plant is taking shape at Kalpakkam, near Madras. The fourth will be located at Narora in Uttar Pradesh. Its foundation stone will be laid by Prime Minister Mrs. Indira Gandhi next month.

The Rajasthan plant is a joint Indo-Canadian project which began with the signing of an agreement in 1963. Construction started two years later. The agreement incorporates safeguard clauses against the use of plutonium recovered from the reactor for war purposes.

The plant cost 630 million rupees. Its second unit is estimated to cost 670 million rupees. Sixty per cent of the sophisticated and heavy equipment, like turbo-generators, was imported from Canada. The nuclear design of the plant was prepared by Atomic Energy of Canada Limited and conventional design by the Montreal Engineering Company. Canada also provided engineers and scientists who trained Indian engineers.

Yemen Civil War Dying For Lack Of Help

By KEVIN DOYLE
From London

A British diplomat once cautioned an audience never to hope for peace in the Middle East. He said: "When you have it, thank God for it. Then prepare for a fight."

Smouldering at the steaming southern tip of the Arabian Peninsula is a brutal, bloody conflict, ridden with a history of intrigue and cruelty, which bears out the above words of the late Lord Halifax.

Battles between the tiny states of North and South Yemen, with brothers slaughtering brothers and wives betraying husbands, have been raging sporadically for nearly four years.

Each of the deadly, little-noticed encounters has threatened to shatter the patched-up peace of the entire Middle East.

Now, however, a pattern seems finally to be emerging which may lessen slightly the risks of the fight spreading to an international level.

A formal truce between the Yemen Arab Republic North Yemen and the Democratic Republic of Yemen South Yemen was recently announced after the latest two-month outburst of hostility.

Sources in the West believe the major powers and most Middle Eastern states are rapidly losing interest in the conflict which in the early 1960s attracted mediation efforts by U.S. President John F. Kennedy, the United Nations and Soviet leader Nikita Khrushchev.

They say the easing of the cold war has lessened East-West rivalry for influence in the less-developed world generally. The Middle East states are occupied with the Arab-Israeli struggle and their own internal development and have less time and resources for involvement in Yemen.

But perhaps the most important reason for the loss of interest is the realization that the two Yemens have little or nothing to offer of commercial value.

North Yemen has some scant mineral resources but little else which would attract investment or even aid. Its population of about five million lives in primitive conditions well below the poverty line.

Russia still supplies a small amount of military assistance to both Yemens and Libya maintains a trickle of aid to the North. But such major suppliers as Egypt and Saudi Arabia have long ago withdrawn active assistance.

The basic conflict in the Yemens is a tribal one.

In 1948, fighting broke out between royalist forces and republican revolutionaries in North Yemen. The monarchy was finally overthrown in 1962 when Canada was among the first four countries to recognize the new regime.

Saudi Arabia and Jordan continued to support the royalists, with the Egyptians and Russians backing the republicans. In 1965, 25,000 Egyptian troops were still fighting royalist remnants in Yemen.

When the British withdrew from their protectorate of South Yemen in 1967, a communist-oriented government came to power, intent on reuniting the two Yemens and the families and tribes divided by the border.

Fighting has raged ever since and Lord Halifax's pessimistic appraisal gains further credence.

Controversy Banned

By JAMES N. GOODSELL
from Washington

Brazil's military government has given another turn to the screw of firm control that it believes is necessary to protect the country's political stability.

In a series of directives to newspapers, the government has banned all stories and comment on such subjects as presidential succession, terrorist activities, changes in state and federal governments, statements by the Roman Catholic hierarchy, strikes, skyjackings — in short, almost anything that would prove controversial.

The new directives provoked a number of complaints both in and out of Brazil.

The most pungent comment came from Ruy Mesquita, publisher of the respected OEstado de Sao Paulo, which many regard as Brazil's leading daily. Mesquita said in a telegram to justice Minister Alfredo Buzaid:

"On learning of the orders recently issued by you, I felt profoundly humiliated and ashamed — ashamed for the degrading of Brazil to the condition of a little banana republic, or some kind of Uganda, by a government which has lost its reason."

He went on to say that the government had abandoned the course set by the late Marshal Humberto Castelo Branco, who was the first military president after the military takeover of 1964.

In discarding the Castelo Branco course, Mesquita said, the government had embarked "on a course of military dictatorship, of a kind which is out of fashion, even in the Spanish-speaking republics of America."

Mesquita is not alone in his criticism. But the criticism is not being published in Brazilian newspapers and even Mesquita's OEstado did not print his letter. When the Porto Alegre paper Corriero do Povo attempted to publish the texts, its offices were invaded by police before the edition was even printed.

There is sharp disagreement in Brazilian circles over the reasons for imposition of the new regulations. Brazil's press has long existed on the fine line between freedom to publish and official censorship, and there have been numerous instances in the past when the press has been restricted.

But the new regulations go further than before. There are some commentators who think the new orders were imposed because of a struggle within the military, which the government did not want to have publicized.

In recent months, the government has frequently ordered newspapers to refrain from publishing statements by opposition political leaders — even members of the government-established political opposition party. But now the restrictions are blanket ones.

The new Brazilian press laws have been sharply criticized by the Inter-American Press Association's committee on freedom of the press, which warned that "the only lasting progress is that achieved in an atmosphere of absolute freedom and respect for the fundamental rights of the citizens."

U.S. University Students Flock to Occult Classes

By DAVID MUTCH, from Madison, Wis.

A lot of bright American college students think the future is in the palm of their hand, says Prof. David C. Lindberg. What it means —"and it boggled my mind at first," he adds—is that 20 per cent of 231 university juniors and seniors he questioned at the University of Wisconsin expressed trust in palmistry.

Some 23 per cent said they believe in witches, and 18 per cent in astrology. No less than 74 per cent said they believe in extrasensory perception.

A specialist in the history of science, he teaches a course in the history of the occult and pseudoscience at the Madison campus. Teaching the course with him is a colleague in the same field, Prof. Robert Siegfried.

It is only their second year at it, but 100 students had to be turned away when this year's course began in August. The students surveyed are the ones who enrolled and may be more prone to such beliefs, the professors agree. But they add that this trend is repeated in campuses across the country, although comprehensive statistics are not available. Courses on the subject have multiplied of late, some at the high-school level.

The students are warned at their first lecture, Professor Lindberg explains, that one of the objectives of the coarse is to make them more skeptical in the area of the occult. "We are not missionaries of skepticism," he says, "but we are skeptical, and some of it rubs off." A poll he took at the end of last year's course showed students tended then to have more doubts about the occult.

He goes on: "What we do is raise a different kind of question than the popular press and TV shows. We don't ask, 'Is it true?" We ask, 'Why do you believe what you believe?' We hope to show students that the senses cannot be trusted—that the capacity for self-deception is nearly infinite!"

Both of these teachers warn that the next generation could be "absolute believers" in the power of the occult. Why? One fundamental reason given by Professor Lindberg is that today's rapid social and intellectual change produces the turmoil and anxieties that breed belief in the occult.

"Popularity of the occult rises and falls in the course of history," Professor Lindberg says, "but it flourishes most during times like these." A specialist in the history of the Renaissance, a turbulent period of social and intellectual change, he notes it was a time when the occult flourished.

After the enlightenment, he goes on, mesmerism and what he calls the "romantic reaction came along. In the middle of the 19th century interest in the occult picked up. At the beginning of this century mediums were performing in Manhattan, and "a lot of Harvard professors were sent to prove it just wasn't so," Professor Lindberg notes with some amusement.

But he says that magician and escape artist Harry Houdini and an associate, Joseph Wren, were more effective in unmasking fraudulent claims. They produced many of the same phenomena as did the "mediums," but with "purely natural means," he says.

Today, Lindberg continues, "the press and these sixth-sense TV shows are doing an amazing job of indoctrinating young people." He goes on: "I understand that it is fun to listen to stories about ESP. Eastern religion is involved, in this interest in the occult, but I'm not sure which is cause and effect. But I'd be gratified if the press would include some articles on the other side, showing scientific reasons why there are so many misconceptions in this area.

Professor Lindberg says that some kind of extranormal mental perceptions are "plausible," but he adds the "case is not made yet—and it could of course be much abused if it were so."

Lindberg attacks the reality of the occult on the grounds of the "amazing" ability of humans to see what they believe: "Modern psychology has shown how much our perceptions are conditioned by our expectations, but we underestimate how true that is; and memory is important here, because the further we are from an event, the more we remember it the way our beliefs dictate.

Lindberg says he and Siegfried don't look down on the social and psychological needs a person's beliefs express, but he wants students to learn not to be deceived by them. A witch in the 15th century, he says, "interpreted her own feelings of malice in terms of a personal encounter with the devil—that was a stereotype of her society, and we can see this today."

Our name is the Bank of Montreal.
And we'd like to talk with you.
Because, if you're ever going to take full advantage of what a bank can do for you, we've got to talk.

About you, your life, and the things you want to do. And about us, too, and what we can do to help you to reach your objectives. Come on in, soon. And let's talk.

About budgets.

It's not how much you earn, it's what you do with it. That's where we can help. We can give you our free Money Guide. A little wheel that gives you some idea of how much rent your income will stand, how much transportation you can afford, and interesting things like that.

We can show you all kinds of accounts and services to help you plan your spending and saving. We know which ones are realistic for you and which ones aren't. Simply because we use them ourselves.

And, because your budget and your problems are bound to be different than anyone else's, we can talk.

About homes and home improvements.

Cottages, mobile homes, city homes, country homes, old homes, new homes, duplexes, and even apartments. We've got every kind of financing imaginable from small personal loans to large mortgages.

And we've got an attitude that makes our lending more flexible than most. We'll mortgage where there aren't even paved roads yet. Or we'll lend you enough to improve a solid old house that may not look so good right now.

Or we'll help you improve or extend your present house so you can stay in a neighbourhood you know and like.

The only collateral you need is the house you're going to build, buy or improve. And you'd be surprised at how much of the total value we're willing to lend.

About investments.

We can lend you money to invest in the stock market. Which is a very interesting way to save. And a good way for you to invest in Canadian companies and in Canada's future.

You can pay us as little as $20 a month and you can borrow as much as $10,000. You have to follow a few rules but the rest is up to you. We'll throw in a year's subscription to the Financial Post or the Financial Times. So you can watch the market, the business conditions, and your personal portfolio.

We'll tell you where to find sound, professional advice when you need it, give you a book on the stock market, and a special chart so you can track your progress.

We'll even give you a little folder that explains Bulls and Bears just so you'll know what to call yourself.

About car-buying.

We know what a problem an old car can be and we know what an expense a new car can be. So we're doing as much as we can to get you out from under.
We've got the usual arrangements for car loans with varying terms.
But we've also got a special loan that gives you the full purchase price of the car. You don't need a down payment and you can make your payments on a schedule we'll tailor specially for you. At the same rates that our regular loans offer.
So we know more than a couple of ways to get you the car you need at a good price.

About business.

What started off as a personal loan has often become a business loan because a lot of people got their starts with us. Which means that we know the ins and outs of setting up a company or store. And the ins and outs of keeping it going.
Good small businesses tend to become good big businesses. So we know a thing or two about big corporations and how they work.
And because we're a big corporation ourselves, we know a lot about international banking, computerized payrolls, and export development.
Enough that maybe we can help your big corporation. Or help your little corporation to become a big one.

About a lot of other things.

Anything that you think might be of interest to us probably is. Because it's in our best interest to have you get more out of life.
If we don't have the answers you want, we'll try to get them for you. And that's a promise.

Law Firm's Bill Chopped $60,000 for Woman Client

VANCOUVER (CP) — The B.C. Supreme Court has upheld the action of the district registrar in reducing a lawyer's bill by almost $60,000.

The original bill totalled $65,804.46 and was reduced to $5,958.88.

Mr. Justice J. G. Gould, in a written judgment handed down Monday, said the original bill was so inflated that he compared it "to a galactic explosion in all directions simultaneously."

The Vancouver law firm of Griffiths, McLelland and Co. had asked the court, under a section of the Legal Professions Act, to review the decision of the registrar in the matter of a bill presented to Margaret Milligan.

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government Monday announced an $80 million project to develop a new short-take-off-and-landing airplane by de Havilland Aircraft of Canada, while also announcing an option to take over the firm.

But Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin made it clear the government has no immediate plans to buy the operation — "it is just one of many possibilities" — as he enthusiastically unveiled plans to develop a new four-engine, 48-passenger aircraft.

The plane will be called the DHC-7 and two are scheduled to be built before the spring of 1975. Pepin said a conservative estimate of sales for the following five years is 150 planes, "with good prospects for sales of 450 to 500."

United Aircraft of Canada Ltd., will build new turboprop engines for the high-winged aircraft.

OTTAWA (CP) — The chairman of Bushnell Communications of Ottawa said Monday a proposed takeover of his company by a Vancouver-based broadcasting firm would be a "backward step."

Ernest Bushnell said his firm, which owns CJOH-TV in Ottawa, is not in need of financial assistance, nor did it fear the future in spite of the probability that two more commercial television stations might begin operating in Bushnell's coverage area.

Bushnell appeared Monday before the CRTC, which was hearing the application by Western Broadcasting Co. Ltd. Western was asking for CRTC approval to buy 10 per cent of the shares of Bushnell Communications.

STOL Project Off the Ground

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government Monday announced an $80 million project to develop a new short-take-off-and-landing airplane by de Havilland Aircraft of Canada, while also announcing an option to take over the firm.

But Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin made it clear the government has no immediate plans to buy the operation — "it is just one of many possibilities" — as he enthusiastically unveiled plans to develop a new four-engine, 48-passenger aircraft.

The plane will be called the DHC-7 and two are scheduled to be built before the spring of 1975. Pepin said a conservative estimate of sales for the following five years is 150 planes, "with good prospects for sales of 450 to 500."

United Aircraft of Canada Ltd., will build new turbo-prop engines for the high-winged aircraft.

Pepin's department will provide roughly $45 million to de Havilland under the Defence Industrial Productivity Program, while the company will spend approximately $10 million. United Aircraft, which will receive about $12 million from Ottawa, will spend about $4 million.

More than $7 million has already been spent on development of STOL aircraft, which is included in the "ballpark figure" of $80 million.

B. B. Bundesman, president of de Havilland, who attended a news conference with Pepin, said the DHC-7 will be "the quietest transport airplane ever offered on the market." It will fly at 275 miles an hour and operate from runways of 2,000 feet.

He said that mithout this project, de Havilland would be in danger of losing its research team of some 325 individuals, "undoubtedly the best in the world in this area."

Pepin said the development of the two prototypes will mean some 1,500 jobs in 1973 and 1974. When full-scale production begins, an estimated 3,000 jobs will be involved.

Between 85 and 90 per cent of the plane's content would come from Canadian plants.

"Qualified and competent companies from all parts of Canada will be given an opportunity to bid on such contracts."

Initial contracts had been made with potential airline customers around the world, and de Havilland had reached an agreement with the Boeing Aircraft Co. in the United States for a joint marketing program.

Thor Stephenson, president of United Aircraft, said the new more powerful engines will have pollution emission standards well below any known acceptance limits. His firm employs some 4,400, compared with about 1,500 at de Havilland.

Possible 3,000 jobs

The option agreement reached by the government and the parent Hawker Siddeley Ltd., for the possible purchase of de Havilland was described by Pepin as "complex."

The option extends to June 30, 1974, and the minister said it was really a "precautionary measure" so the government could keep all options open toward the rationalization of the airframe industry in Canada. It could result in another private firm taking over the company, with some government participation, or the government could assume control. No decision had been reached on whether the Canadian Development Corp. would be involved in any government participation.

Pepin said any government purchase would be based on the firm's value prior to the project announced Monday.

Bundesman said the DHC-7, powered by the new PT6A-50 engines, will be a natural follow to the company's Twin-Otter planes, of which 350 have been sold.

Smelter Fate?

Hello Yukon Bye, Bye B.C.

WHITEHORSE (CP) — Arthur Laing, former minister of Northern Development, said Sunday that if B.C. cuts out grants to industry the first copper smelter in the west will be built in the Yukon not in B.C.

Senator Laing referred to a statement last week by Premier Dave Barrett in which Barrett said there would be no subsidies or grants to industries. He said Barrett is wrong if it is his policy to stop provincial government assistance, and said this would cut B.C. out of the smelter picture.

Cominco said last week it is negotiating with the provincial government for assistance in building a copper smelter at Kimberley. The federal government has promised a grant of $1.5 million.

Laing, speaking at a public meeting, said the Liberal government has already made promises of aid to industry and that if B.C. doesn't want to share assistance the Yukon surely will.

The industrialists are waiting to see what Barrett will do and if they aren't happy "then it's hello Yukon."

Strike Action Wanes In Busy GM Plants

DETROIT (AP) — The United Auto Workers union called off its strike at the main General Motors stamping plant in Mansfield, Ohio, Monday and averted a strike at the Buick plant in Flint, Mich.

The walkout of 2,300 at the Mansfield plant began Friday and the automaker and the union said if it had lasted it could have imperilled all GM assembly operations.

Strikers at the Mansfield plant were protesting the speed of the assembly line as well as the number of employees on it.

The union reached a last-minute agreement to keep some 5,000 employees on the job in Flint. Some foundry employees who had not been informed of the settlement were reported to have left the plant.

Union officials at the Buick plant gates in Flint told the men to return to their jobs.

The GM plant in Doraville, Ga., however, remained on strike Monday, apparently as part of a UAW plan of limited, scattered strikes against GM, centring on assembly line speed.

In St. Louis, meanwhile, a Sunday agreement between the union and the automaker was to return some 8,000 strikers to their jobs today. They were protesting alleged assmebly line speedups.

Details of the Flint agreement were not released.

Local 599 president Albert Christner said the Buick dispute was unrelated to other GM strikes.

Takeover Viewed 'Backward Step'

OTTAWA (CP) — The chairman of Bushnell Communications of Ottawa said Monday a proposed takeover of his company by a Vancouver-based broadcasting firm would be a "backward step."

Ernest Bushnell said his firm, which owns CJOH-TV in Ottawa, is not in need of financial assistance, nor did it fear the future in spite of the probability that two more commercial television stations might begin operating in Bushnell's coverage area.

A new television netwoak, Global Communications, approved earlier this year by the Canadian Radio-Television Commission, is expected to begin operations in southern Ontraio in 1974.

Bushnell appeared Monday before the CRTC, which was hearing the application by Western Broadcasting Co. Ltd. Western was asking for CRTC approval to buy 10 per cent of the shares of Bushnell Communications.

Western now owns about 46 per cent of the shares of the company. The additional 10 per cent would give the Vancouver firm majority ownership.

If majority ownership is not allowed, Western would not wish to be an investor in Bushnell, Frank Griffiths, Western president, told the commission.

Bushnell said in a prepared statement that he saw nothing wrong with a joining of forces between the two companies, but he said that Western had acquired "a much larger share of the equity of our company than I would have preferred."

He said Bushnell Communications, in difficulty about two years ago, had been able to improve its financial and production position.

Oils, B.C. Stocks Continue Down

TORONTO (CP) — With the western oil index recording its sharpest drop in almost a year, prices once again closed sharply lower in moderate trading Monday.

Western oils plunged 6.99 to 248.59. It was the sharpest decline since Nov. 22, 1971.

British Columbia-based stocks also continued to slip.

Westcoast closed at $224, down 1¼ and Inland at $11¾, down ⅜.

Pacific Pete, which owns 22 per cent of Westcoast Transmission, closed at $38⅛, down 4½.

Other British Columbia stocks registering losses were B.C. Sugar down ¼ to $19¾, B.C. Telephone 1 to $56, MacMillan Bloedel ⅛ to $24 and Cominco 1 to $26½. Doman Industries slipped 1⅛ to $12¼.

IBM Factor

NEW YORK (AP) — The justice department's announced intention to break up the IBM, largest United States computer company, coupled with all the other factors which have been troubling the stock market recently, produced a drop in stock prices Monday. IBM plunged 14½ to 364½.

The New York Stock Exchange index of some 1,400 common stocks lost .61 for the day to close at 58.49.

Pacific Petroleum Ltd., was the big board's most-active issue, down 4¼ to $39. A company spokesman attributed the drop to a statement by the government of British Columbia that it might nationalize Westcoast Transmission which is 26 per cent owned by Pacific.

Light Trade

MONTREAL (CP) — All sectors declined in light trading.

Most active industrial was Brascan, off ½ to $19½ on 22,883 shares exchanged. In the mining sector, most active was Atlantic Tungsten, unchanged at 60 cents on 78,000 shares traded.

Prices Off

VANCOUVER — Prices were off in moderate trading. Most active industrial was All-Canadian American Investments, unchanged at 55 cents on a turnover of 320,100 shares. Gunn led mining issues off 36 cents at .80. Nitracel added a penny to .21.

Copper Fight

Rotterda Ship fro

ROTTERDAM (UPI) — The Rotterdam district court Monday night issued a confiscation order for all the Chilean copper aboard the German freighter Birte Olendorff. The order was made at the request of the Kennecott Copper Corp., court sources said.

The court said the copper could remain on board ship and the ship could leave Rotterdam harbor. But, the court said, the copper would be confiscated if unloaded.

Trade union representatives said they planned to meet to discuss the court order.

Representatives from the governments of Zambia, Zaire (Congo), Peru and Chile gathered in the Nobel Tower of Paris' new skyscraper area to discuss action against Kennecott. The four nations are

Hughes Tool Goes Public

HOUSTON (UPI) — Billionaire Howard Hughes will sell the oil tools division of his Hughes Tool Co. in an estimated $140 million public stock offering, it was announced Monday.

The oil tools division will spin off and actually become the Hughes Tool Co. in name. The parent company will reform under the name of the Summa Corp., an official with the Securities and Exchange Commission said.

It is the first public offering of Hughes Tool Co. stock. The company was founded by Howard Hughes Sr. in 1908 to develop, manufacture and distribute a rock drilling bit held under patent.

The company was the foundation of the Hughes financial empire.

"The new company was formed to acquire the business and assets of the oil tools division of the present Hughes Tool Co.," the SEC official said.

The official said Hughes Tool's prospectus estimates the maximum offering price at $28 a share with about 5 million shares offered. Twenty million shares will be authorized.

Hughes was 19 when his father died in 1924 and he inherited the bulk of the tool company. He purchased the outstanding 25 per cent from two uncles and the company was valued at $1.3 million.

The rock bit had cutters that would roll on the bottom instead of dragging. It was a universal success.

The oil tool division had $4.2 million in profits in 1971.

Rotterdam Stops Ship from Chile

ROTTERDAM (UPI) — The Rotterdam district court Monday night issued a confiscation order for all the Chilean copper aboard the German freighter Birte Olendorff. The order was made at the request of the Kennecott Copper Corp., court sources said.

The court said the copper could remain on board ship and the ship could leave Rotterdam harbor. But, the court said, the copper would be confiscated if unloaded.

Trade union representatives said they planned to meet to discuss the court order.

Representatives from the governments of Zambia, Zaire (Congo), Peru and Chile gathered in the Nobel Tower of Paris' new skyscraper area to discuss action against Kennecott. The four nations are members of the inter-governmental Council of Copper Exporting Countries.

Kennecott won a court order in Paris freezing the payment for the arriving copper on grounds that the U.S. firm was not properly paid for its nationalized mines in Chile. The government of Marxist president Salvador Allende claimed Kennecott was indemnified sufficiently because it took excess profits during its management of the mines.

The copper was to have been unloaded in Le Havre for delivery to French firms Sunday but dock workers refused to touch it. The German freighter then continued on to Rotterdam.

Russia, U.S. Sign Port Pact

WASHINGTON (AP) — After what President Nixon described as "some very hard negotiations," the United States and the Soviet Union Saturday signed a maritime agreement hailed as opening the way for vastly expanded trade between the two superpowers.

The three-year pact is the first to be completed of three major U.S.-Soviet economic agreements being negotiated. It provides that:

- Forty ports in each nation will be opened to easier access by the other's merchant ships.
- Each country's ships will carry up to one-third of the seaborne trade between them.

The pact was signed as an executive agreement, rather than a treaty, which would have required Senate ratification.

U.S. Anti-Trust Suit

IBM Breakup Long-Range Goal

NEW YORK (AP) — The government announced Monday its long-range goal in an anti-trust suit against International Business Machines Corp. — a breakup of the vast multi-billion-dollar firm into separate, competing units.

Should the government win the anti-trust suit, the justice department said in a memorandum to federal Judge David Edelstein, it then would seek to "dissipate the enormous market power of the current IBM computer manufacturing and marketing structure."

Its computer operations were the main source of IBM's $8.3 billion in revenues last year.

Following the justice department's memorandum, trading in IBM on the New York Stock Exchange was suspended about two hours because of a rash of orders. At that time, the stock was trading at 376¼, down 2¾ from its opening. When trading resumed, the stock continued to sink, closing at 364.50, down $14.50.

Edelstein recessed the case to study the memorandum and IBM's reply.

To replace the present IBM structure, the government said it would seek "formation of the total domestic and international computer systems facilities of IBM into several separate, independent and competitive balanced entities capable of competing successfully in domestic and international markets with one another and with other domestic and foreign competitors."

IBM lawyer Thomas Barr pointed to the 3½ years already consumed in preliminaries to the trial of the government suit. He said the memorandum contained the first mention of IBM international markets and showed that the government was "trying to move away from, rather than toward trial."

"It all shows that the government just doesn't have a case," Barr told Judge Edelstein. "The government wasn't ready before, and it just trebled the size of its case."

The government admitted it was seeking a more thorough and detailed analysis of IBM markets here and abroad, and that this would require additional pre-trial hearings for an indefinite period.

In demanding a prompt trial, Barr pleaded on behalf of IBM for "the fundamental right to protect its good name and reputation and to vindicate its business conduct against an unnecessarily prolonged, dilatory and misinformed prosecution by the federal government."

IBM renewed its not guilty claim to anti-trust charges. It has cited 60 computer systems manufacturers and 4,000 firms engaged in computer-related work as evidence in its opinion that the business is "open and strongly competitive."

IBM was sued Jan. 17, 1969, on the last business day of the Johnson administration, in the biggest anti-monopoly action ever brought by the government.

The government charged that IBM discouraged competition in vilation of anti-trust laws by shaving profit margins in some areas to obtain business, or even taking a loss.

IBM was accused of achieving computer dominance in the education market by offering exceptional allowances to universities and schools.

The justice department began its investigation into IBM in 1965. Since then the firm's share of the multi-billion-dollar sales and lease market for computers has been estimated as high as 74 per cent.

The government's memorandum of intent to break up IBM apparently scuttled any hope of a consent settlement, whereby the corporation and the government would agree on a limited satisfaction of demands set forth in the suit.

Growth Money: How three businesses found it.

Printer inks a merger agreement.
The owner of the small printing firm, with $250,000 volume, needed credit to complete the take-over of another company. Bank of Montreal financed part of his purchase price and also provided a new line of credit to support the increase in his sales volume.

Flexibility for growing stamping plant.
A metal stamping plant with $1,500,000 in sales was feeling growth pains. Some machinery needed replacing and they wished to expand their premises. Bank of Montreal advanced a medium-term loan geared to cash flow and repayment from earnings.

Young plastics company with $575,000 sales volume seeks expansion.
Orders were coming in faster than they could be filled. The company decided to move to a larger plant. They found their location but needed money to close the deal. We came through with interim financing fast.

Oakland Pitching Series Difference

CP-AP

OAKLAND — Pitching has proved to be the difference in the first two games of baseball's 1972 world series.

Oakland Athletics have had the pitching, and clutch fielding, and take a 2-0 lead into tonight's third game of the annual classic.

Cincinnati Reds, the National League champions, have managed only three runs and 13 hits in the two games, and most of that offence came in the first five innings of the opener against Ken Holtsman.

Relievers Rollie Fingers and Vida Blue preserved that victory.

Jim "Catfish" Hunter, with last-out help from Fingers and an amazing catch by Joe Rudi, held Cincinnati to one run in Sunday's 2-1 win at Riverfront Stadium.

"I'm not going to panic yet," said Sparky Anderson, manager of the Reds, on arriving in Oakland, Monday.

Anderson, who had predicted before the series started it would go the full seven games, said he was more certain than ever now.

Why?

"Because I think it will be awfully tough to win in six," quipped Anderson.

Only five teams have lost the first two games and still come back to win the championship. Last year, Baltimore held a 2-0 lead on Pittsburgh before the Pirates won three straight games and, the title in seven.

Reds whipped the Pirates in the National League playoffs to reach the showdown against Oakland and some of the players believe Cincinnati hasn't quite recovered from that emotional series.

"I don't want to make excuses," Pete Rose, the Reds' captain said, "but it's just that we put so much into the series in Pittsburgh. To us, that was the world series, not this."

Rose had nine hits in the five games with the Pirates. He has one against Oakland.

The Athletics returned to a huge welcome from a city that has not supported the club well at the gate.

A throng of 10,000 greeted the Athletics on Sunday and manager Dick Williams could hardly believe it.

"That was an incredible sight. I think we may have finally caught on here."

Owner Charles O. Finley tore up Williams' recently signed contract and rewrote it for higher terms on the flight west.

Finley also gave Rudi a $5,000 bonus for his spectacular catch, a ninth-inning backhand stab at the left-field wall. Rudi also homered in the third inning to score what proved to be the winning run. The homer came off Ross Grimsby, the first of three Cincinnati pitchers.

Athletics had the day off on Monday while the scheduled Cincinnati practice was washed out by rain.

The U.S. weather service predicted a 30 per cent chance of showers for tonight's game in which Athletics plan to send John "Blue Moon" Odom to the mound, with the Reds countering with Jack Billingham.

Odom, a 15-game winner during the American League season, got credit for two wins in the playoff series with Detroit Tigers. Billingham was 12-12 for 1972.

Reds plan to start Don Gullett in the fourth game while the Athletics have switched to Holtzman from Blue. Blue had been promised the fourth game start, but his relief work has been so effective that Williams has decided to keep him in the bullpen.

Next games: Tonight—Medicine Hat at VICTORIA, Swift Current at Saskatoon.

Tigers, who make their first appearance of the season at Memorial Arena tonight, led the league with 351 goals in 68 games last season.

This season, the Jack Shupe-coached club has 28 goals in four starts and a share of first place in the Western Division.

But Victoria Cougars aren't conceding a thing, especially after Saturday's impressive 5-2 win over Edmonton Oil Kings.

"Edmonton had a 24-3 record in three games before Saturday," Cougar coach Mitch Pechet said Monday. "They way the league has been going so far it seems any club can come up with a big game, no matter what their record is."

Pechet will again platoon his goalkeepers, Sam Clegg and Blaine Ferguson, and he will not name a starter until game time. Other than that, the lineup is intact and relatively injury free.

Tigers are led by the potent unit of Tom Lysiak between Lanny McDonald and Boyd Anderson. The trio accounted for 288 points, including 111 goals in the 1971-72 campaign.

Game time tonight is 8 o'clock.

Rob Watt, Blaine Stoughton and Al Hillier scored third-period goals to overcome a 3-1 deficit. Del Iannone was the other Bomber marskman.

U.S. Keeps Davis Cup

BUCHAREST (AP) — They clapped Sunday when Stan Smith served a fault.

But the Wimbledon champion prevailed and beat Ion Tiriac in a five-set thriller, returning the Davis Cup tennis trophy to the U.S. for the fifth straight year.

It was the fifth consecutive time that Smith had scored the decisive point as the Americans defeated Romania, 3-2, in the best-of-five series.

Smith, the Wimbledon Champion overcame Tiriac, 4-6, 6-2, 6-4, 2-6, 6-0, after what he called "the worst officiating I have ever had."

That gave the Americans an unbeatable 3-1 lead and assured retention of the cup. Ilie Nastase then outlasted Tom Gorman, 6-1, 6-2, 5-7, 10-8, in the final match.

The Smith-Tiriac duel was a three-hour drama of unrelieved tension with an undercurrent of ill-feeling.

The 6000 fans at the Progresul Stadium roared for Tiriac and clapped whenever Smith served a fault. Smith apparently got the worst of a stream of disputed calls — and the crowd shouted and whistled every time he argued over a decision.

Sometimes the line judges applauded Tiriac's winning shots. The match also produced some magnificent tennis by the 33-year-old Tiriac, who made a tremendous bid to bring the cup to a Communist country for the first time.

Defensive Back Sparks 'Lomas

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver Meralomas advanced to the British Columbia-Alberta junior football final Sunday with a 26-6 victory over North Shore Cougars.

It was Vancouver defensive halfback Tim Baker who paced the way for the Meralomas with four interceptions, scoring one touchdown and setting up another touchdown.

Baker's first interception came in the first quarter on a pass by Gary Stenbart and on the next play Meralomas' Danny Smith hit Grant Medhurst with a 30-yard pass for a touchdown. Smith hit Lee Chan near the end of the second quarter with a 10-yard toss as Vancouver took a 14-6 lead at the half.

All Cougars' points came in the first quarter as Chris Bennett kicked field goals from 31 and 25 yards out.

Other Vancouver touchdowns were scored by Andy Perry on a nine-yard run and Baker, who returned an intercepted pass 40 yards for a touchdown with one minute left in the game. Don Foreman converted two of the four majors.

Meralomas meet Calgary Colts next Sunday.

Colts Fire McCafferty

BALTIMORE (AP) — Don McCafferty, who directed Baltimore Colts to a Super Bowl title as a rookie head coach in 1970, was fired today by the National Football League team.

Defensive line-coach John Sandusky, who like McCafferty has been with the Colts since 1959, was named head coach for the remainder of the season.

Today's game will be telecast on Channels 2, 5 and 6 starting at 5 p.m.

Packer Rally Nips Lions

A perfect 15-yard touchdown strike, thrown by Scott Hunter to LeLand Glass in the corner of the end zone, tied the score with 1:54 remaining and Chester Marcol kicked the winning conversion.

An interception and fumble had helped Detroit build a 17-0 lead early in the second quarter but the Packers got to 7-17 by half time then took over in the fourth quarter which started with Lions leading 20-10.

Gaining possession with 9:35 left, Packers, now 4-1, used up seven minutes and 28 seconds in moving the ball 84 yards in 14 plays for the final score on which Glass got behind Rudy Redmond.

Quarterback Greg Landry scored for Lions on a two-yard plunge in the first quarter after cornerback Lem Barney intercepted a Hunter pass and returned it to the Packer 30-yard line.

Mann kicked a 12-yard field goal early in the second quarter then MacArthur Lane fumbled on the first play after the kickoff and linebacker Wayne Walker recovered and romped 14 yards to the 11-yard line.

Sunday's 12 games were highlighted by injuries to three quarterbacks, continued stress on running attacks and a few more surprise results.

Severest of the injuries was the one which may have sidelined Bob Griese of Miami Dolphins for the season. He was carried off the field in the first quarter and it was announced that he had suffered a leg fracture and had a dislocated ankle.

Earl Morrall, 38-year-old veteran obtained from Baltimore Colts just in case this sort of misfortune should happen to them, took over and threw two touchdown passes to bring the unbeaten Dolphins their fifth win — a 24-10 decision over San Diego Padres.

John Brodie of San Francisco 49ers and Mike Livingston of Kansas City Chiefs were the other quarterbacks put out of action Sunday, but both had lesser injuries.

Brodie was injured in the last minute of play as he was battling to avoid an upset loss to New York Giants. He was reported to have a badly-sprained left ankle and is a doubtful starter for the next game. His replacement, Steve Spurrier, had a last-gasp pass intercepted in the end zone and the Giants hung on for a 23-17 triumph.

Livingston, who replaced the injured Len Dawson the previous week and made his record as a starter 11-0, had to turn it back to Dawson in the second half of the game against Cincinnati Bengals. Dawson managed 10-3 and 13-3 leads but the Bengals came on for a 23-16 victory which gave them the lead in their division.

Other Sunday highlights:

● Joe Namath threw only nine passes in leading New York Jets past New England Patriots, 41-13. Emerson Boozer and John Riggins made passing unnecessary with power running, combining for 318 yards. Boozer carried 18 times for 150 yards and three touchdowns while Riggins got one touchdown and 168 yards from 32 carries;

● Minnesota Vikings barely avoided a fourth defeat with the day's best comeback. Trailing by 16-20 when Floyd Little scored a converted touchdown with 53 seconds remaining, the Vikings managed to eke out a 23-20 win over Denver Broncos. Fran Tarkenton did it with three passes, the last a 31-yard play with Gene Washington, who crossed the goal line with 17 seconds left;

● Atlanta Falcons overcame five fumbles and an 0-14 deficit to take New Orleans Saints, 21-14, when Bob Berry threw touchdown passes to Jim Mitchell, twice, and Ken Burrow;

● Craig Morton's short-passing game carried Dallas Cowboys past Baltimore Colts, 21-0. Morton completed 21 of 30 passes, 10 of them in a row and two for touchdowns;

● Rookie-fullback Franco Harris rushed for 115 yards and scored once to lead Pittsburgh Steelers to a 24-7 win over Houston Oilers;

● Quarterback Bobby Douglass, who gets more yardage rushing than he does passing, carried the ball for 115 yards and scored on a 57-yard jaunt as Chicago Bears bested Cleveland Browns, 17-0. A ferocious defence held the Browns to 37 yards, in 23 carries, on the ground and allowed only nine first downs.

Orr Not Ready Yet—Johnson

Bobby Orr isn't ready to return to the National Hockey League and his coach isn't sure when the superstar defenceman will see action.

Reports from Boston Saturday had indicated that Orr would play on Sunday when the Bruins hosted Pittsburgh Penguins.

But Orr wasn't in the lineup and on Monday, coach Tom Johnson explained why.

"I watched him skating Friday. He was skating all right, perhaps but he was not skating like Orr and that is the important thing."

Johnson said Orr, who had extensive knee surgery in the off-season, wants to get back in action, but added "he'll help us a lot more if he waits for a while, until he is really 100 per cent."

Bruins scored their second win in as many nights by whipping the Penguins, 8-4.

On Saturday, Bruins broke into the win column with a 7-4 decision over New York Islanders.

Wayne Cashman and Phil Esposito scored two goals each for Bruins, who handed Penguins their first loss.

Bruins are four points behind Detroit Red Wings, who are leading the Eastern Division with four victories in as many starts.

Detroit hammered the weary Los Angeles Kings, 8-2, Sunday to take a one-point edge over Buffalo Sabres and Montreal Canadiens, the only other unbeaten NHL clubs.

Mickey Redmond and Gary Bergman each scored twice for Detroit, off to its fastest start in the club's 47-year history.

Kings, playing their fourth game in five nights, finally hit the scoreboard early in the third period on a goal by Juha Widing.

In Buffalo, Sabres jumped to a 3-0 lead and held on to score a 3-2 win over Toronto Maple Leafs. Sabres and Canadiens, who were not scheduled Sunday, each have three wins and a tie in four outings.

Western Division action was highlighted by St. Louis Blues' 3-1 upset of the previously-unbeaten Black Hawks in Chicago.

It marked the first time Blues had won in Chicago since the Blues entered the NHL six years ago. The win was also the first for St. Louis against the Black Hawks anywhere since Jan. 16, 1971, and snapped a winless streak against Chicago at 11 games.

Oak Bay held on to its lead in the Vancouver Island Soccer League Sunday — but only just.

Young and Nettles Award Nominees

MONTREAL (CP) — The results of first-round balloting to pick this season's top performers in the Canadian Football League show seven players nominated in more than one category.

And the results, released Monday, show the seven among 36 picked for the annual Schenley awards by 96 sports writers and broadcasters in the nine CFL cities.

This year marks the 20th anniversary of the outstanding player award by the distillery. To commemorate the birthday, the organizers have added a rookie-of-the-year category to the regular lineman-of-the-year and Canadian player-of-the-year awards.

Only two players, fullback Jim Young of British Columbia Lions, nominated for outstanding player and top Canadian, and Ron Lancaster, quarterback with the Saskatchewan Roughriders, also in the outstanding class, were previous winners.

Young, along with teammate Ray Nettles, end Gerry Shaw of Calgary Stampeders, Saskatchewan's Bill Baker, halfback Eric Allan of Toronto Argonauts, Dick Adams from Ottawa Rough Riders, and lineman Ed George of Montreal Alouettes, all were nominated for two awards.

Young was voted top Canadian in 1970, the same year Lancaster won the outstanding-player vote.

First-round balloting nominates four players from each team as outstanding player, Canadian player, top lineman and top rookie.

Second-round ballot results, announced Oct. 26, will reduce the nominees to eight, four from the Eastern Football Conference and four from the Western Football Conference.

Following is a list of nominees in the various categories:

Outstanding Player: Jim Young, George McGowan, Edmonton Eskimos; Ron Lancaster, Saskatchewan; Mack Herron, Winnipeg Blue Bombers; Garney Henley, Hamilton Tiger-Cats; Eric Allen, Toronto; Dick Adams, Ottawa; Ed George, Montreal.

Hemorrhage Proves Fatal

EDMONTON (CP) — Dick Suderman, all-star defensive end with Edmonton Eskimos, died in University Hospital Monday of a brain hemorrhage.

Suderman

Suderman, 31, suffered the hemorrhage Sunday while having coffee with teammates of his Western Football Conference club in a restaurant. He died at 2:15 p.m. Monday.

"All of a sudden he got a real bad headache," said Bobby Taylor, Eskimos' flanker. Suderman then became violently ill and was taken to hospital by ambulance.

Eskimos club doctor Ian McInnes said Suderman "had a cerebral hemorrhage that was caused by a ballooning of a small artery of the brain."

It does not appear related to football, said Dr. McInnes.

"Most people with this are born with it. It could have happened a year ago or 10 years ago."

Suderman, a father of three children aged four to eight, came to the Eskimos in a trade with Calgary Stampeders Wednesday.

He played in the Eskimos' 22-16 loss to British Columbia Lions Saturday in Vancouver.

Argos End Stampeder Hopes Bombers Edge Roughriders

Western playoff competitors were determined Sunday but the Eastern Conference race in the Canadian Football League is still undecided.

Calgary Stampeders, the defending Grey Cup champions, were eliminated from the post-season action when Toronto Argonauts scored a 33-27 win in the Alberta city.

Toronto moved to within two points of third place and the last playoff spot, in the Eastern Conference.

And in other Sunday action, Winnipeg Blue Bombers rallied for a last-minute touchdown and a 28-25 win over the visiting Saskatchewan Roughriders.

Winnipeg, which stretched its home unbeaten streak to 12 games, now leads the WFC with a 9-4 record and leads Edmonton Eskimos by two points.

Saskatchewan, at 7-6, has clinched the third playoff berth.

Quarterback Joe Theismann, who appears to be fully recovered from an ankle injury which sidelined him for a good part of the season, threw three touchdown passes. He sent Bill Symons over from two yards in the fourth quarter for the other major score.

Theismann, who completed 21 of 29 passes, threw scoring strikes to Tony Moro, Symons and Mike Eben. Ivan MacMillan converted the four touchdowns and also booted a 32-yard field goal.

Argos picked up two more points when Calgary's John Senst conceded a safety touch in the final minute.

De Costa Flawless In Soccer Return

Coach Larry De Costa stepped into the nets after a seven-year absence Sunday and recorded a shutout as Gorge Molsons blanked Inter-Italia, 2-0.

The match was the first of the season in the Pacific Coast Soccer League.

The Vancouver team played excellent mid-field soccer but the young Gorge defenders gave a superb display and gave the visiting forwards few direct shots on goal.

The shots they did get were all handled capably by De Costa, an outstanding goalkeeper before he was forced into retirement by an injury seven years ago.

Forwards Dan Henry and Garnet Moen scored for Gorge.

Coast League play was to have opened Saturday with a game between Victoria West-United and Paul's Canadians in Vancouver but a player shortage caused postponement of that match and one Sunday between North Shore Labatts and Westminster Blues.

Oak Bay Clings To Island Lead

Oak Bay held on to its lead in the Vancouver Island Soccer League Sunday — but only just.

John Hughes and Robert Gutierrez scored as Oak Bay battled back for a 2-2 draw with University of Victoria Vikings at Heywood Avenue Park.

Victory would have meant a first-place tie for the Vikings, who got their goals from Bob Baker and Ross Woodland.

Nanaimo moved into third place by downing Courtenay, 3-1, in Nanaimo and, at Topaz Park, Cosmopolitan Royals and Lusitanos tied, 1-1.

Playing-coach Gil McIlraith got Royals' goal and Steve Bowers scored for Lusitanos.

In Division I of the Victoria and District League, London Boxing Club and Victoria West stayed in a deadlock for first place by tieing, 1-1.

Danny Bell and Denniss Magee scored three goals each to lead Gorge to a 9-4 romp over UVic Norsemen.

It was bonus day Monday for Victoria Tyees.

Using great teamwork in the second half, Tyees swept to a 5-0 victory over Claremont in a Victoria Senior High School Soccer League game at Claremont.

And the Tyees picked up an unexpected extra two points when league officials rectified an error made earlier when both Victoria and Mount View were penalized for using over-age players.

Officials said that points from the match between Victoria and Mt. Douglas on Sept. 29 — won, 5-1, by the Tyees but later awarded by default to the Rams — were to go to Vic High as the over-age player was not used in that game.

This left the schools in a fifth-place tie with eight points each.

Steve Forslund's goal gave Tyees a 1-0 lead at half time after a lacklustre first half but they came back strongly in the second half and added a goal by Peter Thompson and then a hat-trick by Gary McLaren.

It was the fourth shutout of the season for Dan Wilmhurst.

Brad Clarke scored two goals and Tom Wood, Sam Bender and Jim Humphreys got a goal each at Mount View as the Hornets crushed Esquimalt, 5-1. Peter Barton got the Esquimalt goal.

And at Reynolds, both goalkeepers — Glen Robbins for the host school and Brian Foley for Belmont — played well to earn shutouts and 0-0 result.

T-Bird Win No Surprise

University of British Columbia Thunderbirds didn't surprise anyone when they won the first annual Canada West University Athletic Association rugby tournament Sunday.

Thunderbirds, hot favorites to take the title, won their first two games in the four-team, round-robbin tourney, 40-18 and 43-10, and downed the University of Alberta Golden Bears from Edmonton, 16-4, in Sunday's final game at Centennial Stadium.

University of Alberta, Calgary, defeated University of Victoria Vikings, 22-9, in Sunday's other match and captured second place with two wins and one loss.

Edmonton trailed only 4-6 at half time and continued to press UBC for most of the second half. However, the Golden Bears tired toward the end, and the Thunderbirds ripped over for two tries, one of them converted, in the last 10 minutes.

The tries were scored by Lee Hillier and Chris Hinkson and Mel Reeves, a former UVic player now at UBC, booted the conversion and two penalties.

Vikings, who placed third in the tourney with one win, got a try from Roger Conrad, a conversion by Rick Couch and a penalty goal by Rob Hindson.

No matches were played in the Victoria Rugby Union's Divisions I and II Sunday but in Division III, James Bay Athletic Association downed Saanich Velox, 24-13, Oak Bay Wanderers beat Cowichan, 18-3, and UVic Jutes defeated Castaways, 37-18.

For James Bay, tries were scored by Georges Bombazin (two), Wayne Healey, Gerry Fullerton and Mike Savory and Ron McInnis kicked two conversions. John Howe scored a try, converted it and kicked a penalty goal and Chris Fife got a try for Velox.

Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids... and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

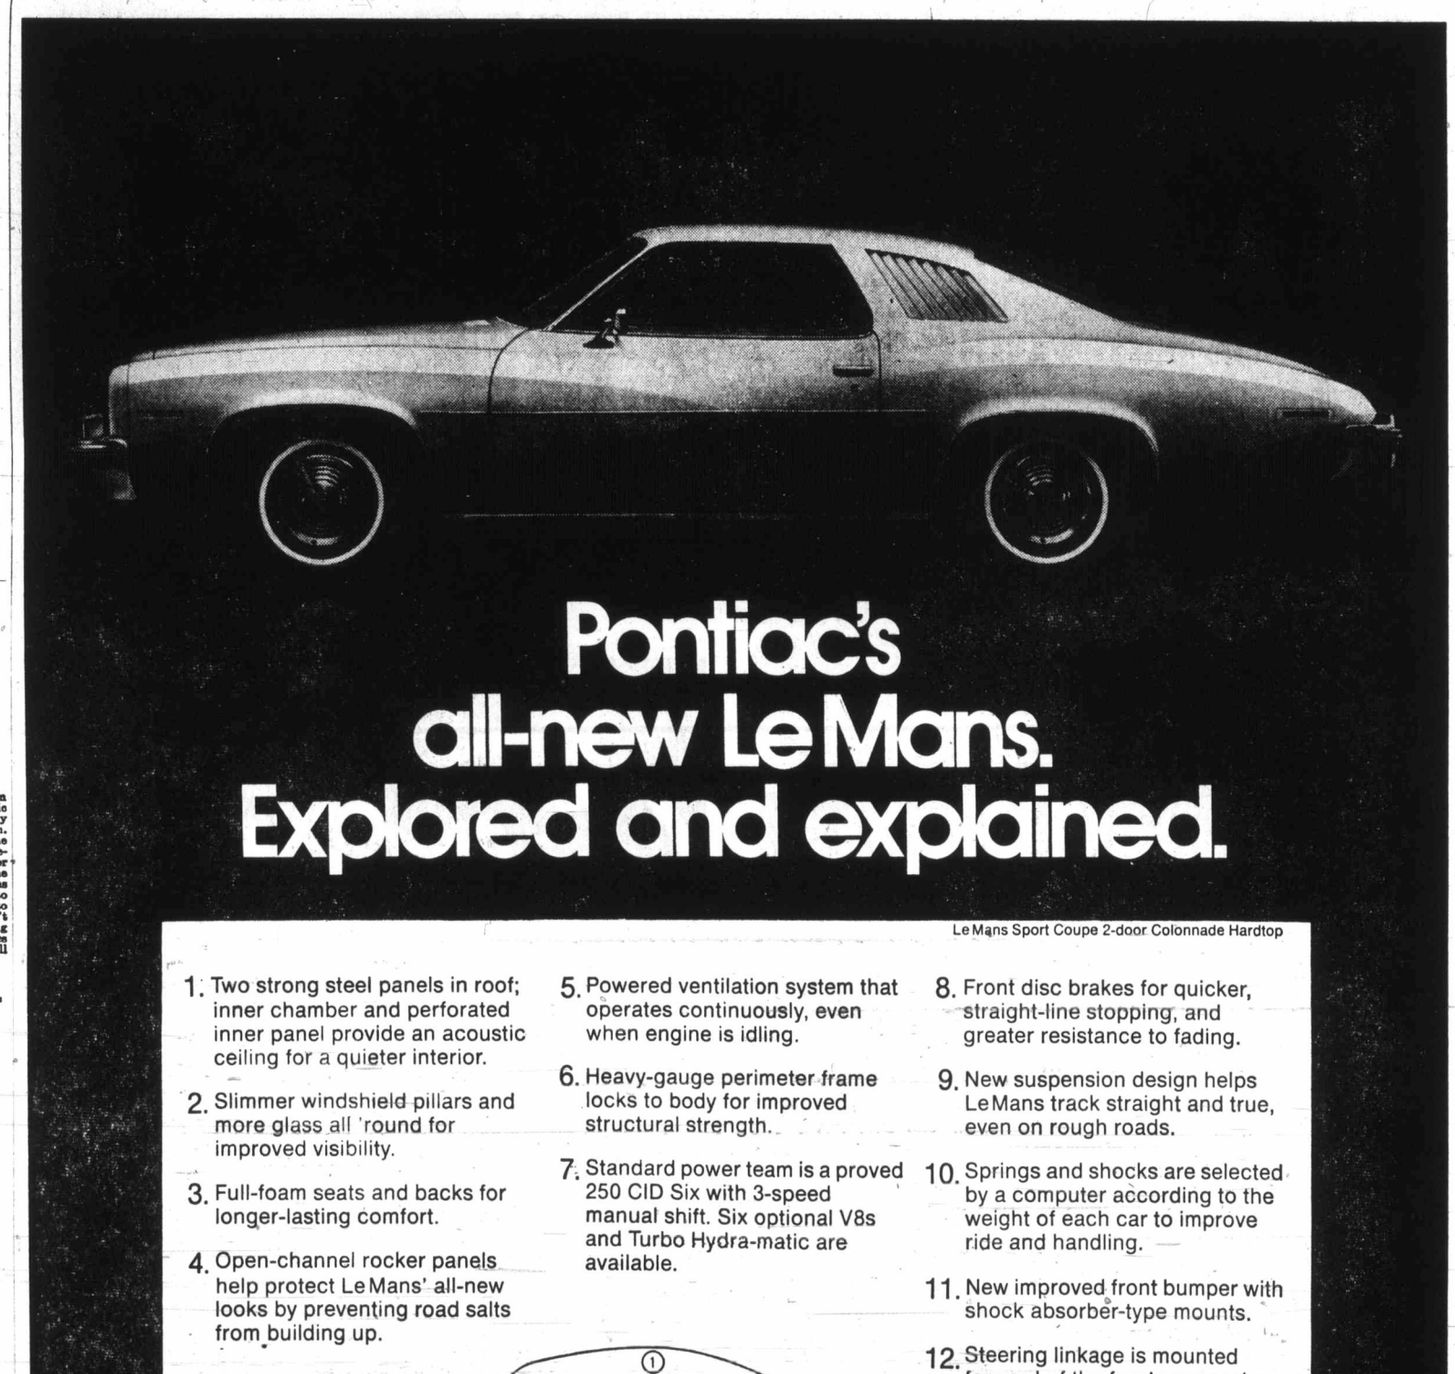

And most important—this improvement was maintained in cases where clinical observations were continued over a period of many months. Furthermore, these tests and observations were made on patients with a wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. All this was accomplished with a healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a stated cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Marijuana Wafts

An undercover motorcyclist, a distinctive aroma, an unusual bail situation and trials set into 1973 at Victoria Provincial Court — these are all chapters in the story of Victoria's part in the Canada-wide narcotics crackdown last week.

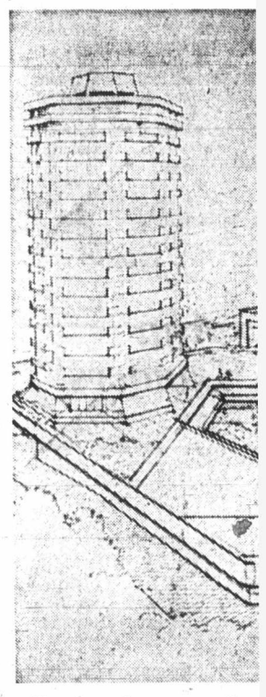

Officials won't comment on these parts of the story so they must be presented as unconfirmed. But the details come from sources who are as reliable as any around.

The motorcyclist was RCMP Constable Blaine Froats, 23, who went undercover into Victoria and Vancouver Island drug communities from about mid-April to this fall and in an unusual way.

The word going around is that Froats made the motorbike his "cover" and drove it everywhere. One story even tells of a visit to a beer parlor. Another says he was rousted several times by Victoria policemen for motorcycle offences — the court outcome could not be determined.

Froats presumably hoped his actions would win him the trust of narcotics devotees. His undercover work ranged from Victoria to Port Hardy and resulted in 43 trafficking warrants, of which 28 had been served at last report and five had resulted in guilty pleas.

A $7 million hotel-apartment-convention centre project is being planned by Victoria developer J. A. Mace.

The project would be built on a two-acre site at Government and Bay where the old Hydro building is situated, Mace said Monday.

It would consist of two circular 18-storey towers, one containing 260 hotel rooms, the other 130 apartment suites.

The existing building would be converted into a small convention hall which would accommodate gatherings of up to 500 persons.

An additional 30,000 square-feet of retail space would be included in the development and there would be underground parking for about 600 cars.

In an interview, Mace said the project would be built by a group of Victoria businessmen, including himself. Financing has been secured, he added.

An undercover motorcyclist, a distinctive aroma, an unusual bail situation and trials set into 1973 at Victoria Provincial Court — these are all chapters in the story of Victoria's part in the Canada-wide narcotics crackdown last week.

Officials won't comment on these parts of the story so they must be presented as unconfirmed. But the details come from sources who are as reliable as any around.

The motorcyclist was RCMP Constable Blaine Froats, 23, who went undercover into Victoria and Vancouver Island drug communities from about mid-April to this fall and in an unusual way.

The word going around is that Froats made the motorbike his "cover" and drove it everywhere. One story even tells of a visit to a beer parlor. Another says he was rousted several times by Victoria policemen for motorcycle offences — the court outcome could not be determined.

Froats presumably hoped his actions would win him the trust of narcotics devotees. His undercover work ranged from Victoria to Port Hardy and resulted in 43 trafficking warrants, of which 28 had been served at last report and five had resulted in guilty pleas.

A three-year Mountie, Froats came to the RCMP Vancouver Island drug squad from a B.C. Interior posting and probably won't get back to it until the last court hearings from the crackdown end next year.

While he is said to have cleaned up quite a bit from his undercover days, his hair is still long although well-groomed. He is short, rolypoly and looks much more like a car salesman than a Mountie.

The aroma was marijuana, which clings to clothing, and it has often been detected around Victoria Provincial Court. But never has it been stronger than it was last Thursday as the courtroom became crowded with spectators in the wake of the first crackdown arrests.

Of course, the aroma could be Patch. That's a body oil with an aroma virtually identical with that of marijuana. It's sold in public and has been on the market for a couple of years at least — some say it's worn to mask a more illegal scent.

The Colonist has already reported, from sources on both sides of the law, that drugs remain readily available in Victoria and at unchanged prices. In Vancouver, police said the long delays between arrest and trial mean those charged with drug offences soon are back on the streets and selling.

The delays in Victoria also are lengthy—the 1972 docket for Victoria Provincial Court is filled and the first 1973 trials were set last week—but police in this area won't comment on the Vancouver claim that delays result in renewed selling.

The Colonist has, however, noted an unusual bail situation that arose recently and gives a graphic example of how the Canadian bail-reform law which went into effect last Jan. 2 can help an accused person, as parliament intended it to do.

A young man facing a serious charge was released one day in the Victoria court on his own recognizance in the sum of $500. He was arrested on a number of different counts, appeared the next day and was released on his own recognizance in the sum of $1,000.

The third day, he appeared in two sections of the court. In one, bail was set at $2,500 on a serious charge; in the other, he was released on a $250 recognizance on a minor charge.

Vancouver County Court Judge John Anderson ruled last spring the new law meant the severity of the charge must not be considered when it comes to deciding bail—the crown must prove by previous record or something else that the accused may not return to court.

The ruling ties the hands of a lower-court judge like Victoria's William Ostler. Monday, a man charged with heroin traffieking was released on his undertaking to return and Judge Ostler told prosecutor Mike Hutchison: "I recognize your anxiety . . . but it fa ls directly within the ambit of the (Anderson) case."

The law also says a judge may make an order prohibiting the press from publishing previous records and other statements made when bail is considered. Ostler did not do so in the case of the man with followed a policy of not printing such material since this obviously is what Parliament four bails but the Colonist has intended.

FAST ERASER is used by civil servant who refused to divulge his name as he went about his task of eradicating price tags.

Priceless Paintings Come Out of the Heat

The prices on an exhibition of paintings in the B.C. legislative buildings were there one minute and gone the next on Monday.

"We are not trying to peddle the art for anyone, just to show off some of the outstanding work of B.C. artists," Speaker-designate Gordon Dowding said.

Dowding invited Harrison Galleries of Vancouver to display the 20 paintings in the hall leading to the library and in the members' restaurant.

But when the art went up, Dowding was "astounded" to find price tags ranging from $200 to $2,200.

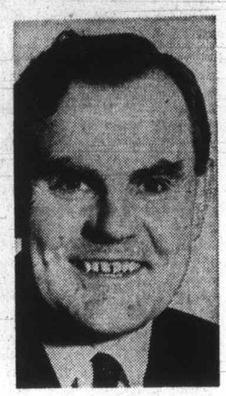

There were also a few mutters from civil servants in the vicinity about how "shocking" it was that the legislative buildings were being turned into a commercial art gallery.

Dowding moved quickly and soon a team appeared armed with erasers and removed the offending prices.

Now if anyone wants to know the price of a painting, they'll have to make enquiries through the gallery.

Dowding was upset that his scheme of having periodic art displays from galleries throughout B.C. had begun on a poor footing, but was willing to talk about it later.

Craigflower Frozen By Trustees

Bunn

Decision was delayed by the Greater Victoria school board Monday night on the controversial question of moving five portable classrooms to a 1½-acre site on the Songhees Indian Reserve as an annex to Craigflower elementary school.

The board unanimously agreed to a proposal made by trustee Peter Bunn that the whole question of the Craigflower annexes be referred to the board's education committee to be discussed at a meeting Nov. 13.

The board's construction and maintenance committee had last week recommended that the annex be established, saying that it was necessary that present severe overcrowding at the main Craigflower elementary site be alleviated as soon as possible and "that the proposed Craigflower annex location is the only solution at this time."

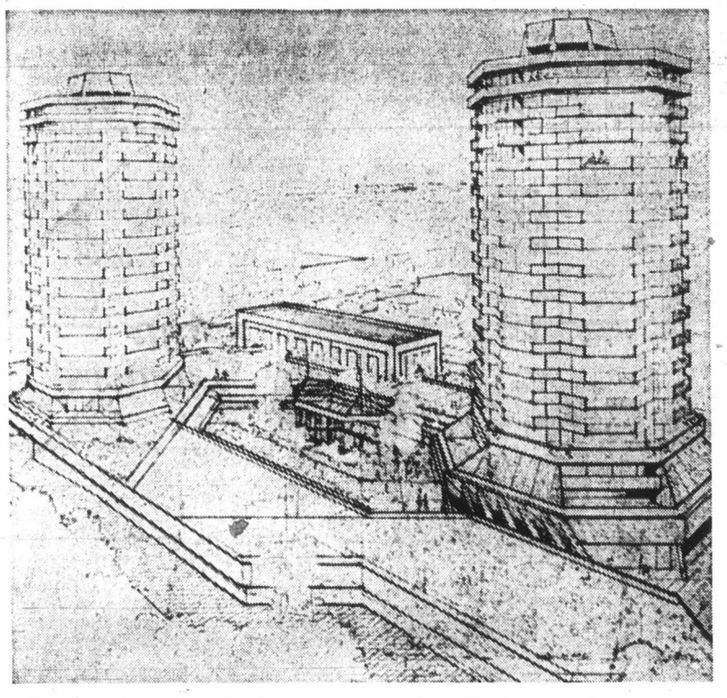

However, a number of parents in the area had objected to the moving of the portables to the Songhees site, about 700 yards from the main school. They believed that the educational advantages to be gained from the move would not outweigh the disadvantages of it nor the economic cost, estimated at $20,500 to the district.

When the matter came up Monday night, Bunn moved that the whole question go back to the education committee. He said he felt the construction and maintenance department could not be faulted because all they had done was find a possible solution to the educational problem of overcrowding that had been put to them.

"The situation that I see at this time is that I'm personally not convinced that the educational advantages have been made clear to me," he said.

He also suggested that the board write to Songhees band chief John Albany explaining the delay because, "I have this horrible sort of gut feeling that the Indians are not happy and don't feel that it's entirely an educational thing" that there's hesitation over the move.

The board agreed to this and also decided to write letters of thanks to parents Bill Ross and Len Stephenson for their brief on the subject, and to pay a rental fee of $9 for a hall used for a parents meeting Sunday night.

Old Hydro Site

$7m Project Aired

By HUBERT BEYER
Colonist Reporter

A $7 million hotel-apartment-convention centre project is being planned by Victoria developer J. A. Mace.

The project would be built on a two-acre site at Government and Bay where the old Hydro building is situated, Mace said Monday.

It would consist of two circular 18-storey towers, one containing 260 hotel rooms, the other 130 apartment suites.

The existing building would be converted into a small convention hall which would accommodate gatherings of up to 500 persons.

An additional 30,000 square-feet of retail space would be included in the development and there would be underground parking for about 600 cars.

In an interview, Mace said the project would be built by a group of Victoria businessmen, including himself. Financing has been secured, he added.

Mace said he chose to "go the unconventional route" of announcing the plans to the press, before submitting his proposals to city hall, because of past experience.

Mace is also the developer of the proposed Bay Village project which has been a controversial issue for almost two years.

He said his syndicate had decided to propose Government and Bay plans to the council before completing details.

"We intend to go the 702-A route," Mace said, referring to a special development bylaw which enables the city to impose strict regulations on a developer.

The 702-A bylaw is applied where regular zoning procedures will not accommodate a proposed development. In this case, the proposal contravenes the city's 14-storey height limit.

"But the mayor specifically invited developers to apply for the 702-A route if they plan a development that would not be otherwise permitted," Mace said.

He added that the area in which the project would be built, was "an area with a great future." The new Victoria Press Building, he said, had already set the pace for a gradual upgrading of the entire district.

"We have a great deal of confidence in the area and we hope that there will not be too many problems with city hall," Mace said.

Construction of the development, he said, could begin almost as soon as city hall approval is obtained.

Noises Watch Urged

Saanich should maintain stringent building bylaws which require the use of the latest methods of soundproofing in apartment buildings, municipal planner Tom Loney told a Saanich council meeting Monday night.

Loney was commenting on a survey made by Saanich last summer that showed 40 per cent of the residents of apartments, rowhouses and townhouses were unhappy with the soundproofing.

Loney released the results of the survey at the council meeting.

The survey also collected age and sex profiles of the residents of multiple dwellings, their attitudes toward municipal road and park systems and whether they considered themselves close to such services as parks and schools.

However, poor soundproofing is an issue that annoys many, especially those persons in garden apartments, where 57 per cent of the respondents said it was unsatisfactory.

"It is recommended that the municipality maintain stringent building bylaws incorporating the latest advanced methods of acoustical insulation and that developers be reminded of this invisible but highly important aspect of their buildings," says Loney.

The study of apartments was made because, said the planning department, "it seems certain that apartment development will pay an even more important role in the growth of the municipality in future years and that multiple housing will become a permanent way of life for a significant sector of the community."

Blanshard Extension

Strachan Digging

Highways Minister Bob Strachan is considering at least one alternative to the long-proposed extension of Blanshard to ease traffic pressure on Douglas.

This is one job the minister sees as high on the priority list despite the NDP government's preoccupation with creating its own automobile insurance scheme.

Highways department experts looked over the Blanshard situation last week and Strachan predicted Monday he will have his mind made up whether to proceed or scrap the idea within a "few months."

It is the second time around for the controversial project which would link the Pat Bay Highway to a northern extension of Blanshard running behind the Town and Country shopping centre.

Strachan said he understood the Social Credit government scrapped the proposal in 1968 when it instructed the highways department not to acquire any further land for the extension.

This left Saanich municipality up in the air about what to do in the area and some property originally held for the new highway has since been sold.

The one alternative Strachan will talk about involves a link with the Pat Bay Highway and Blanshard which begins further north of the Town and Country shopping complex than in the original plan.

At this stage, he admits the plan is "purely speculation."

Strachan confirmed that he will have talks soon with Hugh Curtis, Saanich mayor and MLA for Saanich and the Islands, on the escalating costs of the original plan.

New buildings along the original route had added "tremendously" to the cost, which Strachan put as "millions of dollars." His final cautionary word on the topic was:

"I haven't made a decision yet."

Referendum for Residents

Second Saanich Arena Plan Diluted

Saanich council Monday night watered down a recommendatioon that the municipality build a second arena almost at once.

The original idea, proposed by council's indoor recreation committee two weeks ago, was that a referendum be held in December on the issue. However, on Monday council adopted a diluted proposal from Ald. Leslie Passmore that the scheme be analysed and taken to taxpayers in the form of a referendum "as soon as possible."

Several members of council speculated that the date could be during February or March and, if this occurred, it would coincide with the public becoming aware of their 1973 taxation levies, which will include large sums for Saanich sewering program.

Ald. Edith Gunning, who with Mayor Hugh Curtis and aldermen William Campbell and Frank Waring voted against the arena idea on the grounds that it was premature and was of lower priority than drainage, said she did not want an ice surface "pushed" through council.

Curtis claimed that the indoor recreation committee's idea has divided council and the lack of solidarity might result in the referendum's defeat when it is presented to taxpayers.

He pointed out that the committee had not even discussed the idea with municiapl administrator John Tribe.

The mayor hoped the arena would be part of a long-range recreation program that would be carefully reviewed by council before it was taken to voters.

He also pointed out that minor hockey was a "lobby" that spoke for only a small portion of the citizenry interested in recreation.

Curtis Raps Beer Protest

Saanich council chamber filled with applause Monday night after Mayor Hugh Curtis said a United Church protest of a beer garden represented a voice from the past.

Curtis' remark was addressed to Rev. H. T. Allan, who said all congregations of the United Church in Greater Victoria were offended by Saanich's sponsorship of a beer sale at Lambrick Park one Saturday afternoon last summer.

The mayor asked the clergy what the church was doing about narcotic addiction and, when Allen did not reply quickly, Curtis said the minister represented "a voice from the past that comments on beer but not on narcotic addiction."

Ald. Leslie Passmore, pointing out that money raised at the beer sale is used to send young sportsmen to provincial and national competitions, said he would consider eliminating the event if the church provided a sum equal to the proceeds of the sale.

OAK BAY 'PARTY': BYOB

BYOB has a meaning all its own in Oak Bay these days.

It means Bring Your Own Bucket — at least until alterations can be made to the holding room for arrested persons at the police station.

For, as Mayor Frances Elford reported to Oak Bay council Monday night, a rush of business from people high on alcohol and drugs has made life quite unpleasant for policemen forced to share toilet facilities with their "customers."

Ald. Brian Smith was curious about the increase in numbers as he said other districts have experienced a decrease in the need for facilities since the new bail laws have made it difficult to hold people in custody.

"They are there long enough to be sick all over the place, anyway," answered Mrs. Elford.

It was decided to call for tenders for a prison-type toilet and sink with a tiled, drained floor that can be hosed out.

Estimated cost of the alterations is $3,500.

I read some pretty incredible things in the newspaper, but the story I can't get over is the one about the woman from Michigan who grocery shops for staples once a year.

She makes up a grocery list 13 pages long, fills up 14 shopping carts, transfers it to 56 paper bags, coughs up $571.88 to pay for it, loads it in two cars and shouts gaily over her shoulder, "See you next year."

I once bought eight boxes of cake mix on sale, four for a dollar, and by the end of the week we had a cake every day and two on Sunday. I can't save a thing around the house. When my husband taught school we used to get paid the 15th of every month. On the 16th, we ate like a weight watcher who had just fallen into a vat of baked potatoes and sour cream. For 15 days, we had three meats at every meal, five vegetables, and a choice of four desserts.

The first of the month, we began to panic. By the time the last week rolled around, I was dyeing the rice brown trying to palm it off as ground beef and sucking on dental floss. One night (the 13th of some month), my husband picked at a mound of cocktail onions and Spam and said, "If you can't manage the food any better than this throughout the month, why don't you plan your menus ahead and I'll hide the stuff so you won't use it all up the first couple of weeks."

The first night he came through the door, I grabbed him by the shirt and said "Where are they?"

"Where are what?" he asked.

"They're scheduled for salad tomorrow night."

"I don't want to wait until tomorrow night," I said testily. "I'd KILL FOR BANANAS, AND YOU KNOW IT!"

I got to thinking about that doggone woman in Michigan. Could a person really stock up once a year or did she get home, unload her 56 shopping bags and tell her youngest, "There's nothing for lunch. Pedal down and get some lunch meat and potato chips."

Anyway, I decided to try it. I went to the supermarket, made a grocery list 18 pages long, filled up 20 shopping carts, transferred 58 paper bags, coughed up $602.19 to pay for it and then loaded it into two cars and shouted over my shoulder, "See you next year."

As I drove by I heard a smart-mouth carry-out boy say, "You said that last week, lady."

Dynamic Duo Shows It's All in Family

By EUGENIA SHEPPARD

NEW YORK — Liza Minnelli and her half-sister Lorna Luft are very close. They had the same famous mother, Judy Garland. They have some of the same physical characteristics and talk alike. They share the same ambition to sing and entertain, but there is no rivalry between them.

"We're so close. We're best friends. When we get on the phone together you ought to hear us. They call us the dynamic duo," says Lorna Luft. In her hotel suite at the St. Regis, the morning after her first New York appearance as a nightclub singer in the downstairs Maisonette, she was soothing her throat with hot tea, hot chocolate and honey.

"At the party people kept coming up and asking me how I felt. All I could think of was how glad I was to get it over with," went on Lorna, leaning over to pat Cagney, the tiny lhasa apso that travels everywhere with her.

Ever since she was a child, going to school wherever her mother was singing and never stopping long enough to make friends, she has known she wanted to sing. "I was sure I had a voice but I didn't know what to do with it," she said.

Two years ago she started studying seriously. Last year she played here in Promises, Promises. She has just finished a show with Danny Thomas in Las Vegas and has a crowded schedule ahead. The way she talks about her own voice: "It's not like Mama's. It's not like Liza's and it's not like Barbra's. It's my own thing."

Lorna describes herself and Liza as both slightly taller editions of their mother's body, with short necks and broad shoulders. By far the skinniest of the three, she was so thin as a child that they used to call her the pin woman. Now, at 19, she weighs 119 pounds and is just about ready to go on a diet.

In the daytime she likes nothing but slacks and sweaters, but for performing she loves Halston's clothes. She wore his slashed front, no-back bronze mat jersey for her opening and she has three more in her singing wardrobe. She alternates simple Halston's with Ray Aghyan's glitter, like the sequin top and sequin pants she changed into for the party later.

Besides being the skinniest, Lorna has the only blue eyes in the family. She has inherited her mother's dark hair that is cut casually by barber Simon Scudero, but not Judy's big, dark eyes that Liza and her brother Joey have.

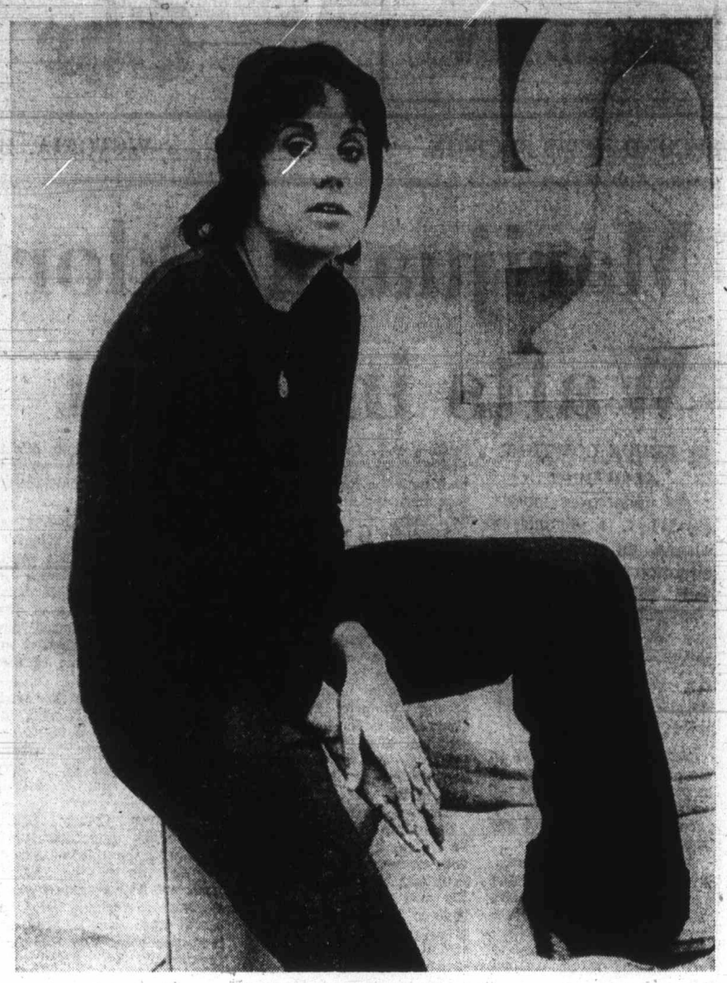

Both her father, Sid Luft, and brother Joey were at the St. Regis for Lorna's opening. Joey is the only member of the family with no ambition to entertain. He wants to be a lawyer. "Goodness knows Liza and I are going to need one," Lorna says.

Liza, who flew into town to make some fashion photographs was expected on Lorna's second night. "I think Liza's the world's greatest female performer," her sister says. "The one thing she has that I wish I had is a skinny face with great cheekbones."

Both she and Liza are super-energetic. If Lorna is just a little tired now, it's because her new act was whipped up in only eight days and by dint of staying up most of the night.

When she finishes her two weeks at the St. Regis, she's planning a brief vacation in Paris with her fiance, French movie actor Philippe Lavot. "It's rough on us. We don't have much chance to see each other." They hope to marry soon but there are no definite plans. "He's extraordinary," she says. "I guess it's his French upbringing, but he won't come over here and not work. Besides, I wouldn't want a man who was willing to be Mr. Lorna Luft."

She sees the St. Regis opening as a turning point in her life. "Even if I had bombed, I would have said sorry, and gone on trying, but it's happier this way."

Lorna Luft is super-energetic star

Stricter Regulations Urged for Cosmetics

EDMONTON (CP) — Stricter regulations for the cosmetic industry have been urged by a consumer research group in a letter to Health Minister John Munro.

Save Tomorrow Oppose Pollution, based on a report made by researcher Anemone Ruder, requested that cosmetics be made subject to strict labelling laws which would make listing all ingredients mandatory.

Ms. Ruder, who said she preferred to be identified that way, said S.T.O.P. became interested in cosmetic regulations when the organization became aware of possible dangers of the chemical hexachlorophene as an additive in cosmetics.

Canada imposed restrictions on hexachlorophene last May, requiring that products containing more than .75 per cent of the chemical be available only on prescription. Use of the chemical in the United States was restricted more recently after research showed several babies bathed in solutions of hexachlorophene suffered brain damage.

Ms. Ruder said what started as an inquiry into shampoo, skin cleansing and deodorant products containing hexachlorophene led to disturbing findings on other aspects of regulations on the cosmetics industry.

Among the report's findings was that the food and drug directorate, which has jurisdiction over cosmetic products, "can act only after a cosmetic has been sold and has caused injury or has been proven to have been mislabelled."

The report expressed concern over evidence that hormone creams with a high estrogen content, advertised to prevent skin wrinkles, are sold without proper labelling, though deemed potentially dangerous in an American Medical Association publication.

Ms. Ruder's research uncovered evidence of what the report termed "the myth of the rare ingredient" where such substances as mink oil, turtle oil, and royal jelly, are common, inexpensive ingredients added to cosmetics sold at high prices.

Such additives, said the report, have no proven beneficial results.

The report said there is "hope in sight" through proistration of manufacturers tion which would demand reposed United States legislaand disclosure of all products, formulas and labels.

S.T.O.P. said it wants this type of legislation introduced in Canada, including the submission of test results and manufacturing descriptions of cosmetics made subject to government approval.

As a footnote to her research, Ms. Ruder advised the consumer to:

- Return products that cause irritation, itching or swelling of any part of the body.
- Be alert to any discomfort to eyes or breathing while using hair sprays.
- Return products that don't live up to their advertising claims.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: Have times changed so much that it is no longer important for nieces and nephews to tack "Uncle" or "Aunt" in front of names? Please let me know about this because I am an antedeluvian creep 48 years of age and I can't possibly know what is considered proper these days. Thanks.—Strictly from Squaresville.

Dear Square: I have a lovely assortment of nieces and nephews and some of them call me aunt and others don't. It doesn't matter to me either way. It's what they say after the salutation that counts.

Dear Ann Landers: Like thousands of other women I was married in a beautiful and expensive white wedding gown. Granted, it didn't have to be that expensive but I dreamed of being an exquisite bride and I saved my money so I could go hog-wild on the gown — which is what I did.

But why should such a beautiful gown be worn only once? It's nothing more than a tradition. Traditions do change, so why not change this one?

Please let me know what you think of a bride getting her money's worth out of her wedding gown instead of letting it rot in the attic.—Money Sunk.

Dear Sunk: Sorry — no yes vote here. Bridal gowns are for weddings — in the same way that a bikini is for the beach and a house-dress is for the house.

Dear Ann Landers: Our daughter Julie, age 19, has been enthralled with soap operas since the age of 12. Her emotional involvement with the characters used to be rather amusing, but it's gone beyond the funny stage and we are concerned.

A few months ago Julie changed shifts in order to stay home and watch a couple of soap operas that had switched to afternoon time. She is now working from 4 till midnight. Two weeks ago, one of the story lines began an episode that closely paralleled a tragic happening in her life. Since that time she has stopped eating and sunk into a depression. The girl is living on potato chips and candy bars.

What can we do? Don't suggest professional help. She is convinced psychiatry is phony and all medical doctors are actors.—Worried Parents.

Dear Worried: I am not surprised your daughter thinks all doctors are actors — so many of the soap operas take place in hospitals.

You know your daughter is emotionally ill and she should see a psychiatrist. If she refuses, you cannot force her to do so. Perhaps one of her friends can get through to her. Often the same advice from a person not related will carry some weight. Do try, and good luck.

Mothers' Club Helps In Coping with Twins

By LESLIE DREW

The day before they're born, you find that you're going to have twins.

That in itself can be a jolt.

But when they're your first children, and neither parent knows of twins in the family trees, you have all the makings of a traumatic experience.

Unless, of course, you are Edda and Chuck Thompson of 3610 Saanich Road, a particularly well-organized couple who last year produced twins who have been remarkably easy to bring up.

Edda was 26 when Sabena and Nevin arrived 14 months ago after her first pregnancy. She had no idea that more than one child was on the way until the day before, when x-ray results had disclosed the twins.

Edda, who says she has always been interested in multiple births, was delighted to have beaten the odds of two of a kind. So was Chuck. In neither family, in modern times, had twins been known.

"I was lucky," Edna says. The babies had weighed 4.5 and 4.12 pounds at birth, so Edda went home first from hospital, and at least had time to prepare for coping with two infants. And, as it turned out, she had good-natured, no-problem offspring, who eat heartily, had no colic, no teething difficulties.

Today, however, Edda wonders about other mothers of newly-born twins and is firmly convinced that an organization like the National Organization of Mothers of Twins Clubs Inc., of the United States, could do much to help them.

Through a friend of her mother's, she obtained information on the organization, and publications giving hints for mothers of new twins — general care, feeding, household routine, twin appliances, and so on.

She believes that in Victoria a club of mothers of new twins could help others immeasurably — not only in passing on tips but also in exchanging or "handing down" used clothing and equipment, baby-sitting for each other, and encouraging stores to stock supplies for twins more comprehensively.

Being fairly new to Victoria, Edda didn't know any other mothers of twins, so learned the tricks on her own, with husband Chuck's help.

"You have to get into a routine," she says. "You feed the little guys together, bathe them together; everything must be done at the same time. It's less work that way." Now, for instance, with each in his and her high-chair side by side, she feeds Sabena and Nevin from one dish, using one spoon.

"I don't think you can play favorites," she says. "They're two entirely different personalities."

Edda, who says quite frankly that before the twins arrived she had baby-sat perhaps three times in her life and knew little of bringing up children, scoured a Vancouver discount house for dual equipment. Her twin strollers bought there are unlike anything available in Victoria, she says.

Similarly, in clothing, she finds local stores lacking. "I don't want matching clothing; most stores stock the same sizes of the same article which would be okay if both twins were of the same sex."

A club of mothers of new twins could provide a clothing exchange service, she says. Mothers who have other children to care for as well as twins haven't necessarily the time to investigate all the supply sources, as Edda did.

And there's the passing on of hints to easy twin-handling, cost-saving and the shortcuts. Twins can, she has read, develop their own language known only to themselves, and resist attempts to teach them the language of their elders. Knowledge of this can spare a mother a lot of worry.

Candidate's Wife:

Family Firmly First

Mr. and Mrs. Allan McKinnon

Talking to Elizabeth McKinnon, one of the first things that popped into my mind was that this person would be a poor candidate for Women's Lib. But of course, that is only my opinion.

Elizabeth, wife of Allan McKinnon, Progressive Conservative candidate for Victoria in the Oct. 30 federal election, says she is doing "all I can to back him up."

Although she attends meetings and coffee parties, etc., Mrs. McKinnon believes the strongest part she can play is to keep her husband happy. "I don't mean that head of the family bit," she says, "but I think that if the husband and father is fulfilling himself then everyone in the family is happy. And you must remember he is the provider."

Elizabeth says then that her most important role is being a good wife, mother and housekeeper.

The McKinnons have two sons, Ian, 24 ,and Peter, 21.

Ian, a graduate of Victoria High and the University of Victoria is now going to Yale in New Haven, Conn., where he is continuing political science studies at the graduate university.

Ian, who was married here in September, and his wife, will go to Toronto for the election weekend. His mother says that election night is more exciting in Toronto because of the time element.

Peter, the younger son, is not interested in politics although, naturally, he is interested in the outcome of the forthcoming one.

He is in his fourth year at the University of Victoria studying English and drama.

Discussing young people of today the candidate's wife says: "On the whole thinking of this generation the world is going to be in good hands. For one they are much more concerned in serious affairs than we were at their age.

"Their travel experiences—hitch-hiking around Europe—I'm sure is responsible for this." Also the student exchange programs and the Children's International Summer Villages are definitely bringing greater understanding between countries.

During Allan McKinnon's military career the boys attended many schools in different places across the country. In fact, Ian attended 11 schools in 12 years. But both boys always adapted well and both took to Victoria on arrival.

Elizabeth McKinnon thinks that if the family is intact, children don't suffer from change. She also quoted a teacher as saying that the advantages of travel made up for any loss in any school subject.

A couple of years ago at Christmas the McKinnons asked their sons which Christmas had been the happiest during the years. Without hesitation they both answered "the one in Florida." This rather surprised the parents.

Always relatives had visited them at Christmas but this particular year the family decided to go to New Orleans. Then New Orleans broke a 100-year record by receiving a snowfall so the McKinnons decided to sidetrack to Florida.

Stopping at a trailer camp, they spent the day swimming and enjoying the sun although Elizabeth cooked the traditional Christmas dinner.

Whether the boys' enjoyment was because of the family being alone together or whether it was the novelty the McKinnons don't know and don't ask.

Elizabeth McKinnon loves to knit and sew. She makes sweaters for her sons, for relatives, dresses, suits, etc. Recently she gathered a lot of wool oddments and made up little caps with pompoms intending to give them to Bess Menzies for the Jubilee Hospital bazaar. There are still a few left for the bazaar but when her son's girl friends saw them that was the end of all of them going to the bazaar.

Swimming is Elizabeth's favorite sport and twice a week she is down at the Y swimming the length of the pool 18 times.

Stake Through His Heart

LONDON (UPI) — When Harold West died, his doctor drove a stake through his heart to make sure he was dead. When he was buried, they did not nail his coffin shut, in case he was not.

West was no vampire. He was just a cautious banker who feared being buried alive.

Dr. Eric Kerr said Sunday: "I did what Mr. West wanted, but it was the first request of that sort I had ever had."

'De Mau Mau' Blacks Arrested

CHICAGO (UPI) — Sheriff's police Monday investigated an alleged plot by the "De Mau Mau" gang, accused of the murders of nine white persons, to kill Chicago-area policemen.

Authorities also set up a "hotline" to try to link the gang with unsolved, seemingly motiveless slayings across the country.

Sheriff Richard Elrod said his investigators, who accused eight young blacks of two mass murders of families and two other slayings, "learned of a plot to kill Chicago policemen" from statements made by some of six arrested black militants.

The Cicago Daily News said in a copyrighted story that the De Mau Maus planned to "begin systematically killing white policemen" on Friday the 13th but their plans were put off after police began making arrests.

Dr. Charles Hurst Jr., president of largely black Malcolm X college, charged Cook County authorities had perpetuated for political reasons "the myth that black people come out of the ghetto, sweep down and kill the whites."

Hurst attacked as sensational the way in which Elrod and state's attorney Edward Hanrahan announced the charging of eight accused members of the black militant gang. He charged they were "aiming for the white backlash."

Six men, including four former Malcolm X students, were under arrest and two more persons were being sought. Elrod said, "We have a pretty good lead on their whereabouts and I don't want them to flee to South America or Africa by tomorrow."

The sheriff said army intelligence was being checked to determine if any of the accused men were involved in racial incidents while in service in Vietnam and Europe and he indicated ballistics tests play an important role in the spreading investigation.

"The ammunition used in some of the slayings was of a particularly readily identified type," he said. "It was British-made."

At a news conference, Hurst directed his anger at Elrod and Hanrahan, for "trying to get maximum news coverage" of the arrests.

Hanrahan is on trial charged with conspiracy to obstruct justice in the aftermath of the police killing of two Black Panthers. He is running for re-election Nov. 7.

Teachers Win Court Fight

WINNIPEG (CP) — A $41,120 suit by the Winnipeg School Division against the Winnipeg Teachers' Association concerning withdrawal of voluntary service by the teachers in June, 1970, has been dismissed.

Mr. Justice John Hunt of Manitoba court of Queen's Bench held that providing noon-hour supervision in school lunch rooms, though described in the teachers' code of rules as a "long established custom", is not a contractual obligation.

He suggested a hard-working teacher who must give up his lunch hour for supervision duty, without compensation, may be overburdened and unable to function at his best.

The Winnipeg School Division, the plaintiff in the case, had asked for damages equal to the cost of employing commissionaires and parents as lunch-room supervisors between June, 1970, and June, 1972. All services except lunch-room supervision had been restored by the teachers in November, 1970.

During hearing of the case, a school division official described the action as an important test case in Canada on voluntary teacher services.

School Trustee Michael Barager, a member of the board's adjustments committee, said he expected the board would appeal the decision.

Worst Yet To Come

Tons of mud and boulders cover entrance to Pfeiffer State Park and Big Sur Lodge parking lot after weekend flash floods. Forest fire last August destroyed ground cover, allowing heavy runoff from rains to sweep earth and debris down steep course of Pfeiffer Creek. But "worst is yet to come," said Ranger Frank Stewart as forecast called for more intense rainfall.

British 'Enemy'--Protestants

Election Sparks Riot

BELFAST (AP) — A man and a 15-year-old youth were killed Monday night as British soldiers and Protestant mobs clashed throughout Belfast.

Their deaths pushed the toll of three years of sectarian fighting in Northern Ireland to 610.

The bloody rioting in the Northern Ireland capital exploded after British soldiers elsewhere shot down two gunmen and wounded another at a roadblock near a country village.

The renewed fighting threatened to precipitate a political storm over the timing of the first Ulster elections in five years, and to sour Protestants still more on the British administration.

Police said the latest deaths occurred in an accident involving an armored car. A 26-year-old man had his head torn off when the vehicle ran over him, and the youth was knocked down by the car, they reported.

Some of the violence was said to involve members of the Protestant Tartan gangs, young hooligans who have frequently roamed the streets of Belfast.

The Ulster Defence Association had claimed that two other boys, aged 14, were gunned down in the Protestant Shankill and Woodvale Road areas.

A spokesman for the UDA said at the time of the initial statement that: "The British army tonight faced the Tartan gangs, by the weekend they will face the loyalist people of Ulster."

The statement declared that "the British army and the government are now our enemy."

Most political observers expressed belief that British administrator William Whitelaw would be forced to postpone the elections because of the growing threat to security.

Farmers Block Hydro Project

DAWSON CREEK (CP) — A group of Peace River farmers, dissatisfied with land expropriation offers from B.C. Hydro, have voted to reject the latest offer from Hydro and to continue their resistance.

The farmers used cars, trucks and farm equipment last week to block a road 21 miles north of here and prevent a contractor from unloading poles for a power transmission line.

A Hydro official met with the farmers Friday and set a deadline of 1 p.m. Monday for the farmers to accept the latest Hydro offer—or the crown corporation would cancel construction of the line between Fort St. John and Dawson Creek.

A spokesman for the farmers' group said Monday they had rejected the offer at a weekend meeting.

There was no immediate reaction from B.C. Hydro.

Alcohol With C

A 56-year-old Victoria man who is an "admitted alcoholic" was given a suspended sentence and placed on two years' probation Monday after he was found guilty in Victoria County Court on a charge of possession of a restricted weapon.

Judge M. L. T. Drake, passing sentence on the man, Kenneth Harris, of 1282 Pem broke, made two conditions of the probation that Harris seek psychiatric help and "abstain completely" from alcohol during the two-year period.

"This will be very difficult for you, but it can be done," Drake told Harris after hearing from defence lawyer Gregory Greiner that most of Harris' problems stemmed from family difficulties and his alcoholism.

The judge had earlier convicted Harris on the charge which involved a .22-calibre automatic pistol found by police officers in Harris' car when they checked it, acting on information received, the morning of Dec. 4.

Crown counsel Cecil Branson said that while one "must have a certain degree of sympathy for this man," one must also take into consideration that he could be dangerous to the public.

"He probably doesn't mean to be dangerous, but he drinks and then he assaults people and with a weapon, goodness knows the harm he could do," Branson said.

Alcoholic Free, With Conditions

A 56-year-old Victoria man who is an "admitted alcoholic" was given a suspended sentence and placed on two years' probation Monday after he was found guilty in Victoria County Court on a charge of possession of a restricted weapon.

Judge M. L. T. Drake, passing sentence on the man, Kenneth Harris, of 1282 Pembroke, made two conditions of the probation that Harris seek psychiatric help and "abstain completely" from alcohol during the two-year period.

"This will be very difficult for you, but it can be done," Drake told Harris after hearing from defence lawyer Gregory Greiner that most of Harris' problems stemmed from family difficulties and his alcoholism.

The judge had earlier convicted Harris on the charge which involved a .22-calibre automatic pistol found by police officers in Harris' car when they checked it, acting on information received, the morning of Dec. 4.

Crown counsel Cecil Branson said that while one "must have a certain degree of sympathy for this man," one must also take into consideration that he could be dangerous to the public.

"He probably doesn't mean to be dangerous, but he drinks and then he assaults people, and with a weapon, goodness knows the harm he could do," Branson said.

He noted that Harris had quite a lengthy criminal record including a number of assault convictions.

Drake said, however, that the weapons offence was "different in character" from the assaults, although it was related to them in that it also involved drinking and family problems.

Layoff Stirs Political Pot

Word that 137 Esquimalt Dockyard tradesmen will be laid off before the end of the month — coming in the midst of a federal election campaign — has created some bubbles in the political pot.

A Conservative candidate has called on the government to protect the jobs of the men who, as workers in a government shipyard, are federal employees.

A Liberal candidate has called the plight of the tradesmen "most unfortunate," but says they can expect to be rehired in January.

And a union official says the development won't help local Liberal candidates seeking election Oct. 30.

The candidates, both seeking election in Victoria, are Conservative Allan McKinnon and Liberal David Groos, who was the sitting member when the election was called. The unionist is Neil Hindle, business agent with the International Brotherhood of Boilermakers.

Confirmation of the planned layoffs was received from Ottawa by both McKinnon and Groos.

In an earlier statement, Commodore R. V. Henning, commander of CFB Esquimalt, said no layoffs were expected in November or December and that a big workload was expected in January.

Henning was in Halifax Monday, but a military spokesman at Esquimalt said "it was clear" the commander's statement meant only that there would be no layoffs as a result of the election.

The spokesman said that even with the layoffs, the work force of tradesmen would be bigger than usual.

Hindle said he understood there were about 1,100 tradesmen working at Dockyard and admitted this was more than usual.

But something had to be done about the up-and-down work picture in the shipyards, he said, referring to the number of slack periods that occur locally.

"We can say thank you for what we have now, but we have to get away from this peaks and valleys system," he said.

In a telegram sent late Monday to Acting Defence Minister C. M. Drury, McKinnon suggested there was a backlog of "lower priority" work sufficient to keep the men employed.

He appealed to Drury to see that the men were kept on the job.

"Local economy is too tightly-stretched at present to accept additional layoffs of this magnitude," he said in the telegram.

McKinnon said in an interview the layoffs would be the result of a money shortage and not a shortage of work.

Groos said it was unfortunate that such action had to be taken, but that he wasn't in a position to interfere with the operation of Dockyard. He was assured there would be enough work to justify rehiring in January.

Layoffs have become common in recent years in shipyard work.

"But you don't hear much from the politicians when there isn't an election campaign," one Victoria union official said.

'Massive Rip-Off'

Housing Fear

Apartment tenants face a "massive rip-off" by owners seeking to convert to condominiums unless municipal governments can have some control, Oak Bay Ald. Brian Smith said Monday night.

Smith said he was really concerned about the increasing number of conversions from apartment to condominium use of property.

"Renters who don't have the capital (between $60,000 and $70,000) to buy the apartment buildings they are living in are going to be put out on the street," said Smith.

It is, he said, a dangerous social trend.

Smith wants to see legislation, along the lines of zoning legislation so that "an owner cannot simply take any frame building he can no longer write off for income tax purposes and say he is going to sell the apartments individually."

Councils, he said, should determine if individual conversions were economically and socially suitable and take a proper vote of everyone in the building concerned to see if they want to buy.

It was decided to write to the provincial government drawing the matter to its attention, and suggesting that municipal councils be given jurisdiction.

Too Much Bureaucracy---Calder

Team To Study Indian Problems

If an Indian affairs branch is set up in B.C., it will be over the dead body of Frank Calder, minister without portfolio.

Instead Calder will lead a three-man team in a survey to determine how much B.C. is doing for its 55,000 status Indians and how the services could be improved.

In a news conference Monday afternoon, Calder charged that Indians were faced with too much bureaucracy in Canada as it was.

The survey, which will take from 12 months to two years to complete, would not recommend establishment of an Indian affairs branch because many Indian problems could be solved by existing government departments.

Calder and his executive assistant, Haida Indian Reg Kelly, 58, will be on the survey team with the third appointment yet to be announced.

The team will be aided in its studies by the B.C. Indian Inquiry Committee, a 12-member body set up in 1950 legislation under the B.C. Indian Inquiry Act.

In the act the premier is given power to direct the committee to study any Indian problems but this power has never been used.

Calder said the survey team will get help from the "top young Indian brains in B.C." and will also travel from coast to coast talking to other provinces to see what is being done for Indians.

Claiming the survey was "the beginnings of a Magna Carta" for B.C. Indians he said the team would be going into areas where "provinces once feared to tread."

"We intend to be bold in a field where there was been a reluctance in the past for provinces to spend money," Calder added.

Funds will come from the provincial government and according to Calder "I don't thing we'll have to cry for funds."

King, who was educated in Nanaimo, has substantial experience in federal and provincial dealings with Indian problems.

According to Calder he is the "best executive assistant" in the NDP government.

Principals: More Say

Wednesday has been set as the day for the changeover of the administrative organization of the Greater Victoria school district to a new system as recommended in a management study.

The school board Monday night approved six proposals to implement the study which was completed last month by Price Waterhouse Associates Ltd.

The board also reorganized its own committee structure to conform with the new administrative setup.

The board also agreed to take immediate steps to initiate a program of responsibility accounting with financial controls as set out in the report.

This will mean that individual administrators, for example school principals, will take more responsibility for the planning and spending of funds directly under their control.

Price Waterhouse Associates will be retained by the board to assist in the implementation of the responsibility accounting programming.

They will be paid a maximum of $11,000 for their work in this regard. The board approved payment to the firm of $13,500 for their original study.

In reorganizing its committee structure, the board agreed that for the last two months of 1972, trustee Peter Bunn would chair a school support committee; trustee Walter Donald, a business and legal committee; trustee Phillip Ney, a curriculum committee, and trustee Hal Knight, an administration committee.

In other business, the board:

- Approved in principle a proposal to initiate two schools with alternate philosophies for September, 1973. The board was told that no firm decision has yet been made on where the schools will be located.
- Agreed that students and school counsellors should join a committe of special counsellors and administrators preparing a brief on drug education.

Car Break Beached Sailor

It was just bad luck that caused a Russian seaman to miss his ship last week in Victoria.

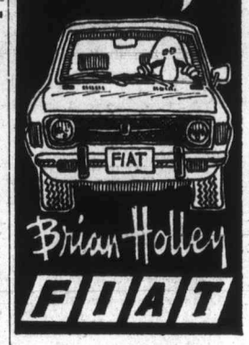

Vasily Nikolaivich Parashchansky was a machinist aboard the Soviet fish factory ship Tekhnolog, which put into Victoria after nets fouled per propeller.

He came ashore to visit a Russian-speaking resident, then when he was being driven back to Ogden Point the car broke down. As a result, the Tekhnolog had sailed when he reached the dock.

Parashchansky reported to city police and immigration officials, and was taken to Vancouver where he boarded another Russian ship.

Willingdon School

NDP Kills 'Monster'

Willingdon girls' school in Burnaby will be phased out of operation by April 1, Rehabilitation Minister Norman Levi said Monday.

The reform school, once labelled "that monster of a school" by the now-Education Minister Eileen Dailly, holds 55 girls. Alternative living facilities will be made available according to Levi.

Explaining his department's decision Levi said: "The policy of the government is to give service to children, and anyone else, as far as possible within their own community.

"I believe the time is long past when children are incarcerated for being termed unmanageable or incorrigible."

The minister added that the period was over of sending children out of their own communities for an indefinite time because they are apparently "sexually immoral or cannot be handled by their parents."

Another reason for phasing out the girls' school, Levi said, was because the facility was "totally under-used."

Jobs would be found for the school staff of 53.

Levi said the government's main concern in closing Willingdon was for the girls at the school, adding that he did not believe it would serve any useful purpose for the public to become involved in a debate as to the merits of an operation being phased out.

When she was in opposition, Mrs. Dailly urged closure of the school, and said the buildings should be turned over to the elderly for recreation.

Three-Way Co-operation

Thetis Solution Forecast

The long-standing controversy over who should pay for the maintenance of Thetis Lake Paark will be solved within the next six months, according to Victoria Ald. Clyde Savage.

In an interview, Savage said he is confident that co-operation between the city, the Capital Regional Board and the provincial government will bring about the solution to the problem.

He said he believes the provincial government through its greenbelt fund will finance the purchase of 240 acres of land adjacent to the park. That land is part of the Thetis Lake watershed and if development takes place on it, the lake might become polluted.

The next step, Savage said, would be the transfer of the entire park to the regional board.

"We have been discussing the future of the park for quite a number of years, but I am sure that we are close to concluding the entire chapter," Savage said.

As regional parks committee chairman, he said, he would be completely in favor of including Thetis Lake Park in the region's parks system.

Thetis Lake Park, a 1,100-acre wilderness sanctuary, is located about six miles north of the city limits. It is heavily used by residents from all parts of the region, but financed exclusively by Victoria taxpayers. Before it became a park, Thetis Lake was part of the city's water supply system.

Land-Use Report Triggers Silence

There has been almost no public response to a land-use study released two weeks ago, Capital Regional Board officials said Monday.

The report, which will be discussed at this Wednesday's meeting of the regional planning committee, listed five alternatives that could be applied in the region's future development.

The most striking proposal called for the establishment of two satellite towns, one in Central Saanich, the other in Colwood. The other alternatives were: continuing present development policies; directing development to the Highlands; directing development to Colwood, Langford and Metchosin; increasing development in the urban core and Saanich Peninsula.

What counts is what comes with the keys.

Yes, we rent cars. But excellence is our business.

And no businessman can afford to discount excellence. Hertz certainly doesn't . . . for any reason. That's why we became the leader in the car rental business. Our standard of excellence is based on this premise:

"Each Hertz customer is an individual. He is entitled to the car he wants; when and as he wants it; to the best car . . . serviced to provide top performance; and he is entitled to the best service possible."

Renting a car is not just renting a set of keys. What counts is what comes with them. And Hertz offers more than anyone else in the business.

THE STAMP PACKET

Chalk One Up For Variety

By FAITH ANGUS

The old adage that variety is the spice of life is truly an integral part of philately. The scrutiny of every stamp for varieties whether major or minor, develops the power of concentration and observation and occasionally can be very rewarding.

A new variety has been found on the Plains Indian commemorative set issued by Canada on July 6. The left side of "N" in the word "Plains" in English, is much shorter than the right side. This variety appears on every stamp in the top row of every pane.

According to Lorne Bentham, Ottawa correspondent for the Western Stamp Collector, a plate block of the 6c value of last year's Christmas series on cream non-fluorescent paper, is very scarce and could become one of the scarcest of Canada's modern plate blocks. The 1971 Christmas set of four values was originally printed on fluorescent paper.

When further supplies of the 6c value were required, a second printing was produced in a limited quantity on cream non-fluorescent paper, making plate blocks of this printing scarce.

A mint block of four of the 5c current definitive on hybrite paper realized $24 recently in a Vancouver auction. Three different papers were used to print the 1967 definitive set and many commemoratives issued from that year to date, which is making them popular among serious Canadian collectors. The different papers are non-fluorescent, fluorescent and hybrite.

Guernsey's 10p. definitive stamp has been reprinted on the new Crown Agents multipurpose coated paper. The original paper used was No. 3 coated.

Three stamps depicting musical angels will be released by Great Britian on October 18 as a Christmas set. The designs by Sally Stiff are — 2½p., angel with trumpet; 3p., angel playing a flute; 7½p., angel playing a harp. Each stamp is in seven colours photogravure printed by Harrisons.

There will also be a 5p. airletter, presentation packs, a special first day cover and two pictorial handstamps with snowflake design, one to be used at the Philatelic Bar, Edinburgh; the other at Bethlehem, Llandello, Carms.

The 3c Christmas stamp issued by Niue on October 4, reproduces the Virgin and Child by Murillo. The same design has been used on New Zealand's 3c stamp.

Rates Rise Hits Arctic

FROBISHER BAY, N.W.T. (CP) — Increased marine freight rates in the Arctic have created a near-emergency supply situation in the Baffin Island area, Deputy Commissioner John Parker told the current session of the Northwest Territories council.

Eastern Arctic member Bryan Pearson, a businessman in several Baffin Island communities, said rates had increased "almost threefold from $45 a ton last year to $125 a ton this year."

Passerby looks into window of Times Square topless bar in New York City. In fair or foul weather, scores of people jockey for best peekaboo position in front of plateglass windows. You can leer all you want from the street and it's all legal, courtesy of state regulations which require all street-side taverns to have at least one four-by-two-foot opening so constructed as to "afford clear visibility from the street."

Accent on Technique

By BERT BINNY

The Victoria Musical Art Society opened its 1972-73 season of five concerts with a program at the McPherson Playhouse Sunday afternoon.

The audience was on the small side. There is little question as to the technical artistry of such performers as violinist Derek Collier, pianist Robin Wood and singer Faith Webster who provided Sunday afternoon's program.

But technical artistry by itself has serious limitations as a drawing card.

Alone it is like a picture without a frame or a well-formed skeleton bereft of flesh, heart, color or expression. Only a few comprehend or appreciate it. It needs the spark and pulse of life before it will begin to attract any but the most select attention.

In other words, even technical artistry more often than not needs presentation: Perhaps the addition of an emcee, an occasional variation in lighting or even something quite unexpected.

Mrs. Webster's second group of songs in which she was accompanied by pianist Richard Proudman was more acceptable than her first. The first included four folk songs from four different countries with accompaniment by guitarist Frank Keifer. Of these, the Canadian I Dyed My Petticoat Red, had the greatest appeal. The version presented of the well-known English Greensleeves seemed to be taking on the lengthy proportions of another Poly-Olbion and one looked for more distinct feeling in the Russian Katiusha.

Mrs. Webster displays a strong voice and musical precision but her interpretations require greater variation and clarity.

The combination of Collier and Wood was always quite delightful, the Vivace movement from Dag Wiren's Sonatina being particularly enjoyable.

B.C. vs. Ottawa Housing Schemes

No More 'Ghettos'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Municipal Affairs Minister James Lorimer said Sunday the provincial government would no longer become involved in federal housing schemes which do not provide a variety of housing in various social and economic areas.

He said many existing low-income housing projects are nothing more than "ghettos which create more social problems than they solve."

He was commenting on a letter from Urban Affairs Minister Ron Basford offering substantial additional federal money toward such projects during the current fiscal year, ending March 31.

Lorimer said the letter did not make specific proposals but dealt only in generalities "which we are following up."

He said future schemes would have to provide a complete mix of housing types including rental, lease, for-sale and subsidized accommodation.

On another matter, Lorimer said no further subdivision will be allowed in the Gulf Islands until a complete study of the island's future has been completed.

Pollen Learns from Europe

Cities Must Be 'Human Places'

By HUBERT BEYER

Action rather than talk, political decision-making rather than philosophizing, should be the motto in Victoria's future development, Mayor Peter Pollen said Monday.

In an interview following his return from a two-week European tour, the mayor said Canadian cities could learn a lot from European cities when it comes to planning.

Instead of debating for years the pros and cons of specific planning policies, European cities, Pollen said, decide on a course of action and then follow that course without hesitation.

Unless similar attitudes are adopted in Canada, cities will find themselves in trouble, he added.

"Our cities must be more than centres of political hogwash aimed at making a bunch of businessmen happy. They must become human places," Pollen said.

"If we don't act soon, our cities will turn into places where we live like vicious, anti-human animals," he said. New York was a perfect example of what would be in store for Canada's cities.

The tour during which the mayor, accompanied by a number of city staff, Victoria businessmen and architects, visited several European cities to investigate their planning schemes, was a complete success, Pollen said.

"We had our traffic engineer, our assistant planner and our comptroller along, and these people can't help but bring forward ideas for council's consideration that have been sparked, or at least influenced, by the experience gathered during this trip," he said.

Most impressive, he said was the determination with which European cities planned their future. In most cases, long-range plans were prepared and implemented by well-informed politicians assisted by an equally well-informed civil service.

Pollen cited Munich's development of an extensive pedestrian mall in the downtown area as an example of far-sighted planning.

"The thing is that it wasn't developed primarily to satisfy businessmen, but to create a place where people can communicate with each other."

Although the examples set by European cities couldn't be exactly imitated in Victoria, they were still applicable in a broad sense, the mayor said.

"Cities must be for people and that seems to be recognized in Europe."

Decisions made by political bodies in European cities, he said, were invariably in the interest of the community as a whole. If those decisions didn't suit any particular group, that was just too bad.

"They are just far ahead of us in everything; be it the development of adequate transportation systems, the development of satellite cities, or the development of pedestrian malls," Pollen said.

Commenting on the additional $240 expense money received by one alderman and three staff members, Pollen said, "If someone wants to play petty politics, that's his prerogative."

He pointed out that only half of the $3,000 allocated by council to help offset the cost of the trip to the four city representatives had been used. It was originally anticipated, he said, that more than four city staff would attend the tour.

The mayor paid for his trip without financial assistance from city coffers. The others received $500 plus the additional $240.

East Sooke Oil Spill

'Mess' Attacked

The Capital Regional Board will join hands with the federal transport department in the cleanup of a small beach near East Sooke Park which has been polluted by several barrels of bunker sea oil.

"It's a disgusting mess," Larry Slaght, district manager for the transport department, said in Victoria Monday.

"We suspect that the oil was illegally discharged from the bilges of some passing ship, but it's going to be almost impossible to pin the blame on anyone," Slaght added.

The beach, located in Iron Mine Cove is still privately-owned, but the regional board plans to incorporate it into the park.

Slaght said two men from the regional board and two from the transport department will clean the beach within three or four days. The oil covering some of the shoreline rocks will be "taken care of by nature this winter."

—Always remembered by Mrs. R. Burton.

HARRIS—In ever loving memory of my dear wife Pattie, who passed away October 16th, 1970.
The rolling stream of life rolls on
But still the vacant chair,
—Remembered by her husband.

LANGFORD — In loving memory of our father, Francis Langford, who passed away October 16, 1970.
Gone, dear father, gone forever;
How we miss your smiling face
But you left us to remember
A happy home we once enjoyed,
How sweet the memory still,
But death has left a loneliness
The world can never fill.
—Always remembered by his loving daughter, Wendy and son, Norman.

LANGFORD — In loving memory of my husband, Francis Langford, who passed away October 16, 1970.
I seem to see in the soft dim light
A face I loved the best
And think of him when the sun's last ray
Goes down in the far off west.
I miss you no less as the time passes on
Than I did on the day of your going
For absence can never close the door of my heart
And the lamp of my love is still glowing
Your heart was the truest in all the wide world;
Your love the best to recall;
For no one on earth could take your place,
You are the dearest of all.
—Always remembered by his loving wife, Mae.

METCALF — In memory of Joseph Banks Metcalf, beloved husband and father, who departed this life on Octoer 17, 1958.
In the morning, and at the setting of the sun,
We remember him.
—His wife and family.

9 IN MEMORIAM

PATTERSON — In fond and cherished memory of a dearly beloved husband, father and grandfather, Norman W. Patterson, who passed away on October 17, 1971.
His smiling way and pleasant face.
Are a pleasure to recall.
He had a kindly word for each
And died beloved by all.
Some day we hope to meet him,
Some day we know not when
To clasp his hand in a better land
Never to part again.
—Always in our thoughts and sadly missed by his loving wife Sadie, daughter Lorraine, sons Malcolm, Gary, their families and Emily Parkinson.

ROBINSON — In loving memory of a dear husband, father and grandfather, Victor L. Robinson, who passed away October 17, 1971.

Within our hearts he liveth still.

Bruce Lowther

Canada has the honor of being the first country where television showed the two famous Swedish sex movies I Am Curious Yellow and I Am Curious Blue.

A Toronto report says the two were shown last week on CITY-TV, a newly-opened community programming channel in Toronto. There is no word on citizen reaction to the movies or what times they were shown, but CITY-TV says it has bought three similar films for broadcast soon.

Speaking of movies, Love Story captured around 60 per cent of the U.S. audience when it was shown on ABC recently. The network says there were few complaints about the dirty words that were not cut out and quite a few protests about apparent nudity and sacrilege. Ah well . . .

BUREAU OF USELESS INFORMATION: Saturday's answer — So you're an expert on Team Canada? Its scores in Canada were 7-3 for Russia, 4-1 Canada, 4-4 and then 5-3 Russia. In Sweden, it was 4-1 Canada and then 4-4. In Russia, the string was 5-4 Russia and then Canada by 4-3, 3-2 and 6-5. And in Czechoslovakia, 3-3. Some day I'll ask who played goal each game.

Today's question takes us back to earlier television and we'll be staying there for a while yet. Name the actor who starred both in Hennesey and People's Choice, his job in each and which one had the dog. Answers Wednesday.

"I was watching 'Password' and the word was 'TAXES'."

Tuesday Movies

9:30 a.m. — Night Without Sleep (slow 1952 amnesia thing), Gary Merrill, Linda Darnell, Hildegarde Neff. This guy has a night without sleep and gets amnesia; I had one once and got a carbuncle — 4.

C 12:00 noon—Naked Dawn (fairish 1956 nasty-people drama), Arthur Kennedy. Which means good acting — 13.

12:45—Only Two Can Play (1962 romanticomedy, also fairish), Peter Sellers, Richard Attenborough, Mai Zetterling — 6, 8.

C 4:00 p.m.—Our Man Flint (popular 1966 spy spoof), James Coburn, Lee Cobb, many busty ladies — 7.

C 7:00 — Longstreet (1970 James Franciscus). It's all right but the series it led to is already gone — 12.

C 7:30 — Zita (1968 bad-girl drama), Joanna Shimkus, Katina Paxinou. It probably has been edited, but if not, the skin total is high — 13.

C 8:00 — Can Can (loud 1960 musical), Sinatra, Chevalier, Shirley MacLaine. I can but I don't want to — 12.

C 9:30 — Sand Castles (new ghostly romance), Herschel Bernardi, Jan-Michael Vincent, Bonnie Bedelia. Only for spook fans — 7.

11:30 — The Day They Robbed the Bank of England (third-rate 1960 caper thing), Peter O'Toole, Aldo Ray. Brucie's Law: A safety deposit box in Warsaw is located in a Pole vault — 7, 12.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE

by IRA G. CORN JR.
World Champions — TEAM CAPTAIN

The hands played in the qualifying rounds of the recent World Bridge Olympiad were duplicated, which made it possible to play the same hands in each individual match at the same time. Not only did this minimize possible inequalities caused by the luck of the deal, it provided for some interesting comparisons (19 different matches were played simultaneously).

Today's slam hand was such a hand. If a diamond slam was bid from the "right side" of the table all was well; if not, declarer had a vicious problem on his hands.

Opening lead: Nine of hearts.

In the match between France and India, North became declarer at the diamond slam after an involved sequence of bidding. After using the Stayman convention and finding no fourcard major, South's three-heart call was a waiting bid and after the three-no-trump response, his bid of six diamonds offered a choice between diamonds and no trump. Because of his initial Stayman response North became the declarer and his problems were minimal.

Declarer won the heart, drew trumps and took his best play for the contract — a lead to South's club queen. East had the king and North was able to discard a spade on his club ace to make the slam.

When played by The Aces, East's pre-emptive bid of three clubs complicated matters. After North's double, South cue-bid to show a good hand (he had passed three clubs) and when North repeated the cue bid, South became the declarer.

Against Ace Bobby Wolff West led the club jack and the play to the first trick took quite some time — and some age from Bobby's life span.

He had only two chances to make the hand. He could play West for five spades and one club or he could play West for two clubs and any other reasonable distribution. He chose the latter and ducked the lead to East's king. The club ruff beat him immediately.

Had Wolff selected the other line he would have made the hand. After winning the club ace, trumps would be drawn, the three high hearts cashed and then three rounds of spades. West would be stuck with the lead and forced to yield a ruff and discard for the twelfth trick.

Indians Placated by 500-Sockeye Catch

TOFINO — A dispute over how many sockeye salmon Indians should be allowed to take from Tofino Inlet under their native rights appears to have been settled after several meetings with fisheries department officials, but some non-Indian fishermen are upset.

Dick Crouter, manager of southern B.C. operations for the department, said that the Indian-manned seiner Three Sons took 500 fish Saturday, after Indians reduced demand from 150 fish per Indian family.

He said this "would have run into the thousands" and possibly damaged the Kennedy River sockeye run, which goes up Tofino Inlet. The department estimated the run at only 15,000 to 20,000 fish.

Earlier, the Indians had been forbidden by local fisheries staff from taking any fish from the inlet. They protested and met with Fisheries Minister Jack Davies when he came to Port Alberni Wednesday as part of the federal election campaign.

The ban was lifted Friday after further meetings with fisheries officials, Crouter said.

As the Indians fished Saturday, seven trollers manned by white commercial fishermen were present as a protest, Crouter said. Four Indian-manned trollers were also there, and a fisheries patrol boat stood by but no one interferred with the seiner, he said.

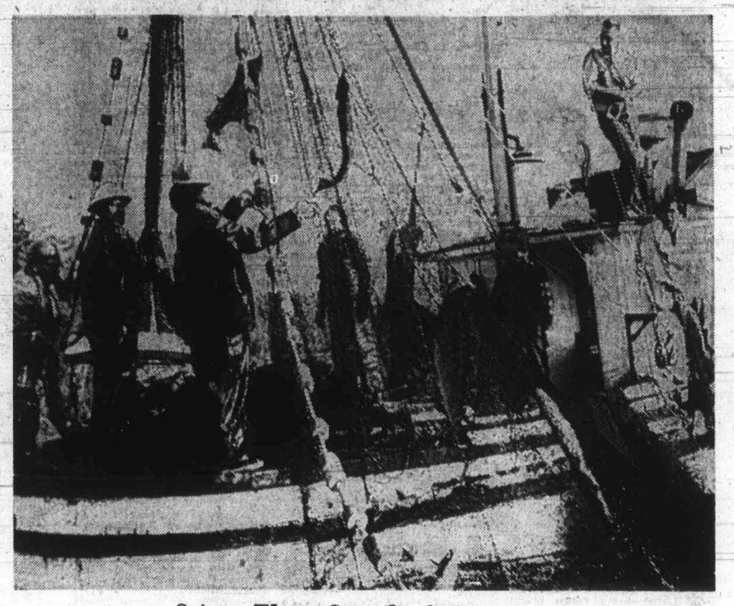

Local fisheries officer Nick Seymour, who recommended the ban on fishing by either Indians or whites, handed in his resignation, said Crouter, but has agreed to reconsider and will probably withdraw it.

He said Seymour wrote the resignation out and mailed it before the department had made its estimate of the numbers of sockeye in the Kennedy run and determined that it was safe for the Indians to take 500. Of the 500 caught Saturday, only 200 were sockeye and the rest were coho, he said.

Doug Arnett, a spokesman for 100 commercial fishermen based in Tofino, said Saturday that they were still upset about the Indians being allowed to fish when whites were forbidden.

He said the Ahousat Indians offered the Tofino Indians 1,000 dog salmon to help out, but they were refused. The situation has become political, he said.

Protesting non Indian fishermen also left their larger trollers and took small boats to get closer to the Indian seiner. They said that many fish let go were dead or half drowned.

Murder Trial Jury Picked

NANAIMO — A jury of 10 men and two women has been selected to hear the first trial in the fall session of B.C. Supreme Court which opened here Monday.

The first trial to be heard is that of Michael Sean McCormick, of Nanaimo who is charged with non-capital murder. The charge arose April 22 in a shooting incident at the Longhouse Restaurant, 10 Front Street in which 16-year-old Brenda Eileen Daniluck was shot.

Crown counsel David Williams QC of Duncan, told the jury at the outset that he will attempt to prove through the trial that the shooting was a deliberate act, that McCormick "did what he intended and wanted to do."

Evidence will also be introduced, he said, to show that at least two other persons were struck by bullets in or near the restaurant before the suspect was subdued.

Williams also said the first witnesses will be Nanaimo hospital pathologist Dr. Stanley Grant, who performed an autopsy on the dead girl and examined one of the victims o fthe shooting, Richard Coulton of Nanaimo, who is still receiving medical treatment for injuries received in the incident.

The case is being held before Mr. Justice Peter Seaton.

Williams will be assisted by Nanaimo lawyer Alan Filmer in presenting the crown's case.

Defence counsel is R. M. J. Hutchinson, also of Nanaimo.

Truck Strike Ends

DUNCAN — A four-day truck drivers' strike ended at Sunday midnight with the return to work of the 140 drivers.

After a meeting Sunday morning held at the offices of the IWA, the men voted 81 to 26 in favor of accepting a two year contract worked out by negotiators for the union and the four trucking firms involved.

Under the new contract, the men will receive a 47 cent increase effective June 15, 1972, and another 40 cent increase effective June 15, 1973. Health and welfare benefits will be the same as the logging industry.

IWA Vice President Fernie Viala said the union made a major breakthrough in negotiating a dental plan for the truckers. Beginning Nov. 1 the employers will pay 60 per cent, and the drivers 40 per cent of their dental bills. By January, 1974, this ratio will increase to 80 per cent paid by the employer and 20 per cent by the employee.

The four companies struck by the truckers were Doman's Arrow, Hearsey and Quay. Negotiators from the firms and from the union had been working on a new contract since last June 15, when the old one expired.

Orangemen	4	0	3	1	1

Agile goalkeeping was the outstanding feature in Sunday's play in the Vancouver Island Men's Field Hockey Association.

Al Shaw hammered in three goals, giving him a total of 10 in his last three games, and Wayne Thompson and Mike Wilson got the other goals.

● Sherlock leads the league in shutouts — but only just.

● Right behind him is Sam Laub who got his second shutout Sunday when Tigers downed University of Victoria Vikings, 4-0, at UVic.

Food Price Hikes Seen

NANAIMO — Tommy Douglas, incumbent Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands candidate, says food wholesalers on the Island plan price increases of up to 15 per cent over the next few months.

"The manager of a large store took me to the back and showed me a bulletin of wholesale prices that will climb from 7½ to 15 per cent," Douglas said Sunday night at a political rally.

"I'm often alarmed by price increases, but this projection is frightening," he said.

Douglas, just back from a week-long tour of Saskatchewan where he was once premier, is also former national NDP leader.

He said an NDP government would set up a prices review board which would scrutinize price increases like the ones he forecast.

He said he is not in favor of sweeping price controls, but suggested that controls on about 30 key items might solve the problem.

B.C. Wins West Title

CALGARY—Gary McLaren of Victoria scored the equalizer Sunday when B.C. tied Alberta, 1-1, and took the Western Canada under-19 soccer championship.

Matteo Piscopo had scored for Alberta moments before McLaren, midway through the second half, and the tie stopped B.C. making a sweep. B.C. had beaten Saskatchewan, 6-0, and Manitoba, 4-1, Saturday.

B.C. will now represent the west against the eastern champion in a national final in Toronto.

John McGuire, Wayning Lee and Helge Fylling, all of Victoria, also played for B.C. but none of the Island boys were named to the Canadian under-19 team. Only Mike McLenaghen and Mark McQueen of Vancouver were chosen from B.C. for the side to play in a tourney in Nicaragua in January.

UBC Girls Win Title

EDMONTON — University of British Columbia crushed University of Alberta, 6-0, in the last game Sunday to win the Canada West University Athletic Association women's field hockey tournament.

UBC earlier downed University of Victoria, 4-1. In other games, Calgary defeated UVic, 2-1, Saskatchewan down Edmonton, 1-0, and Calgary and Saskatchewan tied, 2-2.

Safe Keeping

For the past week or so I have been yakking away in this column about taking us and storing the bulbs and tubers of our not-quite-hardy flowers. I thought I was doing a pretty good job with this subject of winter storage, but I got a blast the other day from one of my regular readers who pointed out that I hadn't as much as mentioned the harvesting and winter storage of things like carrots, onions and spuds.

This was an unforgivable oversight on my part, for I can't imagine anything more discouraging to the home gardener than to have all her lovely vegetables go bad in storage. After all the sweat and labor that has gone into their raising, it is heartbreaking to have the potatoes start rotting or blue mould form on the onions.

I'd like to talk theory for a bit before getting down to actual cases, for there are a few basic principles which must be followed if vegetables are to be stored successfully through the winter, and I would say the first and most important of these principles is to store only your sound and healthy specimens. A potato speared by the digging fork or a slug damaged carrot simply will not keep in storage.

A second and equally important principle is to store only mature vegetables, for specimens which have not been allowed to complete their growth have a very short storage life. Baby carrots, baby beets, crisp and mild green onions, finger-length zucchini — these all make grand eating straight from the garden, but they are far too young and sappy to remain in good condition in winter storage.

Onions with thick necks, potatoes which were dug before the skins were set, hairy carrots and immature squash should all be sent to the kitchen to be used up right away, for to put them in storage is only asking for trouble — trouble which could spread all through your stored vegetables, like the traditional rotten apple in the barrel.

Next to maturity and sound health, the most important factor in the safe storage of vegetables is the temperature, and this, ideally, should be as close to the freezing point as possible without actual frost — in practice, between 32 and 40 degrees.

This temperature range is not too hard to maintain in a farm dugout or in an old-fashioned root cellar, but it is difficult to find a suitable place in the modern furnace-heated home. A 50-degree fruit cupboard is better than nothing, but storage life is correspondingly reduced.

A fourth factor is humidity, for vegetables will become dehydrated and shrivel in dry air. Here again, the old root cellar and dugout score heavily, for the dirt floor contributes quite a bit of moisture to the air. The very dry winter air of a furnace-heated home can be counteracted to some extent by burying such vegetables as carrots and beets in boxes of slightly moistened peat moss, sawdust or sand.

A fifth factor — and this is an important one — is ventilation, for unless there is some air movement through the storage place, it becomes stuffy and musty, leading to all kinds of queer rots and moulds and taints. The dugout and the root cellar, so excellent in other respects, are often leaking in adequate ventilation.

Cleanliness and freedom from smells are esseptial, of course. I think I told you earlier about the time when the family's winter footwear was stored inadvertently in the same basement room as the vegetables; the ghost of rubber boots appeared at every meal!

These, then, are the theoretical considerations. In future columns I will outline practical storage conditions for a few of our more common vegetables.

Ghosts or Plumbing?

My friend Russ Ledabrand, has called on me to help him find some haunted houses for a book he hopes to publish.

"I've seen some pretty weird houses in my time," he says, "and many in which I would not like to have been after dark; but truthfully I know of none that were haunted."

In asking me for help he leans on a frail reed. I do not believe in ghosts. I believe in coincidence; in inexplicable phenomena; in the power of the imagination; but I do not believe in ghosts.

I'm not saying a house can't be haunted. A house can be haunted by coincidences, inexplicable phenomena and imagination.

A large, old house is more likely to be haunted than a brand new tract house. It creaks; it has attics and basements and dark passages.

It has been lived in, perhaps, by generations of now departed souls, and when the pipes thump at minight, or the mice frolic in the walls, it is natural enough for the new tenants to imagine that some restless predecessor has returned.

If a couple living in a large old house are awakened by a thumping, as of a man walking with a peg leg, the wife is likely to say to her husband, "It's Capt. Trombley come back."

If the same couple were awakened in a new house though, the husband would say, "Go to sleep, its only the plumbing."

If I believed at all in ghosts I would certainly have believed we had one when the airedale got under the house and kept bumping his head against the pipes and ate the television cable.

A few years ago the Hollywood journalist, Joe Hyams, was immoderately excited, it seemed to me, over certain phenomena that occurred in the house then occupied by him and his bride, the actress Elke Sommer.

I should think a man could put up with a lot of thumping pipes and noisy mice for the compensations of living in a house with Ms. Sommer.

Hyams, however, wrote two or three magazine articles about their ghost, and Ms. Sommer, I see by a brochure that has just come in the mail, is going to speak about it at a convention of hypnotists next month in Las Vegas.

Outside of the dog banging his head under the house, the closest thing we've ever had to a ghost in our house was my wife's dressmaking dummy.

It was one of those headless torsos that seamstresses use. Our house was so small there was no place to keep it but the bedroom, and whenever I got up at night in the dark to see what was making the pipes thump the dummy would attack me.

Finally, after one particularly nasty encounter, I wrestled the thing to the living room and threw it out the french doors. In time it went to the Goodwill.

Some years ago I was sent out to interview Hans Holzer, a New York parapsycholgist who specialized in exorcising ghosts from haunted houses. He was in town with his medium, Sybil Leek.

Together, he told me, they would visit a haunted house, and Ms. Leek, being psychic, would talk to the ghost and relay its message to Holzer, and in turn relay his message to the ghost.

"I try to get it to leave," he said. "I tell it, 'There's no use hanging around here — it's 100 years later.' The difficult part is convincing the ghost he's dead. They don't believe it."

While he was explaining all this to me, Ms. Leek was sunning herself at the hotel pool, several storeys below his window.

"I'll try to get through to her," Holzer said, as I remember, and we went to the window and looked down to the pool. Ms. Leek was in a deck chair.

Holzer kept staring at her, concentrating. Finally he cupped his hands. "Sybil!" he called. Ms. Leek turned and looked up.

It was a minor failure, but I have never believed in haunted houses since.

A Vanishing Breed

JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD — Taking Edy Williams into the Brown Derby at lunchtime is like tossing a Miss Universe finalist in front of Warren Beatty. Edy was very fetching in skin-tight jeans and a bare midriff blouse that reminded one of a barbed wire fence. It protected the poperty but didn't obstruct the view. Once Edy went to the ladies' room. As she passed by a table of men, they all stood up and gave her a standing ovation. Edy is one of the last of a vanishing breed in Hollywood — the sex symbol. Edy and Raquel Welch and where do you go from there? And she's capitalizing on that image in Foxy, in which she will be the star. It will be produced and directed by her husban,d Russ Meyer, king of the nudies.

"I get a chance to do what Mae West did — treat men as sex objects. The beauty of Foxy is that I get to be Mae for one film, sort of a superwoman of sex, the snappy one-liners, the whole bit." Edy thinks there is a little of Mae West in every woman, a fact which would account for Mae's vast popularity over the years. "There isn't a housewife who wouldn't love to be able to lay her libido on the line and destroy guys with Hal Kanter lines. Every woman really would like to launch the attack. That's what Women's Lib is all about but the women's libbers don't know it. They are against women as sex objects but Mae West was and still is a sex object and she was the first great warrior for Women's Lib."

Edy is even writing Mae West-type lines for Foxy. Mae never utered a line on stage or screen that she didn't write herself. Some of Edy's printable lines are: "Why don't you pick me up and stroke me, sometime? I dig men in all shapes, sizes and colors. Why don't you climb into my Jacuzzi?"

She will be completely nude for several scenes in Foxy. This, surprisingly, embarrasses her.

Out with the sporting crowd the other night at the Beverly Hills club where Gene and Fran Klein tossed a dinner party. Gene is the owner of the San Diego Chargers, among other things. Don Klosterman, general manager of the Los Angeles Rams, gave out with some good news. Our mutual friend, Frank Leahy, is feeling fine due to acupuncture. The famed Notre Dame coach is suffering from leukemia and was advised by Mayo clinic to forgo any more blood transfusions. Don said acupuncture has him walking around like the Leahy of old. It was Irish night at the club. Sugar Ray Robinson and I were the only Irishmen there, but everybody had a good time. You haven't seen anything until you see Sugar Ray on the dance floor. All those years of fancy footwork in the ring paid off.

After 15 years of superstardom, Sophia Loren now will be considered a true star in her home town — Naples. "The one thing that is respected in Naples is singing," writes the greatest piece of Italian architecture since Michaelangelo's heyday. Man of La Mancha is Sophia's first musical and it is being anticipated in Napoli like no other Sophia Loren movie. "My Oscar meant nothing in Naples because acting means nothing. In Naples everyone is an actor. But singing, that is another story." When I was in Rome during the shooting of the movie, I heard a playback of Sophia's voice. You'll like it.

One Out of 16 Shoplift

HAL BOYLE

Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

One of the things that makes department store owners glum is the estimate by store detectives that one out of every 16 customers is a shoplifter who comes not to buy but to steal.

Sometimes too many choices lead to indecision. That may be why some supermarket shoppers look harassed. In an ordinary store they have to pick what they need from some 7,000 items on display.

Malnutrition in the elderly, caused by eating too much sugar and other empty calorie foods, often leads to alcoholism.

"Let no more than 10 per cent of the calories you consume day by day be 'naked' or 'empty' calories," warns University of Texas biochemist Dr. Roger J. Williams. "If 90 per cent of the calories one consumes are in the form of wholesome food, malnutrition will never become a rule of life, and individuals will never pass through the "period of preparation" drinking which is the sine qua non of becoming an alcoholic."

Considering how little there actually is of it, gold hardly seems worth all the wars and murders committed for its possession. How small is the supply? Well, if all the gold mined on earth since Columbus sailed to North America was melted into a single metal cube, the cube would be only 50 feet high and 50 feet wide.

Rebirth: Figuratively speaking, it is possible for the meek, self-effacing middle-aged man to turn himself into a tiger. The answer is physical fitness. Tests by a University of Purdue research team found that after four months of physical conditioning middle-aged men tended to improve their personalities by becoming more self-confident, extroverted and emotionally stable.

Groos Says He's Given 'Hard Time'

David Groos, Liberal candidate for Victoria said in a press release Monday that he was "being given a bit of a hard time by one of the candidates, Flemming Hansen of the NDP, for not appearing at some all-candidates meetings."

Groos' statement said, "I think this is less than fair and the public deserves an explanation. As far as I know, I am the only candidate in Victoria who is still trying to hold public meetings where he can be heard and be questioned.

"I am having five of these meetings in different parts of the riding. These are in addition to various coffee parties. I had to make the arrangements for renting the halls and printing the invitations well beforehand.

"From there on I am committed to the dates and if I should get an invitation to an all-candidates meeting at the same time, I just can't go."

The statement went on to explain that Groos couldn't attend the first all-candidates meeting because he was in Edmonton at hearings during which he protested a proposed increase in cablevision rates. He attended the second all-candidates meeting but couldn't attend the next one because of a previously scheduled meeting of his own.

"There will be other meetings which conflict with arrangements I have already made. I have accepted invitations as they came, on a first-come-first-served basis," his statement added.

Dan Heffernan, Progressive Independent candidate for Victoria said in a press release Monday that Canada should become a leader in the pollution control field.

He said in his statement that "when over half of the federal funds put forward for industrial research is used for military purposes such as biological and chemical warfare weapons, something is wrong somewhere."

He called for "closing of the 1,000-square-mile Suffield biological and chemical research and testing station located near Ralston, Alta."

Louis Lindholm, Liberal candidate for Esquimalt-Saanich said in a press release Monday that "judged solely on his record, Robert Stanfield does not deserve the confidence of the Canadian people."

The statement added: "He ran the Nova Scotia government from 1956 until shortly after the provincial election of 1967 and what did his economic program do for the province? Practically bankrupted them as it would bankrupt us if he was allowed to follow the same policies in the federal sphere.

"Let's not make any wrong turns to Conservatism or left turns to socialism. Keep the country on the straight road of Liberalism."

Mike Hall-Patch, independent candidate for Victoria asked in a press release Monday that the public consider "that professional bargainers and union negotiators actually need long, drawn-out, fierce bargaining sessions to show how essential they are."

ROAD TO OTTAWA 72

He advocated that "after a certain time of bargaining, compulsory arbitration should come into force. A management consultant firm should be chosen by both sides. And all arbitration costs should be paid by disputing parties."

As to the death penalty, Hall-Patch's statement said, "Why not?

"The problem of who is to be the executioner can be very simply solved in today's technological society — execution can be made totally impersonal. When a crime results in financial harm to an innocent party, punishment should be oriented toward compensation to the victim."

Hall-Patch adds his attitude about paroles is "the protection of the public comes ahead of the rehabilitation of the prisoner."

Hansen, called Monday on other federal candidates to disclose the amount and source of funds they are spending on the current campaign.

In a statement to the press, Hansen, said, "Liberals and Conservatives not only find a need to be cozy with large corporations to ensure contributions to their campaign coffers, but this goodwill is often purchased at the taxpayers' expense."

The statement added that the NDP "has always felt the public is entitled to know how much candidates spend and where the money comes from."

PROVINCIAL COURT

Thirty-eight bad cheques that brought a 21-year-old Victorian goods and cash worth a total of almost $735 also led Monday in Victoria Provincial Court to a total jail term of one year definite and one year indeterminate.

The Victorian, Kirby Dick, address not known, was sentenced by Judge Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre after pleading guilty to five charges containing a total of 38 counts of false pretences through bad cheques issued in Victoria and Saanich between Aug. 11 and Sept. 30.

"You are simply preying upon the population," St. Jorre told Dick, "and you are preying upon these merchants. You are completely irresponsible, callous, unfeeling."

The judge said the sentence must be "a punishment for you and a deterrent for others."

A Victoria detective told Judge William Ostler that Robert Douglas Collins, 26, of 2863 Parkview, advised police he wrote bad cheques because "he was sick of seeing other people with money and decided to buy clothes and other things for his wife and family."

Collins was remanded to Oct. 31 for a pre-sentence report and sentence. He pleaded guilty to an 18-count charge of false pretences resulting from bad cheques cashed Oct. 5 to 8 in Victoria and Saanich for $1,203 worth of goods.

The detective said Collins wrote the cheques after using $7 to open accounts in two banks. He said Collins "ditched his car" in Sooke after Oct. 8 and went into hiding in a motel but later gave himself up to police.

Ralph Brock Hare, 19, no fixed address, waived a preliminary hearing on a Colwood RCMP charge of armed robbery and was committed by Ostler to Victoria County Court for trial.

Hare was one of six young men charged with armed robbery after a $275 incident early Aug. 26 in a View Royal home while RCMP drug squad members were staked out in the area. Nine shots were fired during the incident but no one was hurt.

Four others have been sentenced to lengthy jail or prison terms while trial for the sixth is set before Ostler Dec. 5.

Suspended sentences and probation were ordered for seven persons in six separate cases, one by St. Jorre and the others by Ostler.

Margaret Lynne Aplin, 26, of 1070 Davie, was put on probation for one year by St. Jorre after pleading guilty Oct. 3 to a two-count charge of possession of a narcotic. Court was told five marijuana plants, two ounces of marijuana in bags, three packages of marijuana seeds and 46 grams of hashish were found July 21 in her residence.

William Alfred Lyle Keddy, 17, of 4036 Carey, and Rhys Allen Thomas, 18, of 811 Leslie, were given one-year probationary terms after pleading guilty Sept. 28 to a joint Victoria charge of taking a parked car without the owner's consent. They admitted doing so to avoid walking home early that day in heavy rain.

Diana Lynn Brown, 18, and Linnea Christine Heatley, 17, both of 560 John, also received one-year probationary terms. They pleaded guilty Sept. 29 to separate Victoria charges of theft involving less than $200 the day before — the shoplifting at The Bay of two items worth a total of $9.66 by Miss Brown and three items worth $19.68 by Miss Heatley.

Steven Walter Curry, 17, of 2605 Avondale, received a six-month probationary term following his plea of guilty to a charge of possession of a narcotic — a small amount of hashish found Friday when police stopped his car in Beacon Hill Park.

Gordon Bruce Michael, 18, of 1252 Pembroke, was put on probation for six months after pleading guilty to a charge of possession of a narcotic — nine small pieces of hashish found early Sunday after police stopped him on a Saanich street.

Fire Death, Drugs Case

Inquiries Expected

Inquiries are expected to be held into two fatal incidents in Victoria, one in a fire and the other a suspected drug overdose, Coroner Edmund Jorre de St. Jorre said Monday.

Police identified the two victims as Mrs. Patricia Strickland, 58, of 1575 Begbie, and Gerald Frederick Dyer, 25, address not known.

Mrs. Strickland, occupant with her husband John, 60, of a suite in Fernwood Manor, was pronounced dead early Monday after a fire in the top-floor suite in the three-storey building that contains 221 living units. Her husband was in fair condition after smoke inhalation.

Police and firemen said Christian Ness of suite 409, next to the Stricklands' 407, noticed smoke coming under his door. He awoke Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Topham of 411, and the Tophams called firemen.

Attempts by residents to open the Stricklands' door failed. Firemen did the job, applying resuscitation after finding the couple overcome by smoke and heat.

Firemen evacuated about 40 people from the top floor for a short time. Damage in the blaze was said to be close to $10,000 while firemen indicate flames started around a living-room chesterfield.

Dyer was pronounced dead at Victoria General Hospital at about 11:30 a.m. and St. Jorre scheduled a post-mortem as well as an inquiry. The coroner said Dyer was found by a friend in a suite at 1024 McClure.

Safe Packaging Ordered in U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Food and Drug administration has ordered child-proof packaging within six months for a wide range of anti-freezes, drain and oven cleaners, paint thinners and solvents. At least nine children died and 861 required hospital treatment in a two-year period after accidentally swallowing those substances, the FDA said Friday.

Fugitive Nears Absence Mark

Less than a week before he was to set a peculiar record at William Head minimum-security institution, Robert John Albert Melnick has lost his chance.

But John Anthony Stelling still has an opportunity to make it.

Unless he is captured in the meantime, Stelling next Thursday night will become the first man in the 13-year history of the institution to escape from it for a year.

Stelling, 27, and Melnick, walked away from the institution on the night of Tuesday, Oct. 19, 1971. Melnick was arrested late last week in Calgary for armed robbery. Colwood RCMP said Monday, and a charge in connection with his unauthorized departure may be waived to Calgary for hearing.

Melnick had been sentenced Sept. 11, 1969, in Winnipeg to six years for trafficking in narcotics. Stelling was sentenced Jan. 26, 1971, in Victoria, to two years on two drug charges.

One was possession of a narcotic and the other was possession of a restricted drug for the purpose of trafficking.

Until Melnick and Stelling, the longevity record-holder in absences from William Head was William Olenick, who was out more than six months from mid-1970 and was eventually picked up in Toronto for a large number of thefts that earned him a nickname of cat burglar.

As of Monday night, Stelling and five others were on the William Head missing list. He and two have been there for a while and the other two are Richard Bell, absent since Jan. 1, and Randolph Bruce Johanson, gone since April 8.

Woman Gets $369 After a Quarrel

Rita Lorenze Dodd, 43, of 2111 Spring, will receive $212.23 under the Criminal Injuries Compensation Act as a result of an assault Aug. 4 at her home, the Workmen's Compensation Board, which administers the act, announced Monday in Vancouver.

Mrs. Dodd, employed as a bookkeeper, was struck in the face by an unknown person when she answered a knock at the door of her apartment. No charges have been laid.

A second award of $369 was announced for Marjorie Noseworthy, 55, of Vancouver. It covers loss of wages, ambulance bills, uninsured medical costs and damage to clothing suffered in a domestic quarrel July 8. Her husband has since been convicted of assault.

Barrett in Legislature Driver's Seat Today

By RAY DYKES

An NDP government with a clear-cut majority begins its first skirmish with its opponents today as the 30th B.C. Legislature opens in a special session.

For Premier Dave Barrett it will be the chance he's dreamed off to rid himself of the ingrown frustration of being top dog in an opposition that had hark but no power to bite.

The ground rules are expected to be basically the same in the session once billed as an emergency but more recently just termed "special."

Rules of debate and procedure that served to thwart the NDP in opposition will now swing to favor the new government.

Major changes in the running of the house promised by the NDP will have to wait for a spring session, according to Speaker designate Gordon Dowding.

Today he will be able to do little more than follow the precedents set by earlier speakers, he added. But the house may vote to amend some minor procedures.

Such things as the customary budget speech of a new government will also have to wait till the next session.

Standings in the Legislature for the session are NDP, 38; Social Credit, 10; Liberal, 5, and Conservative, 2.

The agenda has been well-aired and includes:

- Legislation providing a $200 guaranteed monthly income for about 110,000 B.C. persons 65 years and older;
- Repeal of the current ban on tobacco and alcohol advertising;
- Changes in the Public Schools Act;
- A minimum wage of $2.50 an hour and;
- Minor changes in labor law.

According to sources among civil servants, Barrett has demanded that all legislation should be ready to be introduced within the first two days of the session, which could last up to two weeks.

C'mon to Our House Applies Only to First 80

It will be first-come-first-served for the 80 seats in the Legislature's public gallery when the session opens today.

For the rest of the session, speaker-designate Gordon Dowding has drawn up new rules for the gallery which he hopes will prove fair to both the general public and to junior and senior high school students.

Students will be liimted to groups of no more than 35 including their escorts and their visits will be restricted: 2 p.m. to 3 p.m. and 3:30 p.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Arrangements for student visits must be made through their MLA but the members will be restricted to sponsoring no more than two groups in each calendar year, starting Wednesday this year.

Dowding indicated that the allocation of two visits a year may be amended once a firm decision on a two-sittings-a-year policy has been made by the cabinet.

In elaborating on the rules Dowding said, "The public cannot be denied the opportunity of attending sessions of the Legislature by pre-empting all the gallery seats for students, yet we must consider a fair way of allowing students the opportunity to see their Legislature in action."

Members of the public will line up, as they have in the past, for remaining seats in the public gallery.

Mafia HQ 'Bugs' Bite 677

NEW YORK (UPI) -- The year-long surveillance of a "Summit headquarters" of organized crime hidden in a junkyard has resulted in subpoenas against 677 persons in a massive probe of mob dealings in narcotics, prostitution and extortion, District Attorney Eugene Gold said Monday.

Each of the subpoenas, served by a small army of 1,200 policemen in all of New York City's five boroughs and three surrounding counties, were related in "a meaningful way" to the underworld, Gold said.

Gold flatly refused to release the names of the subpoenas, but termed the action "Bigger than Apalachin" -- the arrests of top Mafia figures at the Apalachin, N.Y., estate of reputed mobster Joseph Barbera in 1957.

Gold did say the "headquarters," located in a 40-by-15 foot trailer parked in the junkyard, was the scene of the "comings and goings of prominent members of the five organized crime families of New York City and other people."

"This proves that each one of these 'families' are interlocked and this headquarters is where they met," Gold said.

At a news conference at the junkyard, Gold, standing in the trailer, ripped a plywood ceiling plank out to show where his agents had installed a "bug," a microphone and transmitter.

In addition, he said, police agents, with court approval, tapped three telephones in the trailer.

During the investigation, the Brooklyn district attorney said, 36,000 feet of motion pictures were shot, 54,000 still photographs taken, and 21,600 feet of tape recorded from the wiretaps and bug.

The junkyard, in a quiet residential area of the Canarsie section of the city, was filled with wrecked cars which were "stacked so neatly men in business suits could walk freely without soiling their clothes."

Cleveland Mayor Ralph Perk got more than he bargained for Monday when he agreed to open a metals society convention in his city. Perk's hair caught fire from sparks of torch he used to cut the ribbon and metal bar, and sparks later burned through mayor's pants as well. He was uninjured.

Buenos Aires Blast Kills B.C. Woman

Reuter, AP, UPI

A woman believed to have been from West Vancouver was the sole fatality Monday night when a bomb blast ripped a jagged hole in the 24-storey Sheraton Hotel in Buenos Aires.

Police said the woman, Lois Crozier, was a U.S. citizen. But a spokesman at the hospital where she died shortly after the blast said she was from West Vancouver.

The bomb apparently was one of a series planted by terrorist followers of Juan Peron in commemoration of the 27th anniversary today of the former president's rise to power in Argentina.

Mrs. Crozier's husband, Gerard, and Robert Hall of the U.S. were treated for minor injuries. Another woman identified by police as an American, Patricia Traka, was reported in a coma.

Riot police were out in large numbers in Santiago's commericial district and used teargas to break up crowds of hundreds of persons shouting.

The capital province of Santiago and 16 other provinces out of a total of 25, have been under a state of emergency, a from of martial law, since Thursday.

Congress Leader Missing

"We assume that the airplane is down," a Federal Aviation Administration spokesman said.

There was no radio contact with the twin-engine plane after the pilot filed a flight plan 12 minutes after take-off from Anchorage, he added. There were four persons aboard the plane on the flight to Juneau.

"There could be many circumstances, like a malfunctioning radio or being out of radio range, that could cause us to lose contact, but the plane has passed its fuel exhaustion time and we assume that the airplane is down," the FAA spokesman said.

Barrett Lashed Over Tel Talk

The Social Credit caucus Monday attacked Premier Dave Barrett for "irresponsible statements" about the takeover of B.C. Tel and two natural gas companies.

Terming Barrett's remarks made last week as "repitition of ideological nonsense," the Socreds claimed "tens of millions of dollars" had been wiped off the stock market thanks to the takeover speculation.

Barrett, who doubles as finance minister, said last Thursday that government takeover of B.C. Tel was definite but no timetable had been set.

B.C. Tel shares were trading at $65 when the NDP government took office and by Monday had slipped to $55.

In a statement circulated by Social Credit caucus chairman Newell Morrison of Victoria, the Socreds said:

"The facts are that ministers of finance under the British Parliamentary system have been sacked for far less than the fiscal disclosures which were made by the minister of finance Thursday last."

"The savings of many small investors are being drained away by his repetition of ideological nonsense," the Socred caucus said.

The Chinese-language Ta Kung Pao, carrying a New China agency story, said Tsui Wen-chien, a 29-year-old member of a commune in suburban Peking, was knocked down by a train Jan. 10.

The operation was so successful that the transplanted foot is sensitive to heat and cold, the agency said.

An artificial leg was later fitted to Miss Tsui's right thigh and she can walk without crutches, the report said.

Stone Kills Four

CALCUTTA (AP) — Four bandits were killed and six injured when a stone thrown by an Indian villager struck and detonated explosives they carried, police reported Monday. They were surprised by villagers throwing stones, one of which hit a bag containing explosives.

Oakland Pitching Series Difference

CP-AP

OAKLAND — Pitching has proved to be the difference in the first two games of baseball's 1972 world series.

Oakland Athletics have had the pitching, and clutch fielding, and take a 2-0 lead into tonight's third game of the annual classic.

Cincinnati Reds, the National League champions, have managed only three runs and 13 hits in the two games, and most of that offence came in the first five innings of the opener against Ken Holtsman.

Relievers Rollie Fingers and Vida Blue preserved that victory.

Jim "Catfish" Hunter, with last-out help from Fingers and an amazing catch by Joe Rudi, held Cincinnati to one run in Sunday's 2-1 win at Riverfront Stadium.

"I'm not going to panic yet," said Sparky Anderson, manager of the Reds, on arriving in Oakland, Monday.

Anderson, who had predicted before the series started it would go the full seven games, said he was more certain than ever now.

Why?

"Because I think it will be awfully tough to win in six," quipped Anderson.

Only five teams have lost the first two games and still come back to win the championship. Last year, Baltimore held a 2-0 lead on Pittsburgh before the Pirates won three straight games and, the title in seven.

Reds whipped the Pirates in the National League playoffs to reach the showdown against Oakland and some of the players believe Cincinnati hasn't quite recovered from that emotional series.

"I don't want to make excuses," Pete Rose, the Reds' captain said, "but it's just that we put so much into the series in Pittsburgh. To us, that was the world series, not this."

Rose had nine hits in the five games with the Pirates. He has one against Oakland.

The Athletics returned to a huge welcome from a city that has not supported the club well at the gate.

A throng of 10,000 greeted the Athletics on Sunday and manager Dick Williams could hardly believe it.

"That was an incredible sight. I think we may have finally caught on here."

Owner Charles O. Finley tore up Williams' recently signed contract and rewrote it for higher terms on the flight west.

Finley also gave Rudi a $5,000 bonus for his spectacular catch, a ninth-inning backhand stab at the left-field wall. Rudi also homered in the third inning to score what proved to be the winning run. The homer came off Ross Grimsby, the first of three Cincinnati pitchers.

Athletics had the day off on Monday while the scheduled Cincinnati practice was washed out by rain.

The U.S. weather service predicted a 30 per cent chance of showers for tonight's game in which Athletics plan to send John "Blue Moon" Odom to the mound, with the Reds countering with Jack Billingham.

Odom, a 15-game winner during the American League season, got credit for two wins in the playoff series with Detroit Tigers. Billingham was 12-12 for 1972.

Reds plan to start Don Gullett in the fourth game while the Athletics have switched to Holtzman from Blue. Blue had been promised the fourth game start, but his relief work has been so effective that Williams has decided to keep him in the bullpen.

Next games: Tonight—Medicine Hat at VICTORIA, Swift Current at Saskatoon.

Tigers, who make their first appearance of the season at Memorial Arena tonight, led the league with 351 goals in 68 games last season.

This season, the Jack Shupe-coached club has 28 goals in four starts and a share of first place in the Western Division.

But Victoria Cougars aren't conceding a thing, especially after Saturday's impressive 5-2 win over Edmonton Oil Kings.

"Edmonton had a 24-3 record in three games before Saturday," Cougar coach Mitch Pechet said Monday. "They way the league has been going so far it seems any club can come up with a big game, no matter what their record is."

Pechet will again platoon his goalkeepers, Sam Clegg and Blaine Ferguson, and he will not name a starter until game time. Other than that, the lineup is intact and relatively injury free.

Tigers are led by the potent unit of Tom Lysiak between Lanny McDonald and Boyd Anderson. The trio accounted for 288 points, including 111 goals in the 1971-72 campaign.

Game time tonight is 8 o'clock.

Rob Watt, Blaine Stoughton and Al Hillier scored third-period goals to overcome a 3-1 deficit. Del Iannone was the other Bomber marskman.

U.S. Keeps Davis Cup

But the Wimbledon champion prevailed and beat Ion Tiriac in a five-set thriller, returning the Davis Cup tennis trophy to the U.S. for the fifth straight year.

It was the fifth consecutive time that Smith had scored the decisive point as the Americans defeated Romania, 3-2, in the best-of-five series.

Smith, the Wimbledon Champion overcame Tiriac, 4-6, 6-2, 6-4, 2-6, 6-0, after what he called "the worst officiating I have ever had."

That gave the Americans an unbeatable 3-1 lead and assured retention of the cup. Ilie Nastase then outlasted Tom Gorman, 6-1, 6-2, 5-7, 10-8, in the final match.

The Smith-Tiriac duel was a three-hour drama of unrelieved tension with an undercurrent of ill-feeling.

The 6000 fans at the Progresul Stadium roared for Tiriac and clapped whenever Smith served a fault. Smith apparently got the worst of a stream of disputed calls — and the crowd shouted and whistled every time he argued over a decision.

Sometimes the line judges applauded Tiriac's winning shots. The match also produced some magnificent tennis by the 33-year-old Tiriac, who made a tremendous bid to bring the cup to a Communist country for the first time.

Defensive Back Sparks 'Lomas

couver Meralomas advanced to the British Columbia-Alberta junior football final Sunday with a 26-6 victory over North Shore Cougars.

It was Vancouver defensive halfback Tim Baker who paced the way for the Meralomas with four interceptions, scoring one touchdown and setting up another touchdown.

Baker's first interception came in the first quarter on a pass by Gary Stenbart and on the next play Meralomas' Danny Smith hit Grant Medhurst with a 30-yard pass for a touchdown. Smith hit Lee Chan near the end of the second quarter with a 10-yard toss as Vancouver took a 14-6 lead at the half.

All Cougars' points came in the first quarter as Chris Bennett kicked field goals from 31 and 25 yards out.

Meralomas meet Calgary Colts next Sunday.

Colts Fire McCafferty

Defensive line-coach John Sandusky, who like McCafferty has been with the Colts since 1959, was named head coach for the remainder of the season.

Today's game will be telecast on Channels 2, 5 and 6 starting at 5 p.m.

Packer Rally Nips Lions

A perfect 15-yard touchdown strike, thrown by Scott Hunter to LeLand Glass in the corner of the end zone, tied the score with 1:54 remaining and Chester Marcol kicked the winning conversion.

An interception and fumble had helped Detroit build a 17-0 lead early in the second quarter but the Packers got to 7-17 by half time then took over in the fourth quarter which started with Lions leading 20-10.

Gaining possession with 9:35 left, Packers, now 4-1, used up seven minutes and 28 seconds in moving the ball 84 yards in 14 plays for the final score on which Glass got behind Rudy Redmond.

Quarterback Greg Landry scored for Lions on a two-yard plunge in the first quarter after cornerback Lem Barney intercepted a Hunter pass and returned it to the Packer 30-yard line.

Mann kicked a 12-yard field goal early in the second quarter then MacArthur Lane fumbled on the first play after the kickoff and linebacker Wayne Walker recovered and romped 14 yards to the 11-yard line.

Sunday's 12 games were highlighted by injuries to three quarterbacks, continued stress on running attacks and a few more surprise results.

Severest of the injuries was the one which may have sidelined Bob Griese of Miami Dolphins for the season. He was carried off the field in the first quarter and it was announced that he had suffered a leg fracture and had a dislocated ankle.

Earl Morrall, 38-year-old veteran obtained from Baltimore Colts just in case this sort of misfortune should happen to them, took over and threw two touchdown passes to bring the unbeaten Dolphins their fifth win — a 24-10 decision over San Diego Padres.

John Brodie of San Francisco 49ers and Mike Livingston of Kansas City Chiefs were the other quarterbacks put out of action Sunday, but both had lesser injuries.

Brodie was injured in the last minute of play as he was battling to avoid an upset loss to New York Giants. He was reported to have a badly-sprained left ankle and is a doubtful starter for the next game. His replacement, Steve Spurrier, had a last-gasp pass intercepted in the end zone and the Giants hung on for a 23-17 triumph.

Livingston, who replaced the injured Len Dawson the previous week and made his record as a starter 11-0, had to turn it back to Dawson in the second half of the game against Cincinnati Bengals. Dawson managed 10-3 and 13-3 leads but the Bengals came on for a 23-16 victory which gave them the lead in their division.

Other Sunday highlights:

● Joe Namath threw only nine passes in leading New York Jets past New England Patriots, 41-13. Emerson Boozer and John Riggins made passing unnecessary with power running, combining for 318 yards. Boozer carried 18 times for 150 yards and three touchdowns while Riggins got one touchdown and 168 yards from 32 carries;

● Minnesota Vikings barely avoided a fourth defeat with the day's best comeback. Trailing by 16-20 when Floyd Little scored a converted touchdown with 53 seconds remaining, the Vikings managed to eke out a 23-20 win over Denver Broncos. Fran Tarkenton did it with three passes, the last a 31-yard play with Gene Washington, who crossed the goal line with 17 seconds left;

● Atlanta Falcons overcame five fumbles and an 0-14 deficit to take New Orleans Saints, 21-14, when Bob Berry threw touchdown passes to Jim Mitchell, twice, and Ken Burrow;

● Craig Morton's short-passing game carried Dallas Cowboys past Baltimore Colts, 21-0. Morton completed 21 of 30 passes, 10 of them in a row and two for touchdowns;

● Rookie-fullback Franco Harris rushed for 115 yards and scored once to lead Pittsburgh Steelers to a 24-7 win over Houston Oilers;

● Quarterback Bobby Douglass, who gets more yardage rushing than he does passing, carried the ball for 115 yards and scored on a 57-yard jaunt as Chicago Bears bested Cleveland Browns, 17-0. A ferocious defence held the Browns to 37 yards, in 23 carries, on the ground and allowed only nine first downs.

Orr Not Ready Yet—Johnson

Bobby Orr isn't ready to return to the National Hockey League and his coach isn't sure when the superstar defenceman will see action.

Reports from Boston Saturday had indicated that Orr would play on Sunday when the Bruins hosted Pittsburgh Penguins.

"I watched him skating Friday. He was skating all right, perhaps but he was not skating like Orr and that is the important thing."

Johnson said Orr, who had extensive knee surgery in the off-season, wants to get back in action, but added "he'll help us a lot more if he waits for a while, until he is really 100 per cent."

Bruins scored their second win in as many nights by whipping the Penguins, 8-4. On Saturday, Bruins broke into the win column with a 7-4 decision over New York Islanders.

Bruins are four points behind Detroit Red Wings, who are leading the Eastern Division with four victories in as many starts.

Detroit hammered the weary Los Angeles Kings, 8-2, Sunday to take a one-point edge over Buffalo Sabres and Montreal Canadiens, the only other unbeaten NHL clubs.

Mickey Redmond and Gary Bergman each scored twice for Detroit, off to its fastest start in the club's 47-year history.

Kings, playing their fourth game in five nights, finally hit the scoreboard early in the third period on a goal by Juha Widing.

In Buffalo, Sabres jumped to a 3-0 lead and held on to score a 3-2 win over Toronto Maple Leafs. Sabres and Canadiens, who were not scheduled Sunday, each have three wins and a tie in four outings.

Western Division action was highlighted by St. Louis Blues' 3-1 upset of the previously-unbeaten Black Hawks in Chicago.

It marked the first time Blues had won in Chicago since the Blues entered the NHL six years ago. The win was also the first for St. Louis against the Black Hawks anywhere since Jan. 16, 1971, and snapped a winless streak against Chicago at 11 games.

NANAIMO — A Nanaimo Regional District survey shows the water supply on Gabriola Island can support a "normal" population growth as long as the island remains essentially rural, district chairman Don Beaton said Sunday.

Beaton said the report, released last week, states that any large-scale urban residential development would depend on piping water from Nanaimo.

"There can be a rational increase in population as long as it is in the right area," he said. "But the idea of Gabriola being a speculator's dream is no longer the case."

Beaton noted that Gabriola residents have expressed strong opposition to urban residential development but said that if this attitude changes the population could be increased to the point where piping water across the channel would be financially feasible.

Food Hikes

NANAIMO — Tommy Douglas, incumbent Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands candidate, says food wholesalers on the Island plan price increases of up to 15 per cent over the next few months.

"The manager of a large store took me to the back and showed me a bulletin of wholesale prices that will climb from 7½ to 15 per cent," Douglas said Sunday night at a political rally.

"I'm often alarmed by price increases, but this projection is frightening," he said.

Douglas, just back from a week-long tour of Saskatchewan where he was once premier, is also former national NDP leader.

He said an NDP government would set up a prices

B.C. Indian Affairs Branch? Over My Dead Body—Calder

If an Indian affairs branch is set up in B.C., it will be over the dead body of Frank Calder, minister without portfolio.

Instead Calder will lead a three-man team in a survey to determine how much B.C. is doing for its 55,000 status Indians and how the services could be improved.

In a news conference Monday afternoon, Calder charged that Indians were faced with too much bureaucracy in Canada as it was.

The survey, which will take from 12 months to two years to complete, would not recommend establishment of an Indian affairs branch because many Indian problems could be solved by existing government departments.

Calder and his executive assistant, Haida Indian Reg Kelly, 58, will be on the survey team with the third appointment yet to be announced.

Calder
. . . plans survey

The team will be aided in its studies by the B.C. Indian Inquiry Committee, a 12-member body set up in 1950 legislation under the B.C. Indian Inquiry Act.

In the act the premier is given power to direct the committee to study any Indian problems but this power has never been used.

Calder said the survey team will get help from the "top young Indian brains in B.C." and will also travel from coast to coast talking to other provinces to see what is being done for Indians.

Claiming the survey was "the beginnings of a Magna Carta" for B.C. Indians he said the team would be going into areas where "provinces once feared to tread."

"We intend to be bold in a field where there was been a reluctance in the past for provinces to spend money," Calder added.

Funds will come from the provincial government and according to Calder "I don't thing we'll have to cry for funds."

Truck Strike Ends

DUNCAN — A four-day truck drivers' strike ended at Sunday midnight with the return to work of the 140 drivers.

After a meeting Sunday morning held at the offices of the IWA, the men voted 81 to 26 in favor of accepting a two year contract worked out by negotiators for the union and the four trucking firms involved.

Under the new contract, the men will receive a 47 cent increase effective June 15, 1972, and another 40 cent increase effective June 15, 1973. Health and welfare benefits will be the same as the logging industry.

IWA Vice President Fernie Viala said the union made a major breakthrough in negotiating a dental plan for the truckers. Beginning Nov. 1 the employers will pay 60 percent, and the drivers 40 per cent of their dental bills. By January, 1974, this ratio will increase to 80 per cent paid by the employer and 20 per cent by the employee.

The four companies struck by the truckers were Doman's Arrow, Hearsey and Quay. Negotiators from the firms and from the union had been working on a new contract since last June 15, when the old one expired.

Educational Preserve Now Open

WESTHOLME — A new park designated for educational use was officially opened Saturday as a facility to aid in environmental education for children in the Cowichan school district.

Eaves Park is a 46-acre woodland, located near Westholme, which still preserves much of its natural beauty. Trails lace the park, allowing children to enjoy and study its varied plant and animal life.

Members of the provincial parks branch, as well as members of the Eaves park board of directors and school board officials attended the opening. Robert Moss, chairman of the Eaves Park Board, said 34 people were at the park for the opening, after a luncheon held at Duncan.

The history of Eaves Park as an outdoor study area began with Mrs. Janet Goodall, an early pioneer who originally owned the property. Mrs. Goodall, like so many early pioneers, had a deep love and reverence for the land and its wide variety of plants and animals. In 1962 she donated the entire 46 acres of her property to the province with the proviso that it be used for educational purposes. The area was constituted a class "C" Provincial park, administered by a Victoria board of trustees.

In 1970 the operational responsibility of the park was passed to an advisory committee composed of citizens of the Cowichan Valley, as the use of the park by district schools increased, and in March, 1972, the trusteeship of the park was handed over to the advisory committee.

Murder Trial Jury Picked

NANAIMO — A jury of 10 men and two women has been selected to hear the first trial in the fall session of B.C. Supreme Court which opened here Monday.

The first trial to be heard is that of Michael Sean McCormick, of Nanaimo who is charged with non-capital murder. The charge arose April 22 in a shooting incident at the Longhouse Restaurant, 10 Front Street in which 16-year-old Brenda Eileen Daniluck was shot.

The girl died shortly after taking two shots in the head from a small-bore revolver.

Crown counsel David Williams QC of Duncan, told the jury at the outset that he will attempt to prove through the trial that the shooting was a deliberate act, that McCormick "did what he intended and wanted to do."

Evidence will also be introduced, he said, to show that at least two other persons were struck by bullets in or near the restaurant before the suspect was subdued.

Williams also said the first witnesses will be Nanaimo hospital pathologist Dr. Stanley Grant, who performed an autopsy on the dead girl and examined one of the victims o fthe shooting, Richard Coulton of Nanaimo, who is still receiving medical treatment for injuries received in the incident.

The case is being held before Mr. Justice Peter Seaton.

Defence counsel is R. M. J. Hutchinson, also of Nanaimo.

Pilotage Act Applied

VANCOUVER — The captain of a Yugoslav freighter has been charged with failing to carry a pilot aboard his vessel in compulsory pilotage areas of B.C.

The charge is the first laid here under the new Pilotage Act which came into effect Feb. 1.

Captain Vladimir Cec is accused of taking the freighter Korotan into Gold River harbor without first giving Pacific Pilotage Authority a waiver to carry a pilot and with failing to carry a pilot in a compulsory pilotage area.

Prosecution evidence will be heard in provincial court today.

Gabriola Not 'Speculator's Dream' Now

NANAIMO — A Nanaimo Regional District survey shows the water supply on Gabriola Island can support a "normal" population growth as long as the island remains essentially rural, district chairman Don Beaton said Sunday.

Beaton said the report, released last week, states that any large-scale urban residential development would depend on piping water from Nanaimo.

"There can be a rational increase in population as long as it is in the right area," he said. "But the idea of Gabriola being a speculator's dream is no longer the case."

Beaton noted that Gabriola residents have expressed strong opposition to urban residential development but said that if this attitude changes the population could be increased to the point where piping water across the channel would be financially feasible.

Normal growth, Beaton said, is being defined as the regional district average of three to 3.5 per cent annually.

With the present population of about 500, Beaton said Gabriola Island could continue to grow "for quite some time" at this rate before the groundwater supply becomes inadequate. There is virtually no surface water on the island.

Beaton
. . . "water scarce"

Beaton said the report confirmed earlier assumptions that the predominantly rocky island has many geological faults and the groundwater supply is therefore not free flowing or consistent.

The faults, which often cause the groundwater in any specific location to be little more than a collection of rain water, also make the water supply more vulnerable to contamination from an inadequate septic tank arrangement, Beaton said.

The report, which cost the district about $25,000, will be used by the Gabriola advisory planning commission in formulation of a community development plan.

During summer hearings on the application by Gabriola Wildwood Estates Ltd. to subdivide 240 acres on the island into 550 lots — a plan which was later vetoed by the provincial government — there was criticism of the application because of the uncertainty of the water supply.

Beaton said Sunday the company apparently had an adequate water supply but the subdivision was to be an urban-type development and not consistent with the water supply for the island as a whole.

The water report also recommends that developers in the regional district be responsible for the capital construction costs of water systems built to public health standards in subdivisions. The water systems would then be turned over to the local public authority.

It recommends that where a water supply system is not provided, lots in subdivisions should be restricted to a minimum size of two to five acres.

Currently, said Beaton, provincial regulations restrict a lot without water supply to a minimum of about one half acre.

The regional district board is expected to adopt the report at its next meeting Oct. 24, said Beaton.

Indians Placated by 500-Sockeye Catch

TOFINO — A dispute over how many sockeye salmon Indians should be allowed to take from Tofino Inlet under their native rights appears to have been settled after several meetings with fisheries department officials, but some non-Indian fishermen are upset.

Dick Crouter, manager of southern B.C. operations for the department, said that the Indian-manned seiner Three Sons took 500 fish Saturday, after Indians reduced demand from 150 fish per Indian family.

He said this "would have run into the thousands" and possibly damaged the Kennedy River sockeye run, which goes up Tofino Inlet. The department estimated the run at only 15,000 to 20,000 fish.

Earlier, the Indians had been forbidden by local fisheries staff from taking any fish from the inlet. They protested and met with Fisheries Minister Jack Davies when he came to Port Alberni Wednesday as part of the federal election campaign.

The ban was lifted Friday after further meetings with fisheries officials, Crouter said.

As the Indians fished Saturday, seven trollers manned by white commercial fishermen were present as a protest, Crouter said. Four Indian-manned trollers were also there, and a fisheries patrol boat stood by but no one interferred with the seiner, he said.

Local fisheries officer Nick Seymour, who recommended the ban on fishing by either Indians or whites, handed in his resignation, said Crouter, but has agreed to reconsider and will probably withdraw it.

He said Seymour wrote the resignation out and mailed it before the department had made its estimate of the numbers of sockeye in the Kennedy run and determined that it was safe for the Indians to take 500. Of the 500 caught Saturday, only 200 were sockeye and the rest were coho, he said.

Doug Arnett, a spokesman for 100 commercial fishermen based in Tofino, said Saturday that they were still upset about the Indians being allowed to fish when whites were forbidden.

He said the Ahousat Indians offered the Tofino Indians 1,000 dog salmon to help out, but they were refused. The situation has become political, he said.

Protesting non Indian fishermen also left their larger trollers and took small boats to get closer to the Indian seiner. They said that many fish let go were dead or half drowned.

Food Price Hikes Seen

NANAIMO — Tommy Douglas, incumbent Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands candidate, says food wholesalers on the Island plan price increases of up to 15 per cent over the next few months.

"The manager of a large store took me to the back and showed me a bulletin of wholesale prices that will climb from 7½ to 15 per cent," Douglas said Sunday night at a political rally.

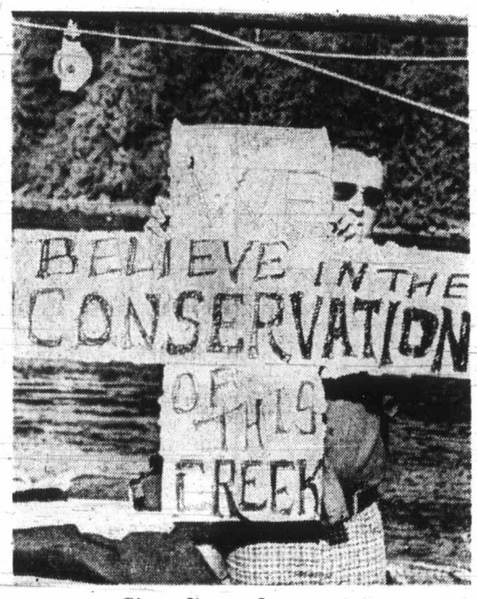

"I'm often alarmed by price increases, but this projection is frightening," he said.

Douglas, just back from a week-long tour of Saskatchewan where he was once premier, is also former national NDP leader.

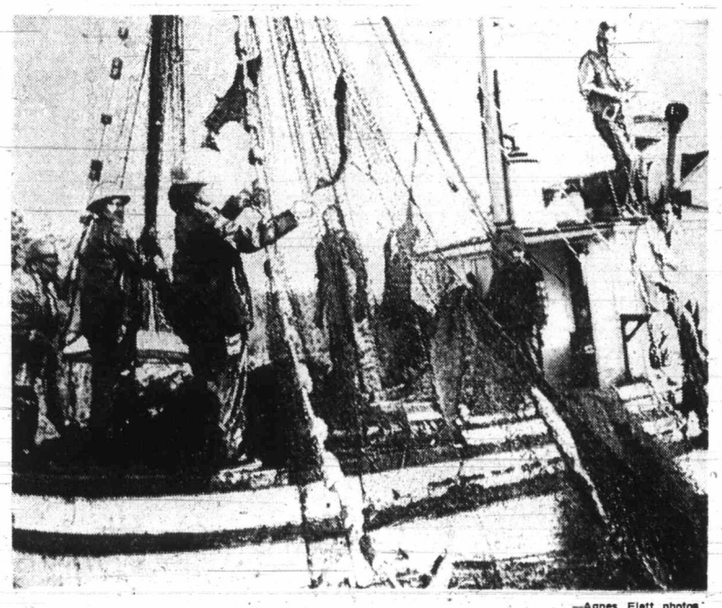

He said an NDP government would set up a prices review board which would scrutinize price increases like the ones he forecast.

He said he is not in favor of sweeping price controls, but suggested that controls on about 30 key items might solve the problem.

Second Hat in Trusteeship Ring

NANAIMO — A second candidate has announced her intention to seek a seat on Nanaimo district school board in the December civic election.

Mrs. Sylvia Koster, a three-year veteran on the city's advisory planning commission, said she will be seeking the only city seat up for grabs this year.

She will face Dr. G. Multari, also of Nanaimo, in the race. Incumbent Dave Nichols has not yet decided whether to run again.

The other city seat on the board will disappear this fall when a new seat is created to accommodate a representative from Ladysmith.

Part of the Ladysmith school district was amalgamated with the Nanaimo district over the summer, mainly for economic reasons.

"I've always been appointed before," she said.

In addition to the planning commission, Mrs. Koster has served on the Nanaimo Hospital auxiliary, Parent-Teacher Association executive, both federal and provincial centennial committees and has been bursar of the Nanaimo Bathtub Society since its inception in 1967.

She is currently involved in the school district's steps to maturity program with director Mrs. Jean Jakes and is training as a group leader for the course.

"I feel I bring a genuine concern for education and a broad field of knowledge of education, school district problems and a good basic foundation in the field of community planning," she said.

She has pledged to work "full time, honestly and sincerely" for the good of the school district and its students.

Her nomination papers will be signed by former Malaspina College council chairman and school trustee Dr. Roy Macmillan and long-time Nanaimo alderman, Mrs. G. L. Hall.

Group Gets Flying Start

DUNCAN — The relatively young Cowichan Bird Society has an enviable record of accomplishment. According to figures released by the society for the year that ended Sept. 30, members spent a combined total of 1,768 hours on regular field trips, walked 921 miles, observed 188 different species and counted a total of 125,497 birds.

Some other major activities carried out by the very active Cowichan Bird Society included participation in a country-wide nesting records scheme, pollution investigations and rendering aid to injured birds.

A society spokesman said "during the coming year many new challenges face us. The most pressing of these will be a strong youth training program. Another problem coming up real soon will be the expenses involved in feeding the waterfowl at Quamichan Lake Park this winter.

"We are now using the area as an outdoor classroom where young students can view and discuss the birds in detail, without the aid of expensive glasses." One of the highlights this year again will be the Audubon Christmas bird census tentatively scheduled here for Dec. 16.

Soccer Season In Full Swing

DUNCAN — The 1972-73 soccer season is in full swing and small armies of young ballplayers shift about every Sunday to play on fields in the Duncan, Chemainus, Salt Spring Islands, Crofton and Ladysmith areas.

About 850 boys are registered in the Mid-Island Juvenile Soccer Association including 500 from the Cowichan Valley area. The mid-island group consists of four affiliated clubs including: Cowichan Valley; Chemainus-Crofton; Saltspring Island and Ladysmith Juvenile Soccer Associations.

President of the mid-island association's executive, Dave Williams, had this to say at the beginning of the current soccer season. "As sports has become more serious — that is, more mercenary — we begin to perceive the truth of George Orwell's remarks 20 years ago that serious sport has nothing to do with fair play. It is bound up with hatred, jealousy, boastfulness, disregard of the rules and sadistic pleasure in witnessing violence, in other words it is a war minus the shooting.

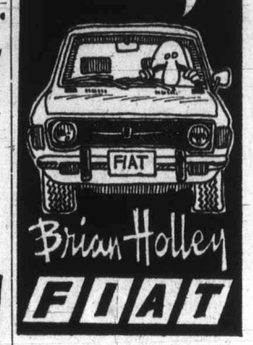

"This, soccer fans," Williams continued, "we are most happy to say has never entered the juvenile picture." President of the Cowichan Valley J. S. A. Ken Paskin had this message for the parents of the youngsters "we hope you will give us your full support and encouragement. Remember we are all volunteers trying to do our best for the young people of the area." With the exception for a break during Christmas, games are being played every Sunday until Feb. 25.

Man Charged With Arson

VANCOUVER (CP) — Isaac Parker, 39, of Vancouver is to appear in provincial court Oct. 27 charged with arson after his furniture store was destroyed by fire last month. The fire was blamed for the deaths of two elderly men who lived above the store in a hotel. One died of smoke inhalation and the other had a heart attack.

HOW TO WRITE A GOOD
CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room, etc, for rent, or property for sale; start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably when given complete, definite information. Always include the price in your advertisement. Don't allow the reader to speculate.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public every day.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—WANT ADS THAT FAIL TO bring the desired results do so usually, not through a lack of readership, but because they are poorly worded or contain inadequate information.

8—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient ad-visor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember, Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 8:00 p.m. for you daily, Monday through Saturday call.

New Life for Alcoholic

He Beat One Fear

By JIM BRAHAN
Colonist Reporter

His hand shook uncontrollably as he reached for the telephone. His stomach churned. He knew he was going to be sick. He also knew he needed help. And for the first time in his life, he was going to ask for it.

"I had come to the stage where I couldn't stop drinking. I had also come to the point where I knew I couldn't keep on drinking. I didn't know what was going to happen to me. I was scared like I had never been before," recalled a longtime member of Alcoholics Anonymous.

He emphasized that one great fear of an alcoholic when he finally decides to seek help is that he will lose his friends.

"Yet when he is drinking, he's one of the loneliest people in the world. This never seems to penetrate until he has been sober for quite some time."

The member, who asked to remain anonymous, said he remembered how it eased his mind to learn from the two AA members who came to see him after he made his initial phone call that his excessive drinking was not caused by lack of willpower but was recognized as a disease.

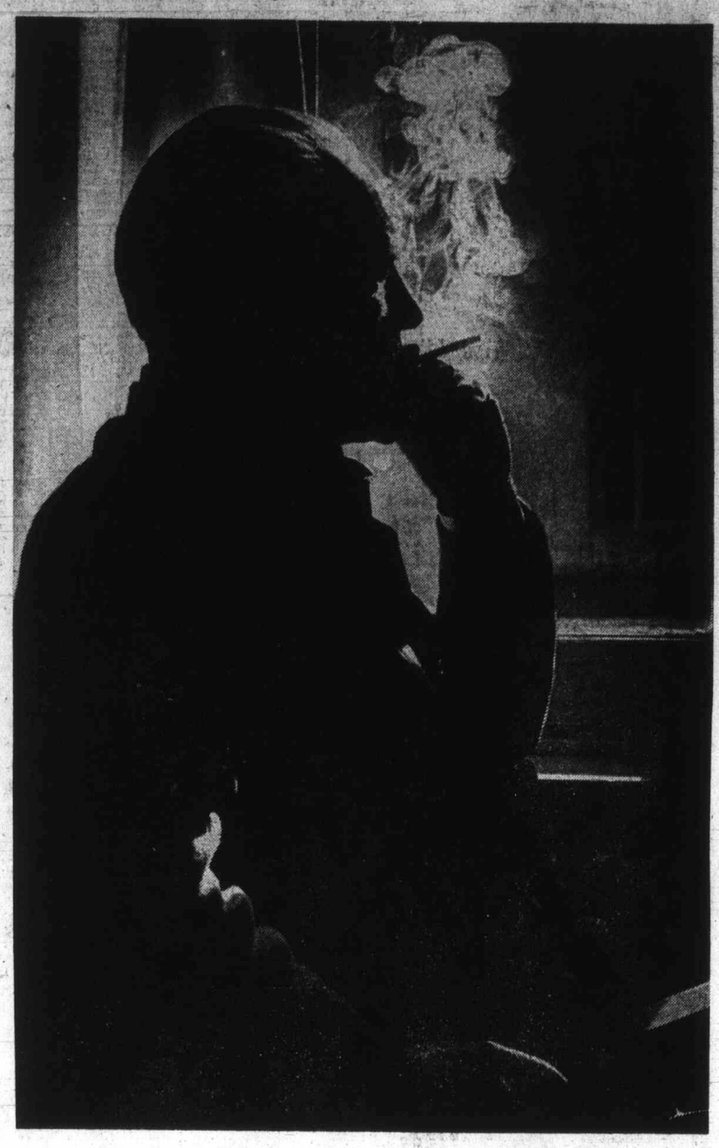

"I had to learn that it was possible for me to mix with people without having to bolster my spirits with liquor.

"It had been a long time since I had tried to socialize without having a bellyful of booze," he said. "I learned to readjust myself to sober society again at the Alano Club on Broad Street."

Although the Alano Club membership is made up of AA members, it is a separate entity.

"It is not a part of Alcoholics Anonymous. Club members pay monthly dues. AA has no dues or fees. Each of the 24 AA groups in Greater Victoria are self-supporting and will not accept any contributions from outside the group," said the member who first came in contact with AA more than 20 years ago.

Yet the Alano Club, which is open daily from 10 a.m. to 11 p.m. except Sundays and holidays, when it opens at 2 p.m., fills a necessary function for many recovering alcoholics.

"It provides a place where the alcoholic can go during the drying-out period. For years, about the only place a practising alcoholic used to visit for social chats was a favorite bar," the member said.

It has helped countless alcoholics in their bid for a new and better life.

"I guess we use the club actually for a type of haven when we are pretty shaky, I know I did," he said.

The Alano Club in Victoria was registered under the Societies Act on Oct. 8, 1949, and has remained at 1402 Broad ever since.

It is one of the 24 United Appeal agencies in Greater Victoria which will share in the funds collected in this year's campaign. The target is $724,931 12 per cent more set for the current campaign than was realized last year.

Victoria Lawyer Cleared by Society

By JIM BRAHAN
Colonist Reporter

A Victoria lawyer has been cleared by the Law Society of B.C. of complaints of unprofessional behavior, made by North Saanich Mayor Trevor Davis.

In mid-August, Davis wrote a long letter to the law society in Vancouver, complaining of the position taken by North Saanich municipal solicitor Cecil Branson in a controversy between the mayor and council over the Kingsway development bylaw — a zoning regulation that would pave the way for a 350-home project.

Davis declined to sign the bylaw. A writ of mandamus, seeking to compel Davis to sign, was subsequently filed in B.C. Supreme Court in Victoria by the owner of the land involved.

A hearing has been held over the writ and judgment is being awaited.

Branson

The law society answered Davis' complaints last week in a letter which said:

"The discipline committee has considered your complaints and is of the opinion that Mr. Branson's conduct has adhered throughout to the highest standard of professional conduct and that this committee is not prepared to engage itself with this matter any further."

The majority of North Saanich aldermen said Saturday they were delighted with the ruling of the law society's discipline committee. The mayor refused to comment.

Ald. Doug Boon emphasized the mayor had complained to the law society without the consent of council.

"It was the most ridiculous thing I have ever heard of," Boon said.

Ald. H. A. Taylor said that he was "astounded" by the mayor's action.

Ald. Paul Grieve said that he had not read the law society's letter so he could not make any comment.

Ald. George Cumpston said the mayor's complaints were a lot of "eyewash" and in his opinion Branson had always done excellent work for North Saanich.

"I imagine this has all been most upsetting for Mr. Branson. I don't know why it was done. I am truly sorry it happened."

He said that as far as he was concerned Branson had faithfully served the municipality and to attack his professional conduct was uncalled for.

Ald. Nell Horth and Ald. George Aylard both agreed the Victoria lawyer's work for the municipality had been above reproach and said they were pleased with the law society's ruling.

Unions Press Hard For Merchant Fleet

By DON COLLINS
Colonist Labor Reporter

In 1966 the International Brotherhood of Boilermakers had 800 members in Victoria. Today it has 400 and half of the 400 are unemployed.

Just another symptom, according to Boilermakers' business agent Neil Hindle, of the decline and fall of Canada's shipbuilding industry.

But shipbuilding makes up only part of the over-all maritime problem, and it is the "whole" problem that a group of west coast unionists are trying to do something about.

While Hindle made his remarks in an interview in Victoria Saturday officials of various unions connected with shipping met in Vancouver to form an ad-hoc committee that will deal with such objectives as a merchant marine service for Canada.

Don Nicholson of Ottawa, national vice-president of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers, told the group the federal government could create another 40,000 jobs in shipping and shipbuilding in the next five years if it wanted to.

In an address to the unionists, he said this could be done by implementing the main recommendation of the Darling report on the coasting trade of Canada. This called for the use of Canadian-flag vessels instead of foreign ships manned by foreign crews.

Nicholson said no action had been taken since the report was submitted to Transport Minister Don Jamieson two years ago.

Levels of pay and working conditions, he said, are far below Canadian standards and in many cases do not meet minimum labor, safety and navigational standards that must be met by Canadian vessels.

He also complained that foreign ships enjoy an exemption from Canadian taxes.

This means that ships with such flags of "dubious repute" as Cyprus, Nigeria, Liberia and Panama are welcomed in Canadian waters with "tax giveaways" amounting to millions of dollars every year, Nicholson said.

He charged that nothing had been done by the government to offset the "destruction" of Canadian jobs in the shipping and shipbuilding industries. Foreign ships he said, were not only manned with foreign crews, but were never serviced or built in Canadian yards.

"The hypocrisy of a government that professes to be concerned about unemployment while refusing to take action to stop the erosion of jobs in our marine industries is so bare-faced that it takes away my breath," Nicholson said.

The tax exemption question also bothers Hindle.

A booming shipbuilding industry on the coast wouldn't have to be feared by today's environment-conscious people, according to Hindle.

"We're not talking about big belching smokestacks. We're talking about a non-polluting industry — shipbuilding."

Where tax exemption is concerned in shipping, Hindle points the finger at Canadian business as well as its foreign counterparts.

Barrett in Legislature Driver's Seat Today

By RAY DYKES
Colonist Reporter

An NDP government with a clear-cut majority begins its first skirmish with its opponents today as the 30th B.C. Legislature opens in a special session.

For Premier Dave Barrett it will be the chance he's dreamed of to rid himself of the ingrown frustration of being top dog in an opposition that had bark but no power to bite.

The ground rules are expected to be basically the same in the session once billed as an emergency but more recently just termed "special."

Rules of debate and procedure that served to thwart the NDP in opposition will now swing to favor the new government.

Major changes in the running of the house promised by the NDP will have to wait for a spring session, according to Speaker designate Gordon Dowding.

Today he will be able to do little more than follow the precedents set by earlier speakers, he added. But the house may vote to amend some minor procedures.

Such things as the customary budget speech of a new government will also have to wait till the next session.

Standings in the Legislature for the session are NDP, 38; Social Credit, 10; Liberal, 5, and Conservative, 2.

The agenda has been well aired and includes:

- Legislation providing a $200 guaranteed monthly income for about 110,000 B.C. persons 65 years and older;
- Repeal of the current ban on tobacco and alcohol advertising;
- Changes in the Public Schools Act;
- A minimum wage of $2.50 an hour and;
- Minor changes in labor law.

According to sources among civil servants, Barrett has demanded that all legislation should be ready to be introduced within the first two days of the session, which could last up to two weeks.

C'mon to Our House Applies Only to First 80

It will be first-come-first-served for the 80 seats in the Legislature's public gallery when the session opens today.

For the rest of the session, speaker-designate Gordon Dowding has drawn up new rules for the gallery which he hopes will prove fair to both the general public and to junior and senior high school students.

Students will be limted to groups of no more than 35 including their escorts and their visits will be restricted: 2 p.m. to 3 p.m. and 3:30 p.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Arrangements for student visits must be made through their MLA but the members will be restricted to sponsoring no more than two groups in each calendar year, starting Wednesday this year.

Dowding indicated that the allocation of two visits a year may be amended once a firm decision on a two-sittings-a-year policy has been made by the cabinet.

In elaborating on the rules Dowding said, "The public cannot be denied the opportunity of attending sessions of the Legislature by pre-empting all the gallery seats for students, yet we must consider a fair way of allowing students the opportunity to see their Legislature in action."

Members of the public will line up, as they have in the past, for remaining seats in the public gallery.

Mafia HQ 'Bugs' Bite 677

NEW YORK (UPI) — The year-long surveillance of a "summit headquarters" of organized crime hidden in a junkyard has resulted in subpoenas against 677 persons in a massive probe of mob dealings in narcotics, prostitution and extortion, District Attorney Eugene Gold said Monday.

Each of the subpoenas, served by a small army of 1,200 policemen in all of New York City's five boroughs and three surrounding counties, were related in "a meaningful way" to the underworld, Gold said.

Gold flatly refused to release the names of the subpoenas, but termed the action "Bigger than Apalachin" — the arrests of top Mafia figures at the Apalachin, N.Y., estate of reputed mobster Joseph Barbera in 1957.

Gold did say the "headquarters" located in a 40-by-15 foot trailer parked in the junkyard, was the scene of the "comings and goings of prominent members of the five organized crime families of New York City and other people."

"This proves that each one of these 'families' are interlocked and this headquarters is where they met," Gold said.

At a news conference at the junkyard, Gold, standing in the trailer, ripped a plywood ceiling plank out to show where his agents had installed a "bug," a microphone and transmitter.

In addition, he said, police agents, with court approval, tapped three telephones in the trailer.

During the investigation, the Brooklyn district attorney said, 36,000 feet of motion pictures were shot, 54,000 still photographs taken, and 21,600 feet of tape recorded from the wiretaps and bug.

The junkyard, in a quiet residential area of the Canarsie section of the city, was filled with wrecked cars which were "stacked so neatly men in business suits could walk freely without soiling their clothes."

Hottest Mayor in U.S.

Cleveland Mayor Ralph Perk got more than he bargained for Monday when he agreed to open a metals society convention in his city. Perk's hair caught fire from sparks of torch he used to cut the ribbon and metal bar, and sparks later burned through mayor's pants as well. He was uninjured.

Buenos Aires Blast Kills B.C. Woman

Reuter, AP, UPI

A woman believed to have been from West Vancouver was the sole fatality Monday night when a bomb blast ripped a jagged hole in the 24-storey Sheraton Hotel in Buenos Aires.

Police said the woman, Lois Crozier, was a U.S. citizen. But a spokesman at the hospital where she died shortly after the blast said she was from West Vancouver.

The bomb apparently was one of a series planted by terrorist followers of Juan Peron in commemoration of the 27th anniversary today of the former president's rise to power in Argentina.

Mrs. Crozier's husband, Gerard, and Robert Hall of the U.S. were treated for minor injuries. Another woman identified by police as an American, Patricia Traka, was reported in a coma.

Riot police were out in large numbers in Santiago's commericial district and used teargas to break up crowds of hundreds of persons shouting.

The capital province of Santiago and 16 other provinces out of a total of 25, have been under a state of emergency, a from of martial law, since Thursday.

Congress Leader Missing

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — The U.S. Air Force launched a search Monday for an overdue small plane carrying U.S. House Majority Leader Hale Boggs of Louisiana and Representative Nick Begich, Alaska's sole member of the U.S. lower house.

"We assume that the airplane is down," a Federal Aviation Administration spokesman said.

There was no radio contact with the twin-engine plane after the pilot filed a flight plan 12 minutes after take-off from Anchorage, he added. There were four persons aboard the plane on the flight to Juneau.

"There could be many circumstances, like a malfunctioning radio or being out of radio range, that could cause us to lose contact, but the plane has passed its fuel exhaustion time and we assume that the airplane is down," the FAA spokesman said.

Lewis Cites Report: Pipeline 'Disaster'

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask. (CP) — David Lewis said during the weekend that unpublished research papers, prepared by a federally-financed "think tank," warn that construction of a Mackenzie Valley pipeline might spell disaster for the Canadian economy.

Barrett Lashed Over Tel Talk

The Social Credit caucus Monday attacked Premier Dave Barrett for "irresponsible statements" about the takeover of B.C. Tel and two natural gas companies.

Terming Barrett's remarks made last week as "repitition of ideological nonsense," the Socreds claimed "tens of millions of dollars" had been wiped off the stock market thanks to the takeover speculation.

Barrett, who doubles as finance minister, said last Thursday that government takeover of B.C. Tel was definite but no timetable had been set.

B.C. Tel shares were trading at $65 when the NDP government took office and by Monday had slipped to $55.

In a statement circulated by Social Credit caucus chairman Newell Morrison of Victoria, the Socreds said:

"The facts are that ministers of finance under the British Parliamentary system have been sacked for far less than the fiscal disclosures which were made by the minister of finance Thursday last."

"The savings of many small investors are being drained away by his repetition of ideological nonsense," the Socred caucus said.

—AP

HONG KONG (Reuter) — Peking surgeons, in a successful 10-hour operation, transplanted the right foot to the left leg of a woman critically injured in a train accident early this year, says a Chinese news report.

The Chinese-language Ta Kung Pao, carrying a New China agency story, said Tsui Wen-chien, a 29-year-old member of a commune in suburban Peking, was knocked down by a train Jan. 10.

The operation was so successful that the transplanted foot is sensitive to heat and cold, the agency said.

An artificial leg was later fitted to Miss Tsui's right thigh and she can walk without crutches, the report said.

Pat Jordan, Social Credit MLA for North Okanagan, demanded the apology in a press release and accused the NDP government of allowing politics to interfere with sports.

"I don't believe the majority of people of B.C. want their politics, culture and sports all mixed up," she said.

CALCUTTA (AP) — Four bandits were killed and six injured when a stone thrown by an Indian villager struck and detonated explosives they carried, police reported Monday. TORONTO (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said Tuesday conditions may be ripe in about five years for tougher government measures to exert Canadian control over the economy.

He said in a question-and-answer session following a Junior Board of Trade luncheon that this is a difficult time for Canada to be "hard" on foreign investment because of the necessity to create jobs.
